LITERARY NOTES.

A volume of reminiscences of the late Ole Bull is to be made of materials which the violinist left with his family.

Lord Beaconsfield is writing a new novel, in his enforced political vacation, the title of which will be "Endymion."

M. Alphonse Daudet is preparing a novel for Le Figaro which will have the eccentric title "Tronsseaux et Layettes."

A new and revised edition of Professor Cooke's book, "Religion and Chemistry," is being issued by Charles Scribner's Sons. It has been long out of print.

A series of short papers by Professor Swing on various topics, some of which were read before the Chicago Literary Club, are being published by Jansen, McClurg & Co., and will be called "Club Essays."

Judge Albion W. Tourgee's "Bricks Without Straw," which was published two weeks ago, has been called for at a rate so far exceeding the facilities for manufacturing that the publishers have found it necessary to make a duplicate set of plates, as they were compelled also to do to meet the demand for "A Fool's Errand." The publication of "Bricks Without Straw" has also stimulated the sale of "A Fool's Errand," of which over 100,000 have been sold, and which is now being printed at the rate of 5,000 copies a week.

In his forthcoming work, "The Scientific Basis of Spiritualism," Mr. Epes Sargent takes the ground that natural science is concerned only with the knowledge of realities, that is, of sense-perceptions which can be not only historically but also directly imparted to us and rationally proved; that so far as this view is adhered to, Spiritualism is now a science. But he rules out all unconfirmed "trance utterances," or supposed spirit communications, as not pertaining to his "basis," or even coming within the scope of scientific recognition, except so far as they may give clear proof of supersensual power and intelligence. He selects certain established and daily demonstrable phenomena, about which there is now no dispute among scientific investigators, and makes these the ground for his inductions, as well as the warrant for assuming that other phenomena, equally well attested but not so perfect and unequivocal in their conditions, are analogically confirmed. He maintains that there are certain preter-human facts, as absolutely proved as any facts in other sciences are proved, and that these are veritable facts of science. The pretensions of certain so-called "exposers" that they can produce such phenomena as direct writing and clairvoyance by trick, and to the same way that they are medially produced, Mr. Sargent dismisses as being either an ignorant boast or an intentional deception. The facts of the book he claims he has confirmed by forty years of close attention to this subject and to the cognate phenomena of mesmerism and somnambulism.
