An Injunction.

ST. LOUIS, October 7.—The State Superintendent of Insurance yesterday filed a petition in the circuit court asking for an injunction to restrain the St. Louis Mutual Life Insurance Company from transacting any further business, and especially from issuing any new policies, reinsuring any of its risks, or paying out any money whatever. The petition further asks for the appointment of a receiver, and for a decree dissolving the company and winding up its affairs.

The petition is based upon the fact, as the superintendent alleges, that an examination of the affairs of the company disclose its liabilities to exceed its assets by $904,955, exclusive of $100,000 capital stock. A writ of injunction was granted, returnable on the eleventh.

Regatta.

The amateur regatta came off this afternoon. The atmosphere was raw and chilly, and a heavy breeze blowing. George S. Walsh, of the New York and Harlem Rowing Club, was judge, and James Watson umpire. The commencement of the race was announced for two o'clock, but owing to the high wind the start was not made until half past three, when the breeze lulled considerably. The single scull races, which were to lead off, were withdrawn, and will be rowed to-morrow.

The course was from Falls Bridge to Rockland Landing, a distance of one and a quarter miles. Of the four-oared shells, the Analostan, of Washington City, and Friendship, of New York, were entered. The race was won by the Analostan. Time, nine minutes and three-quarters of a second. The Friendship, while in the lead, run into a canal boat, and had a hole stove in her and crew thrown into the water. The crew were picked up, but too late to contest the balance of the course.

The second race was for four-oared shells. Vespers, Quaker City and Crescent, all of Philadelphia, entered. The race was given to the Quaker City by reason of the Crescent fouling, and the Vespers not paying attention to the judges' order.

In the third race the Nassau, of New York, and Argonata, of Bergen Point, were entered. This race was rowed under adverse circumstances, it being dark when the word to go was given. The Nassau got off the course, which threw her back some five or six lengths, and the Argonata was declared the winner. Time, eight minutes and sixteen and three-quarters seconds.

An Irish preacher once broke off the thread of his discourse and said to his hearers, "My dear friends, let me tell you that I am half through my sermon, but seeing your impatience, I will say that the remaining half is not more than a quarter as long as that you have heard."

The Financial Crisis.

Under Providence, the financial crisis is to our advantage, and may be turned to the resuscitation of Southern prosperity and the advancement of every interest of New Orleans. Were our banking institutions but to resolve upon some course of co-operative action called for so opportunely by this crisis, our commercial wants and the producers of the incoming crops, a year would not elapse ere the resuscitation of Southern prosperity might permanently be inaugurated, and our city, with its annual receipt of cotton, and other produce of nearly equal value, be made the basis of specie payment, and New Orleans the great financial centre and the most solidly prosperous city of this continent.

Estimating the cotton crop to be worth annually, in gold, here at our port, say $3,000,000 to $4,000,000, two-thirds of which we can almost reasonably expect to control and handle, what contingency can arise to prevent us controlling the crisis, and turning it to the recovery of our lost prosperity? To take advantage of the events now about to culminate in general ruin and loss of confidence and security, prompt and wise action on the part of our banking institutions might be made incalculably beneficial.

Could not the directors organize their residents into a syndicate, will full powers to act, raise a fund upon the aggregate credit of the banks in the syndicate, equal say to the respective capital of each bank? Could not the syndicate command gold enough to initiate the movement of bringing and selling the cotton crop in gold? To make the syndicated capital safe and paying as an institution, it would simply have to advance say fifty per cent on the market value of the cotton, but only when it was stowed safely in warehouse here.

Would not an institution of this kind be the irresistible means of attracting larger shipments of produce and goods hither? and could not this system of advancing be made to break up the vicious practice of advancing, on crops to the planters and speculators before either were even planted, by the banks? and would not the "cotton question" necessarily become our subject, to be controlled to an advantage instead of a disadvantage and loss? With proper foresight and energy the cotton supply can be made our financial "king," commanding not only golden obeisance, but making the exchanges and keeping the profits to the home producers to its fullest extent.

Instead of invoking doubtful legislation to obtain Fort St. Philip canals, railroads, etc., make use of your natural resources and take advantage of the providential legislation which is developing itself in general suspension, failures and ruin throughout the land in consequence of our vitiated system of paper money.

Where are the brains, the position and moral courage to give these rambling ideas a compact and active form? There are, in the opinion of the writer, few men in our community with greater comprehension of ideas, experience and an unswerving integrity and better qualified than modest, but deserving Thomas Layton, Esq. G.

A Fugitive in Duplicate—Talt Floyd in Arrest in Two Parishes.

The reward of $2500 offered by Governor Kellogg, for the arrest of the murderers of Thomas Archibald, is inducing many to keep their eyes open for the man Talt Floyd, who has been identified as one of the murderers, and whose description has been generally published. A party supposed to be Floyd is now lying in the Donaldsonville jail, while Opelousas claims the honor of having the culprit in arrest. The Donaldsonville Chief of the fourth instant says:

Last Saturday evening two meanly dressed white men, one of whom wore no shoes, passed the residence of Mr. Alexander S. Landry, on the left bank of the river, some five miles above Donaldsonville, and their appearance attracted Mr. Landry's attention, and caused him to think they much resembled the description given in the newspapers of Talt Floyd and Lewis Robinson, the murderers of Thomas Archibald, Esq., of Richland parish. The wandering outcasts stopped at Mr. Benjamin Allen's store, and requested lodgings for the night, which were afforded them in an outhouse near the store. Before retiring they bargained with Mr. Allen to go to work on his place next day.

Mr. Landry visited the store that evening to procure a copy of the Leader containing the description of Floyd and Robinson, but the paper could not be found, and he went home again without intimating the object for which he desired the journal. Returning in the morning he discovered the desired number of the Leader, and a second perusal of the description of the murderers convinced him that they were the very men who passed his house the evening before. He learned with surprise that the tramps had slept in an adjoining out-house, but had risen at early dawn and fled away.

Acquainting Sheriff Hill of his supposed discovery, the two set out on horseback in pursuit of the suspicious characters, whom they overtook at the store of Mr. T. C. Hills, on the old Waterloo plantation, and captured without resistance being offered. The prisoners were brought to Donaldsonville and lodged in the parish jail, where they now lie awaiting an answer from a letter written by Mr. Landry to the sheriff of Richland parish.

Mr. Landry informs us that the men did not give a straightforward account of themselves in response to his inquiries, but in several instances made contradictory statements, which indicates that they have been guilty of some rascality or other, whether they are the parties their captor supposes or not. While we admit the possibility of one of them being Talt Floyd, we are rather skeptical as regards the other, for as Lewis Robinson is under arrest and lodged in jail in Richland parish, we can not conceive the possibility of his presence in Ascension.

It is certainly a remarkable coincidence that two men should be found together who answer so perfectly the description of the Richland murderers, for all who have seen the prisoners agree as to the resemblance; The one who is thought to be Talt Floyd is about twenty-five years of age, weighs 130 pounds, is about five feet nine inches high, dark hair, slightly stoop-shouldered, thin breast, swarthy complexion, a visage that may have been thin once but is now bloated from the effects of whisky drinking, and Mr. Landry informs us that he has a fine voice and the spasmodic motion of the head in talking that is given as one of the peculiarities of Talt Floyd. He gives his name as Jack Mason.

The other prisoner is apparently about the same age as his companion, weighs nearly 150 pounds, is five feet ten inches in height, has reddish hair and a light freckled complexion, is slow spoken and reserved. He is evidently an Irishman, and says his name is John McCarthy.

The Opelousas Courier of the fourth contains the following:

On Tuesday evening last Deputy Sheriff C. J. Thompson went to Washington, six miles from this place, and arrested and brought here a young man calling himself R. Y. Cooper, but who is supposed to be Talt Floyd, one of the villains accused of the murder of Thomas Archibald, of Franklin parish, on the second ultimo, and for whose arrest a large reward is offered.

Cooper was examined by Justice Veazie, on Wednesday, and was then remanded to jail for want of sufficient evidence to warrant his release, and to await further developments. His story is far from clear or satisfactory. He passed through here the day of his arrest with a fine horse and a very good buggy. While here he offered to swap the buggy, which is worth at least $150, for a saddle and $20.

This looked suspicious, and, taken in connection with other suspicious circumstances and the fact that his personal appearance tallied somewhat with the description given by the newspapers of one of the murderers of the unfortunate Archibald, suggested the propriety of his arrest, and he had scarcely reached Washington before the officers of the law were upon him. The general belief is that whoever he might be, he stole the horse and buggy.

In a few days we will probably know more about the matter.

MONETARY.

OFFICE OF THE DAILY REPUBLICAN, TUESDAY EVENING, October 7, 1873.

We noticed a much better feeling in the market to-day, and heard fewer of the mischievous rumors which were circulated yesterday. Everything indicated increasing confidence in the ability of our banks. The long list of signatures to the published declaration that they are, as they have been from the commencement, ready to receive certified checks at par for cotton and merchandise, at the lowest cash prices, had a decidedly favorable influence. There is no surer way of depreciating those checks and raising the premium on currency than to press them on the market, and true policy indicates never to offer them, unless in absolute necessity.

We have no change to notice in the money market. The banks still confine their business mostly to renewals. The demand for discounts continues strong, the offerings on the street are liberal. We consequently are unable to notice any abatement in rates. First class paper is still quoted at 2@2½ ₱ cent per month, and is occasionally done higher. Other grades are entirely nominal. First class mortgage paper is now quoted 10@11 ₱ cent ₱ annum, and second grade at 12@—.

Currency opened at 5@6 ₱ cent premium, and closed with a less demand than yesterday at 4@5.
