DUKE'S PRESENCE BOOST FOR PENN.

Eastern Sporting Writers Say Hawaiian's Arrival Created New Interest in the Sport.

[illegible]

The New York Telegram says:

The past season has been the most successful one in the annals of intercollegiate golf, which dates back over twenty years. With apparently nothing to start with, Coach Kistler built up a strong team and the return of three of last year's leaders, coupled with the strongest college team that has ever been gathered together.

The presence of Duke Kahanamoku, the Hawaiian wonder, during the latter part of the season was a great boost for the Red and Blue. Kahanamoku is now familiar round the college, where he has become a great favorite with all the athletes.

Club-Maker Passing

W. L. Watson gives a sketch in Golf Illustrated of the old clubmaker, a quite personality which is pleasant reading, both for its kindly sentiment mixed and its value as a character study.

The old clubmaker was not only a player, but he was in constant touch with the game. His shop looked out on the links and was open to every comer who wanted an old club patched or a new one made. What characteristic scenes recur to the memory from those days? There would other, for instance, to the man at his bench, all powdered with the fine dust from his rasp, a player who had just lost his match. "Tam, the club you made me broke horribly." Tam takes the club, gravely examines the head with its long battered neck, shuts the shaft to the light and glances down it critically, eyes it then considerable wangle with his right wrist and with the arm, smiling at all, as characteristic of the Scot, says, "There's been a fell lot o' hackin' on, but I dinna see much wrong wi' the clubb" leaving the lost off inference to the player. But the player also is a Scot and he insists on having the weight shifted forward a little.

When he has gone Tom fils away the dire mark on the heel, scrapes the head a little, reassembles the head, and behold! next time the club drives to a wonder. Tam, too, is he has learned to be charitable in such cases, for he knows how subtle a thing a player's club is. He knows, for example, that a shaft may be good as a shaft, and a head good as a head, but it by no means follows that together they will make a good club. That an intangible quality called "balance" follows no known law. Strange as it may seem, actual trial shows that a shaft which feels "dead" with an eight-ounce head, when given a beautiful "point" with one only a 12 ounce. We are very far from pretending to know why this should be so, and, moreover, we never knew a clubmaker who professed to know. As a possible explanation we prefer the quaint remark once made to us, "Ye would almost believe golf clubs were living things by the way they behave." Both in the old sense of the word, and the more common one, the craft of clubmaking is a "mystery."

The "Smell" of Golf.

How delightful it was to gaze through the window of the clubmaker's shop, or slide into the shop itself, with its smell of fresh shavings and glue and pitched twine, and watch the various processes. To see the artist workman remove the head, every now and again from the vise, and hold it up to examine its curves, until their grace satisfied him, to observe the clean cutting of the horn-groove by hand and chisel alone, the perfect fitting of the horn, the ingenious way in which the pin holes are pierced, first on a slant and then straight down; and to watch emerge at last, polished and varnished so that you might see yourself in it, the graceful head with all its glorious possibilities! Oh! Tom Morris' shop, with its uninterrupted view of the first tee and the last green at St. Andrews, and Bob Martin at his bench in the window, was almost the best of these old world places. There you might still walk in and out freely, and pour into the sympathetic ear of the clubmaker the tale of your club's infirmities. But you had to be sure that your story was reasonable. If you imitated the man who wanted a new horn fitted because the one then on the club had a black mark in it that caught his eye, you richly deserved the retort, "Was ye drivin' on your field, sir?"

Old Favorites.

Every golfer knows the extent to which a favorite club, especially a driver, becomes almost a part of himself. This is a sentiment which he will find the true clubmaker will always share with him to the full. The skill with which such a workman could patch up defects, apparently irremediable, was quite wonderful. There was an old gentleman who brought his play-club into the shop one day and, with a woeful face, said, "See, man; what can you do with that?" The clubmaker regarded the transverse crack for a moment or two, and then said, in a mournful voice, as if announcing the death of a friend, "I'm feared it's done wi' this thing, sir." "Is there nothing you can do with it?" "No, sir, no, but I'll tell ye" (bright enough up) "I have a bit wood the very brither o' this, an' we'll never ken the difference when I've made it up." Even then the old putter, turning at the door, cried back, "You'll be able to run the old lead into it at any rate?" He had possessed the club for 15 years, during that time it had had six new heads and two new shafts, and yet—such is sentiment—it was still the same club! In that belief he was aided and abetted by the clubmaker, and thus a pleasant fiction was maintained, which was grateful to both. Although the fact does not accord with the general Scottish character, still true it is, many and many a time these clubmakers persuaded a man who came to buy a new club that the old one, with a little mending, would be quite serviceable. It secured as if they did not like to contemplate the loss of a golf club.

PLUNGE FOR DISTANCE CUT

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 6.—Unofficially for the United States in the coming Olympic games to be held in Stockholm, Sweden, that the plunge for distance is not included in the swimming events. If this event were to be held it would probably mean a first place for Furman R. Wills, captain of the University of Pennsylvania swimming team, who has shown wonderful ability during the past season.

In the Middle Atlantic Association championship of the A. A. U. held in connection with the individual championships of the Intercollegiate Swimming Association in the Pennsylvania pool recently, Wills plunged 80 feet, breaking the American record of 75 feet 11 inches, and coming within 2 feet 8 inches of the world's record held by Taylor of England. It is hardly likely that there is another man who can travel so far in a minute in any country.

Wills has progressed rapidly since becoming a member of Coach Kistler's team at Pennsylvania. Last year he broke the intercollegiate record by going 72 feet in the individual championships held at Columbia. This year he has repeatedly broken his own record. In fact, in view of the persistent gains that he has made it would not be at all surprising to see him break the world's record of 82 1-2 feet, thus giving the United States a record which would be hard to touch.

NINETY-SEVEN CATS TO BREAKFAST

CHESHIRE, Conn., April 6.—Cheshire has the distinction of having the first home for friendless cats to be established in Connecticut, if not in New England.

Walter Scott, proprietor of an inn, has fitted up a large room in the basement of his hostelry where any homeless cat can take refuge and three square meals a day. Ninety-seven breakfasted there one morning.

Scott is enthusiastic over the success of his "home." He said:

"I am now resolved to establish a chain of homes for friendless cats, though at present we can only care for Cheshire cats."

A woman thirty-five years old who started the other day to travel from an Oklahoma town to join her husband in Oregon, was fearful lest she might not always get on the right train and might not be told to leave the train at the right place. So she attached to her waist a circular-shaped piece of red silk, on which was painted in white letters, "Bound for Klamath Falls, Ore., from McAlester, Okla."

SIGHT COMES BACK IN GALE

Man Regains the Use of Right Eye While Out in Storm.

READING, Pa., Apr. 6.—Perhaps the happiest man in Berks county is Jonas A. Miller, a stonemason of Schuylkill, this county, who, after having been unable to see out of his right eye for thirty years, had the use of it restored to him in a remarkable manner.

In 1887 he lost the use of one eye from some unknown cause.

Several days ago he walked from his home to Strausstown, a distance of two miles, during a severe storm, and he was compelled to face the strong gale on his way home. The wind blew considerable dust into his eyes.

His right eye ofled with water and he rubbed it, and presently he was able to see a dim light. He kept on rubbing the eye, and upon his arrival home he sight had been fully restored.

U. S. DECIDES NOT TO SEND OFFICIAL REPRESENTATIVE

WASHINGTON, D. C.—No official representative of the United States government will be sent to the Olympic games at Stockholm next summer. A definite statement to this effect was made at the White House recently, when Senator Lodge communicated to the President the indorsement by the Municipal A. A. of Boston of J. E. Sullivan for this position.

CANADIANS WON'T COMPETE IN OLYMPIAD

According to dispatches from Canada the prospect of the Canadian Olympic team is not at all bright. Instead the reverse is the case, and unless some six or seven of the best athletes in the Dominion reconsider recent announcements to the effect that they will not make the trip to Sweden it appears as if Canada will not be of any great help to England in its quest for the world's athletic championship.

It appears that all of the trouble has been caused by the failure on the part of the Canadian committee to notify certain dollar athletes to train for the trip, assuring them of going abroad regardless of their showings in the Olympic trials on June 1 and 8. The committee is evidently of the opinion that these men should be compelled to prove their ability at the trials as well as the comparatively unknown competitors.

Some of the critics across the border have scored the committee for its stand. They say that in the United States such action can be taken because of the number of athletes here and the fact that new champions are continually being developed. Across the border, however, they believe that the ranks are spread thin in comparison and that the committee would have done better to have left four or possibly five reservations open for an unknown who might show sufficient form warranting taking them to Sweden, and some time ago notified the present champions that they would positively go abroad.

It is said that each of the following has stated, giving various things as excuses, that he will not go: "Jack" Tait, the mile champion; "Harry" Tressider, the five-mile champion; "Jef" Brock, the half-miler; Arnold Knox, another half-miler, and Frank Hallam, considered to be the best quarter-miler in the Dominion.

SAWED OFF SHORT

A meeting of the Oahu Senior Baseball League will be held tonight at the office of Charles Chillingworth. It is expected that a definite date for the turning in to the league secretaries of the playing lists of each club will be fixed at this meeting.

McCarthy and Cipkes have agreed on the terms of their mill scheduled for May 4. They will fight for 50 per cent. of the gross gate, to be divided 65 to the winner and 35 to the loser. The bout is scheduled for 12 rounds.

No golf tournaments scheduled on the local courses for Saturday or Sunday of this week.

WHITTAKER WAS FRIEND OF GRANT

It has been learned that the Civil War veteran J. F. Whittaker, who destroyed himself in a room at Helt's Court on Monday, was a personal friend of General U. S. Grant and General John A. Logan. Yesterday his ashes were taken charge of by the George W. De Long Post, G. A. R.

The Army papers which the veteran left behind him were taken charge of by the Army Post and an examination revealed the fact that he at one time had been a man of high standing, and was a personal friend of the two great Generals of the U. S. Army, Grant and Logan.

Private papers show that he had land holdings in the Northwest that were valueless and that a gang of swindlers had gotten about all the money he had and had purchased a ticket for Fiji for him and started him on his way. He landed here, however, and failing to obtain employment, took his life.

The ashes and papers will be held here awaiting word from relatives. If no word comes the ashes will be interred in the G. A. R. plot at Nuuanu cemetery.

The blessing of animals, an annual custom at the Merced church, in Pueblo, was as productive as usual of sweet sights. A small colt was led in for a blessing, his gala attire consisting of ribbed horns and hoofs which had been painted the color of silver. A young mule with a collar loaded with bells furnished a disturbance which was not at all pleasing to the worshipers who brought no live stock with them.—Mexican Herald.

ST. LOUIS IS IN AND OUT OF LEAGUE

Kam, Punahou and High Will Play Saints But Not as Members of Combination.

"Open de door, an' let me in," chanted all the representatives of St. Louis College yesterday afternoon, before the meeting place of the haughty Punahou, Kam and McKinley delegates to the baseball convention of the Interscholastic League. And finally the door was opened just a crack, and St. Louis, figuratively speaking, given a seat on a hard bench in the vestibule.

St. Louis is not in the "combination" this season, which is a decided pity, as the college has a real ball team that might make things interesting for the other three. The fact is that Kam is peeved over the actions of the Saints in regard to a certain soccer game last season, of which much has been said and written by both sides, and the merits of which it is not necessary to discuss at the present time. St. Louis is peeved with Kam, too, but it so happens that Kam had a cast iron, blood-brotherhood alliance with High and Punahou. So all the Kams had to do was to invert their thumbs, and St. Louis stayed out in the cold.

However, as all three schools were really anxious to hook up with the Saints, a sort of compromise was agreed on whereby St. Louis plays an independent series with the other schools, the results not to count in the league percentages and St. Louis not to be a member of the league. This is at best an unsatisfactory arrangement, for, as the four schools are in athletic relations, they should start on an even footing, and let bygones be bygones.

Following is the schedule:

April 27—High School vs. St. Louis.

April 29—Kamehameha vs. High School, at Kamehameha.

May 4—Punahou vs. Kamehameha, at Kamehameha.

May 6—Punahou vs. High School, at Punahou; St. Louis vs. Kamehameha, at St. Louis.

May 11—Kamehameha vs. High School, at Kamehameha; Punahou vs. St. Louis, at St. Louis.

May 13—Punahou vs. Kamehameha, at Punahou.

May 15—Kamehameha vs. St. Louis, at Kamehameha.

May 18—Punahou vs. High School, at Punahou.

May 20—Kamehameha vs. High School, at Makiki; Punahou vs. St. Louis, at Punahou.

May 25—Punahou vs. Kamehameha, at Kamehameha; High School vs. St. Louis, at Punahou.

May 27—Punahou vs. High School, at Punahou; Kamehameha vs. St. Louis, at Kamehameha.

May 29—Punahou vs. St. Louis.

Only two games have been scheduled between High School and St. Louis, but another will be added to the list provided it is necessary to play a rubber.

BIG EIGHT LAY DOWN LAW OF ATHLETICS

CHICAGO, Ill.—Directors of athletics were barred as representatives of the Western Athletic Conference Association recently. Henceforth there will be one eight members on the conference committee, and none of these will be in any way connected with athletic departments of the universities they represent.

A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago and George Elder of the University of Wisconsin are affected.

"Summer baseball" received a severe setback. The compromise offered at the last meeting was defeated. No college athlete will be permitted to play with semi-professional teams.

It was also decided to abolish athletic competition among the first year students with other universities.

IT GROWS HAIR

Here Are Facts We Want You to Prove at Our Risk.

Marvelous as it may seem, Rexall "93" Hair Tonic has grown hair on heads that were once bald. Of course, in none of these cases were the hair roots dead, nor had the scalp taken on a glazed, shiny appearance.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic acts scientifically, destroying the germs which are usually responsible for baldness. It penetrates to the roots of the hair, stimulating and nourishing them. It is a most pleasant toilet requisite, is delicately perfumed, and will not gum or permanently stain the hair.

We want you to get a bottle of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and use it as directed. If it does not relieve scalp irritation, remove dandruff, prevent the hair from falling out and promote an increased growth of hair, and in every way give entire satisfaction, simply come back and tell us, and without question or formality we will hand back to you every penny you paid us for it. Two sizes, 50c. and $1.00. Sold only at our store.—The Rexall Store, Benson, Smith & Co., Ltd., Fort and Hotel streets, Honolulu.

News edition of American-Hawaii, People and Industries, sells for fifteen cents a copy. Wrapped and mailed for twenty-five cents when addresses are supplied to the Bulletin.
