LONDON, September 30, Evening. — Turpentine quiet.

FRANKFORT, September 30.—Bonds 96½.

The following advertisement, which appears daily in the London papers, is very much too good to be lost. It is so admirably calculated to instil comfort and encouragement into the minds of intending travelers who have a partiality for keeping their limbs and lives in tact: "In consequence of the daily increase of accidents by railway, the public are earnestly requested to call at the studios of the Blank School of Photography to have their portraits taken, that they may have some memento for departed friends." It is evidently inserted in all seriousness; but the exquisite satire might nearly almost penetrate the thick skull of a railway authority.

An honest rustic went into the shop of a Quaker to buy a hat, for which twenty-five shillings were demanded. He offered twenty shillings. "As I live," said the Quaker, "I can not afford to give it to thee at that price." "As you live," exclaimed the countryman, "then live more moderately, and be hanged to you." "Friend," said the Quaker, "thou shall have the hat for nothing. I have sold hats for twenty years, and my trick was never found out until now."

Here are some of the campaign mottoes used by the Virginia Democrats. They look familiar: "Do you want your daughter to marry a negro?" and that ever famous appeal of the Democratic women, "Fathers and brothers, save us from negro equality!" Still another was "Virginia for white Virginians!"

MONETARY.

OFFICE OF THE DAILY REPUBLICAN,
TUESDAY EVENING, September 30, 1873.

We have no further improvement to notice in the money market than a more cheerful feeling, increasing confidence, and a material shrinkage in the margin between the market rates for currency and certified checks. We also noticed greater assurance that the lock on exchange would be removed even sooner than has been anticipated, and that business will then resume its usual channels. At the opening dealers asked ⅝@¾ ⅌ cent premium for currency, by noon it had declined to ⅝@⅝, and toward the close it was quoted at 4 but could hardly have been sold at over 2. The decline at New York precipitated the decline here, which was also aided by the falling off in the demand and an increase in the supply. The demand for discounts continued fair in bank, but we noticed lighter offerings outside. Rates, however, are still regarded as nominal, and we repeat our previous figures merely for the purpose of reference, as follows: First class paper with collaterals 1¼ ⅌ month; without 1¾@—. A1 4½@5 and second class 7@—. First class mortgage paper still rates 10 ⅌ cent ⅌ annum, and second grade 12.

Gold opened at New York at 112¾ and closed at 111¾, but our market continued too unsettled to admit of regular quotations. The only sales reported were $ 000 at 113, and $6500 at 113¼. There was a great scarcity of cash gold, and some importers were unable to obtain enough to pay duties.

No sales of silver were reported, and none for export quotations. Last week American half dollars were quoted at 108@109.

Foreign exchange continued unsettled, but with more steadiness than yesterday. The sales embraced $ 500 bill of lading at —, and $4000 bill of lading and clear at 114@115.

We heard of no sales of francs, at least none that we could authenticate.

At the close sterling was quoted nominal at 114@115 for bill of lading and A1 clear and 116@117 for bank, and francs at 4.95@4.90 for private and 4.85@4.80 for bank.

We heard of no sales of domestic exchange of any moment. New York sight was extremely scarce and brokers found themselves unable to fill even the smallest orders. Several houses who had made arrangements for remittances of bank checks were compelled to defer them to another day.

The stock market continued stagnant, and we did not hear of a sale. Quotations of all shares are entirely nominal.

There was some inquiry for city gold bearing 7 ⅌ cents, but we did not hear of a sale.

We heard of no sales of city appropriation certificates, or Metropolitan Police or State warrants, quotations for all of which are nominal.

COMMERCIAL.

TUESDAY EVENING, September 30, 1873.

COTTON—The sales to-day summed up 1950 bales at a further advance of ⅛@¼c in low middling and strict low middling, and ¼@¾c in all other grades. We raise our quotations accordingly, and give also the Exchange figures, which are for average lists according with its types, while ours present the proper range of the market for average lists, but with the outside figures for low middling, good ordinary and ordinary given as the outside for strict of those grades.

The demand was active throughout the day, and the sales would no doubt have exceeded even the liberal amount noted above had they not been restricted by light supplies, several factors having covered up their samples. In one or two cases not more than a fourth of their recent receipts were offered, planters ordering the rest to be held for fuller prices. The demand ran mostly on low middling and strict low middling, and was principally for Havre and the North. Among the sales we noticed low middling at 16⅞c early, 16¾ and 17c, and strict low middling at 17¼ and 17½c.

The sales for the past three days sum up 4200 bales (1400 on Saturday, 450 yesterday and 2350 to-day), against 2500 for the corresponding time last week, and 2700 the week before.

Receipts since Friday evening 6355 bales, embracing 134 from other delivery ports (all from Mobile), and 6221 proper, against 4606 proper last week, and 10,906 last year. Total proper since August 31, 224,224 bales, against 59,900 last year—decrease 27,676.

There have been no exports. For all ports see statement below.

The amount on shipboard not cleared, going on board and engaged for shipment was set down at the opening this morning at 7000 bales, embracing 3000 for Liverpool, 3000 for Havre and 1000 for the North, which, when deducted from the stock on hand by our running statement last evening leaves 11,409 bales to represent the quantity at the landing and in presses unsold or awaiting orders.

The Exchange reports: "Sales 1950 bales. Demand active."
