GENERAL SESSIONS COURT AT WALHALLA

Judge Sease of Spartanburg Presiding—Many Cases Disposed of Wednesday.

Walhalla, July 7.—Court of general sessions opened on Monday morning. Judge T. S. Sease, of Spartanburg, presiding, with Solicitor K. P. Smith, and Stenographer C. Y. Smith, in their accustomed places.

The grand jury has been busy passing upon the indictments handed to them by the solicitor. They will probably finish this part of their work this afternoon.

The citizens of Oconee county are very much pleased with the way Judge Sease dispatches business.

Due to the recent heavy rains, the farmers are unable to work their crops and for this reason, the attendance upon court is unusually large.

Mr. Samuel Wilson, one of the largest land-owners and wealthiest men of Pickens county has been attending court here this week as a witness.

Dr. D. M. Ramsay, of Greenville, has been spending several days in Walhalla.

BRITISH RAILROAD EMPLOYES PROTECTED

Government Will See That Enlisted Men Retain Same Grades Held Before War.

London, July 7.—The British ministry has opened the National Union of railwaymen that at the end of hostilities the railwaymen serving with the armed forces will obtain jobs equal to those gave up. At the same time, J. H. Thomas, M. P., secretary of the union, says he is extremely uneasy over the problem of women railway workers.

"I am profoundly convinced that you have to face the fact that female labor has come to stay. Therefore we have got to make up our minds upon one or two things. First, what grades would it be dangerous for female labor to be engaged in; second, whatever grades that we have secured for particular grades by years of agitation. What we have to say is that no woman's labor is to be made the means of reducing the status of any grade in the railway service."

According to the speaker, there are certain classes of railway work which women are unable to perform, and women are not proving satisfactory in all the positions that have been opened for them.

In short there were two courses open to the unions—either to refuse to allow the experiment of women workers altogether, as has been done in some places by the streetcar men, or to devote the union's energies to insisting upon the maintenance of the standard of wages.

Most of the speakers favored the latter procedure, urging that "while the trade unionist cannot, without stultifying his own principles, protest against female labor, he has every right to protest against female labor, which is merely cheap labor under an alias, and it is in the interest of the country that he should so protest."

The only government department which has made any wholesale effort to avail itself of the large amount of female labor at its disposal to take the place of men in military service, is the postoffice. This department now has 3,000 new women employes in the various branches of its work throughout the country.

Of the 170,000 men employed by the postoffice before the war, 37,000 have joined the army. In the rural districts women have been employed in a limited way as letter carriers for some years past; they have now been introduced into some of the small towns and cities. Other places which are being opened to women are those of the mail sorters and messengers.

Girl telegraph messengers, mounted on bicycles, are gradually taking the places of the boy messengers, and a great deal of the postoffice's telegraph work is being done by young women. Women clerks and accountants have been introduced for the first time into the London general postoffice.

On the authority of a high postal official, it is stated that the reports from all quarters are to the effect that the work of the women who have been engaged to replace men has been extremely well done. "They work quickly and accurately, and they are very conscientious," says one report.

SENECA PREPARES FOR FARMER'S CHAUTAUQUA

Many Features of Interest to Farmers Embraced in Program—Big Crowd Expected.

Seneca, July 7.—A farmer's chautauqua? What is it? That is the question that hundreds and thousands of people all through upper South Carolina are asking. It has been heralded broadcast over the country that two of these meetings are to be held in two Piedmont Carolina towns, and many people have their curiosity aroused to know just what they are.

A farmer's chautauqua is the adaptation of the "chautauqua idea"—inspirational instruction—to the practical needs and problems of the rural community. It is the enlargement of the old idea of the farmers institute, with the addition of some of the elements of the county fair.

The program embraces three distinct phases, platform addresses, school work, and exhibits and demonstrations. The addresses are rendered by prominent men in public life and those who have made a special study of farm needs and conditions.

The school work includes practical instruction by experts in all the subjects that pertain to agricultural development, and rural home and community improvement. It embraces, for the men, such subjects as soil improvement, live stock raising, good roads and marketing; for the women and girls, such subjects as domestic science and art, home decoration and sanitation, home gardening and canning, the care and feeding of babies and nursing of the sick; for the boys, instruction in elementary agriculture, corn and big club work and athletics.

The subjects will not be taught by novices or and a dry as dust way, but by practical people in a living and practical way. The exhibits come from two sources, the machinery and seed houses and the surrounding section. And the requirement of each exhibit is that it must teach some useful lesson.

Plans are being made to hold one of these chautauquas at Seneca, July 22 to the 25th and at Williamston from the 28th to the 30th. Both of these towns are making preparations for the entertainment of thousands. A man who is familiar with this movement and with farmers meetings all over the country has said that one of these meetings will be the biggest farmers meeting ever held in this section.

The Seneca people say that they are going to claim this distinction, while the Williamston people think that it will go to them. The only way to determine the question, possibly, will be for those who are interested in it to attend both. They will be different in many respects while similar in others.

"In the summer of 1888 I had a very severe attack of cholera morbus. Two physicians worked over me from four a. m. to 6 p. m. without giving me any relief and then told me they did not expect me to live; that I had best telegraph for my family. Instead of doing so, I gave the hotel porter fifty cents and told him to buy me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and take no substitute. I took a double dose according to directions and went to sleep after the second dose. At five o'clock the next morning I was called by my mother and took a train for my next stopping point, a well man, but feeling rather shaky from the severity of the attack," writes H. W. LINER SAXONIA NOT BLOWN UP

morning. Wireless warnings were at once sent broadcast over the Atlantic from the eastern seaboard advising the Saxonia and Philadelphia to steer toward each other.

The Philadelphia's captain replied: "All's well." The Saxonia has not yet replied. It is believed the Saxonia is beyond the zone of wireless communication.

At both the Cunard and American line offices it was stated today that it would be virtually impossible for anyone to pass the lines of guards at the piers and place explosives aboard the vessels. The Saxonia carried 324 passengers and the Philadelphia 611.

In a letter Holt said he was not sure on which liner he placed the dynamite.

The warning of the destruction of the liner, uncovered after his death, was a fitting climax to the dramatic events of Holt's life for the last few days. He confessed in placing the bomb in the Washington capitol on Friday and was caught while trying to assassinate Mr. Morgan on Saturday.

His sensational suicide last night and his positive identification today as Erich Muegter, the alleged wife murderer, formed a remarkable series of developments.
