LITERARY NOTES.

A paper on "Autumn in England," written by Mrs. Lillie and illustrated by Alfred Parsons and A. C. Corbould, will appear in the October Harper.

Robert Browning and Walter Besant are members of a committee formed to arrange an exhibition in London next year to illustrate the history of the Jews in England. The objects exhibited will include relics and records of the expulsion and pre-expulsion period, portraits, pictures illustrating Jewish family life and ceremonies; pamphlets and books bearing upon Anglo-Jewish history; synagogue appurtenances, Jewish seals, medals, tokens, rings and coins; ancient and modern Hebrew music, etc. The committee is undenominational and distinguished.

The last glimpse of Ouida is in a square cinque cento villa framed in acacias. There is a reception on the steps and in the hall by a dozen dogs of all sorts and sizes, in the drawing-room by a lady, clad in sweeping robes of pale pink satin. It is 4:30 p. m. Pink satin cap, pink satin shoes, red silk stockings, and a huge red silk sash; vague consciousness of a conviction that the gorgeous disregard for the Possible that pervades the books of the lady in flesh color pervades her surroundings also.

"Sanford and Merton at Sea" is the saucy heading which The Pall Mall Gazette gives to its review of the book written by the sons of the Prince of Wales. The critic concludes his notice by saying that "if 'Eddy' remembers one-tenth of it when he comes to the throne he will have the advantage of most of his subjects."

Dr. Houler, the German scholar who discovered the Sallust fragments last winter in the National Library at Paris, is only twenty seven years old. He was sent to Paris by a learned society of Vienna to collate some Latin MSS. there, and found that one of the palimpsests contained some decipherable writing beneath that which he was reading. By the aid of powerful lenses and endless patience—working often fourteen hours a day—he made out successfully many of the lost pages of the old Roman's history.

Commander Cameron, the distinguished African traveller, has written a book by hours which is said to be as thrilling as Mr. Stevenson's "Treasure Island." It is to be called "The Cruise of the Black Prince Privateer, by Quartermaster Hawkins."
