LITERARY ITEMS.

Geo. Routledge & Sons will shortly publish a new work by the Duke of Argyll, author of "The Reign of Law," entitled "Primeval Man; an Examination of Recent Speculations."

W. A. Townsend & Adams have in press, "Lodeby's Canter Lectures on Food," delivered before the Society of Arts, and reproduced in The Chemical News, with introduction and notes by Prof. Charles A. Seely—a new and valuable monograph in an important branch of animal physiology. They also announce "Gun, Rod, and Saddle," personal experiences by Ubique of land and water, from advance sheets.

The movement for the higher education of women is active in Scotland. Last Winter Prof. Masson delivered a course of lectures in Edinburgh, on "English Literature," to ladies, whose ages ranged from about twenty-two to thirty-five. Out of a class of 265, there were 94 who obtained certificates for written essays and answers at an examination. A similar course was delivered at Glasgow, and this year three courses of forty lectures each are going on in in Edinburgh—one by Prof. Masson on "English Literature," another by Prof. Fraser on "Logic and Mental Philosophy," and the third on "Experimental Physics," by Prof. Tait. From such cultivation a harvest of happy results may be reasonably anticipated.

Among the new publications in press by D. Appleton & Co., an attractive volume is "Underground Life; or, Mines and Miners," translated from the French of L. Simonin by H. W. Bristow, F. R. S., in which the coal-fields of Great Britain, Northern France, Belgium, Canada, and the United States, the metalliferous regions of Chili, California, Nevada, Lake Superior, Victoria, and other parts of the world, and the gem-producing tracts of the tropics, are all fully described, with the modes of working them, and the lives and habits of the workers. One hundred and sixty designs on wood, twenty geologically-colored maps, and ten plates of metals and precious stones, made true to nature by the chromo-lithographic art, accompany the text, making the fullest and handsomest work on mining ever published. The same house announces, "Hawaii: the Past, Present, and Future of the Island-Kingdom," by Manley Hopkins, H. B. M. Consul-General at the Sandwich Islands, a history of Polynesia in all its aspects, containing all that readers of every class would probably care to know of the subject, with portraits of the Royal Family, and numerous maps and pictures exhibiting the topography and wild and beautiful scenery of Hawaii; "Letters of a Sentimental Idler," a narrative of boating on the Nile and journeying through the East, by Harry Harewood Leach; "Ramblings through the East-Indian Archipelago," by Albert S. Bickmore; "Life and Letters of Fitz-Greene Halleck," by James Grant Wilson, with unpublished poems by Halleck and Drake, letters from Rogers, Lamb, Poe, and other American and English authors, illustrated with portraits of the poet, and views of his residence and monument at Guilford; a work on the "Philosophy of Language," written in English, by C. Marcel, an eminent French philologist, presenting a series of original and practical views on the art of teaching and acquiring foreign languages.

HOME PICTURES OF ENGLISH POETS,
FOR FIRESIDE AND SCHOOL-ROOM.
One vol., 12mo, 291 pp. Half binding, price $1 50.
The writer of these sketches of our best English Poets, from Chaucer to Burns, has attempted to interest the young student by making of each a story as well as a lesson. It was her aim to introduce these men of genius familiarly to her readers, in order to attract those who might neglect elaborate works on English literature, and lead them to a more thorough and extensive exploration in the same direction.

TILT'S HAND-BOOK OF UTERINE THERAPEUTICS.
Second American edition, revised and amended. One vol., 8vo, pp. 308. Cloth. $3 50.
This issue of Dr. TILT's valuable treatise is not a mere reprint of the last London edition. The numerous additions and emendations made by the author expressly for the Appletons' edition virtually make it a new book.
"Dr. Tilt's 'Hand-Book of Uterine Therapeutics' supplies a want which has often been felt, by bringing together, within moderate compass, the therapeutic agents which are most serviceable in the treatment of the diseases of women; so that the practitioner, with this little work in his hand, is enabled in a short space of time to determine what remedies will best suit the requirements of any individual case. It may, therefore, not only be read with pleasure and instruction, but will also be found very useful as a book of reference."—[The Medical Mirror.
