Danger Signals.
Kentucky Editor—Better go easy on Colonel Pireater this issue.
Assistant—Has he made any threats?
Kentucky Editor—No; he hasn't uttered a word. That's what worries me.

All Depends.
"Bread cast on the waters will return some day. Don't you think so, John?"
"Some bread might," replied her husband cautiously. "Some bread would sink."

She Can't Get a Grip.
Young Bachelor—Why on earth do you put oil on your hair, old man? It's such a filthy habit, and—
Middle-Aged Married Man—Wait until you're married, my boy, and then you'll know.

The Reason.
"Why did the ladies in the days of chivalry give their gloves to the knights?"
"I suppose it was to show they had an admirer on hand."

Collectors.
"Of course you must have a watchdog of the treasury."
"Not yet. What we want is a few good shepherd dogs to chase the funds in."

Raising It.
"Why do you go so fast when you take that prospective customer out in your machine?"
"Because he wants speed, and I'm out for the dust."

Sure Proof.
"Mr. Smith, to whom you were talking so much, is a married man."
"Oh, I know that."
"How did you know it?"
"By the way he listened."

A LONG WAY AHEAD.
She—Papa wants me to wait until I am thirty before I get married.
He—If you're like most girls, you will never admit you're thirty.

Better Late Than Never.
"I don't believe in early weddings," said her mother; "it's all too soon."
"I'm quite agreed," her daughter answered; "I'm willing to wed at noon."

Smart Set Comparisons.
"Why should you regard yourself as her social superior? Her family is as distinguished as yours?"
"Yes, but my alimony is much larger."

Fatal to Bachelorhood.
He—Do you think kissing is as dangerous as the doctors say?
She—Well, it has certainly put an end to a good many bachelors, at any rate.

Dissatisfied.
Small Daughter—Dad, did the doctor bring my little sister?
Dad—Yes, dear.
Small Daughter—Dad, would you mind trying another doctor next time?

Gashed.
First Chauffeur—Who was that feller you ran over?
Second Ditto—I guess it must o' been th' glass eater at the vadyville theater. Look at that tire!

Qualifications.
Caller—Pardon me, sir, but is there another artist in this building?
Artist—There is not. There is, however, a man on the fourth floor who paints.

Curious Formation.
"Professor, you seem interested in my jelly cake."
"Yes," said the eminent geologist, "you seldom see such regular and sharply defined strata."

Value of Games to School Children
By W. H. SCHULTZE, Cleveland, Ohio

Do teachers and parents sufficiently realize the great and good influence of contests on young people? Every form of game brings the youthful contestants into public view, where they learn to act with dignity, to think and speak on their feet. This publicity begets confidence. Contestants are not afraid to hear their own voices nor to see their own shadows.

In after life everything worth while has to be contested for, and the trained contestants win life's prizes. The medal winners graduate into pathfinders, leaders of men and women. Baseball, football, harness racing, cards, chess, dancing, running, boxing, skating, acting, sailing, rowing, swimming, debating, reciting, music, art work, singing, shooting, fencing, tennis, billiard, lacrosse, all develop manhood and womanhood enormously, if sanely enjoyed.

The bestowal of the laurel wreath upon one's brow or the pinning of the medal on one's chest is an experience which is ennobling and encouraging. Pity those who never experience this ecstasy. Games develop valuable youthful faculties as nothing else does—memory, the nerves, caution, endurance, bravery, strength, sportsmanlike fairness, sportsmanlike courtesies and application.

Sports indicate a desire for nice apparel and a handsome bearing. The contestant is never a quitter. The chest which is adorned with trophies is not liable to belong to a thief, backbiter or weakling of a y class. No one realizes what it is to win a hard-fought contest in either of the great fields until he finds himself face to face with the test, with a sea of faces looking on.

The moving picture machine will prove of far greater benefit to humanity than a simple amusement and recreation. I believe that in a few years motion picture exhibitions will be a part of every school curriculum. A moving picture machine is not an expensive article, and in schools where expensive laboratories are impossible the most delicate experiments in chemistry and physics, as well as more intricate sciences, can be shown with as good results as though the professor were to stand before the class and give them an actual exhibition.

The possibilities of the camera are almost limitless, and in recent years pictures of bacteria have been produced with ease. By the use of the motion picture experiments with the rarest substances and germs shown only in the largest colleges can be brought to the humblest school and displayed, enabling the students to get a training equal to that of a course in a much better equipped college and at less expense. Lectures accompany the films and are read during the progress of the picture to add to its interest and instructiveness. I am told that the plan has already been tried with great success in some western schools, and I do not doubt that in a few years it will be quite the usual thing.

Training of Child Is Most Important

By MARY E. WYNNE, Boston, Mass.

That the training of the mind and the body of the child is one of society's most important works and that to do this well the home must co-operate with the school, would seem most apparent facts. But a very large proportion of the fathers are so engrossed in getting enough dollars to keep body and soul together that they leave the care of the children wholly in the hands of the mothers.

The crowded tenements afford little opportunity for real home life. Home means merely a place in which to eat and to sleep.

There are hundreds of women like the workingman's wife who said: "I just dreaded Saturdays because the children drove me nearly crazy, but now that a movie picture house has come into our neighborhood I pack the whole five kids off every Saturday and the house is as quiet as on a school day."

In other words, she paid 50 cents a week out of her husband's meager wage to get rid of the sight and sound of her children. Her idea of responsibility to them is to cook for them, to buy their clothes, and when sick to take them to the infirmary.

She represents a large number of parents who think that the chief business of the school is to take the children off their hands for the larger part of the day and to provide a safe place for them to be off the street, but these parents never trouble themselves to know what their children may be learning, nor what habits and ideas they may be forming at school.

With multitudes the struggle for mere existence is so strenuous that they have neither the intelligence nor the time for any thought beyond that struggle. Hence poverty is one cause of parents' indifference to the school.

But a far more reprehensible indifference is often found in parents who have had greater opportunities and whose income gives them a chance to think beyond the everlasting demands of the butcher, the baker and—worst of all—the landlord. The other day one of these well-to-do mothers said, "If I had time I should visit Jack's class while Miss _____ is teaching, for Jack, who has always liked school, this year hates it. But I'm so busy I can't find time."

Then she settled down to embroider her initials on bath towels! So busy she could not get time to find out what influences were being exerted on her boy that were showing themselves in an entirely changed attitude towards his school life.

Near the end of the year she received notice by mail from the teacher that Jack's work, which had steadily grown worse throughout the year, would prevent his promotion. Jack would have to take two years to do one year's work. The irate mother now found time immediately to visit the teacher, and expressed vehemently her surprise and indignation that her boy, who had always been considered "smart" by his other teachers, should have done so poorly with her.

When the teacher could get a word in edgewise the mother learned that this year Jack had chosen for his intimate associates a group of idle, cigarette-smoking boys whose influence had been most baneful.

"Surely you know your boy's playmates and have seen his bimonthly reports, for here they are, bearing your signature." Then the poor mother knew that her boy had lied to her when he said his teacher did not send home reports, and had, moreover, forged her signature. Had she or the father taken pains to visit the school early in the year all this might have been averted.

An intelligent interest in the child's welfare would lead the mother to visit in a friendly way each teacher under whose influence her child comes. Since so little of this is done, one must conclude that another large proportion of parents are stupidly indifferent to the importance of the school upon the lives of their children.

WASTED BID FOR SYMPATHY.

"My dear," said Mr. Trimball, impressively, "I read in this newspaper that a woman locked her husband out of the house because he came home late. He climbed up on the roof to sleep there and the next morning was found dead."

"Well?" queried Mrs. Trimball.
"You've locked me out several times, you know."
"What if I did? You were in such a condition that you couldn't climb up on a footstool, so your story loses its point."

His Reason.
"This day is the anniversary of the one on which the girl I was madly in love with refused to marry me."
"Is that why you remember it with regret?"
"No; that is why I am giving thanks."

PROFESSIONAL POINT.

"Why did yer send dat new member 'trough de transton to get de swag?"
"Why, he used to be a baseball player."

"What has dat to do wid it?"
"Why, I t'ought der wouldn't be much trouble in him reachin' de plate."

It All Depends.
If a man owes you money,
He'll often forget;
But if he owes you a grudge,
He'll remember, you bet.

An Innovation.
"But why did you make the hero of our drama bald-headed?" queried the fair female with the ingrowing curiosity.
"So his hair couldn't turn white in a single night," explained the budding dramatist.

Consistently Worthless.
"My boy, I must congratulate you on your consistency."
"Thank you, sir, I er—"
"Yes, sir, you've worked here three weeks and you haven't done anything right yet."

The Real Thing.
"Is Jayamith what you would call a clever man?" asked the one.
"He is," answered the other. "Why, he can pick up the best umbrella in a rack and walk off as unconcerned as if he really owned it."

Clever Deduction.
"Does Wombat own or rent his house?"
"Rents it."
"How do you know?"
"I know, all right. He scratches matches on the paint."

Underground.
Wife—You are very fussy about your food, Henry. My poor, dear, first husband used to eat uncomplainingly everything I cooked for him.
Husband—Yes, and look where he is now.

Judicious Estimate.
"Bliggins takes himself very seriously."
"He's right. He has gotten himself into so many different kinds of trouble that he is perfectly excusable for being afraid of himself."

EXCELLENT LUCK.

The Hunter—I can't imagine what the matter with me today. I haven't had a bit of luck.
The Old Settler—Yes, ye bet, young fellow, ye just missed me by about six feet a few minutes ago.

One Consolation.
The lady smoked a cigarette.
Away our tears we wiped.
And said, "It might be wasser yet.
(She might have smoked a pipe!)"

Yes, Bony.
"Well, you would marry her. Now you can't repeat at lecture."
"If I could do that I wouldn't be sticking, but she is so dappled extraordinary that I don't have any letters."

ITCHING ECZEMA IS DRIED RIGHT UP WITH SULPHUR

Use like cold cream to subdue irritation and clear the skin.
Any breaking out or irritation on the face, arms, legs and body when accompanied by itching or when the skin is dry and feverish, can be readily overcome by applying a little cold sulphur, says a noted dermatologist.

It informs us that cold sulphur instantly allays the angry itching and irritation and soothes and heals the eczema right up leaving the skin clean and smooth. Cold sulphur has occupied a secure position for many years in the treatment of eczema and is a because of its parasitic-killing property. Nothing has ever been found to take its place in treating the irritable and inflammatory skin affections. While not always establishing a permanent cure, it never fails to subside the itching, irritation and drive the eczema away, and it is often years later before any eruption again appears.

Those troubled with eczema from a druggist can obtain cold sulphur, which is applied to the affected parts in the same manner as an ordinary cold cream. It is very inexpensive and the prompt relief afforded, particularly in itching eczema, makes it a very valuable.
