THE OREGON IN BAD WEATHER.

UNABLE TO ENTER THE GOLDEN GATE, SHE WAS OBLIGED TO PUT TO SEA AGAIN.

San Francisco, Oct. 31.—On her trip up from Monterey the battle-ship Oregon yesterday morning experienced her severest test. After leaving Monterey a stiff breeze sprung up and the swell became quite heavy, causing the vessel to roll considerably. Captain Howison remained on the bridge throughout the night anxiously watching the ship's behavior. The man-of-war arrived off the Heads about 5 o'clock yesterday morning and beat about waiting for daylight. When it came there was a heavy swell on the bar and a land fog, and the captain decided not to attempt to go in. He bore away for Drake's Bay, and about 9 o'clock cast anchor pretty well inshore.

The Oregon was heeled over during the night on her cruise up the coast from 18 degrees port to 21 degrees starboard. The pendulum dial of the ship shows only 30 degrees for rolling, beyond which it is dangerous for her to roll.

When the anchor was cast in Drake's Bay the ship got into the trough of a heavy ground swell. She began to roll more violently than ever. She started at about 10 degrees and in four or five rolls she keeled over to 29 degrees. What Captain Howison thought of this state of affairs is shown by the fact that he ordered the anchor heaved again and turned about for the open sea and Point Reyes as soon as he could. The sea was coming over the decks fore and aft. The brig-à-brac in the staterooms, which had to be picked up several times during the night, was now turned into a heap on the decks and bumped violently against the bulkheads. Those at breakfast were obliged to cling to their chairs and tables. In the junior officers' mess tables and chairs skated over the floors to the imminent injury of every one who attempted to hold or stay them.

About 3 o'clock the battle-ship squared away for the Golden Gate. She took the north channel under the guidance of Executive Officer Drake, who has surveyed the channel, and dropped anchor at Sausalito at 4:25 o'clock in the afternoon. Her fires were hauled, and she will remain there indefinitely, indulging in practice drills, battalion drills and torpedo attacks at night before she is ready for the official inspection board.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK AN EXPRESS TRAIN.

Newport, Penn., Oct. 31.—Another attempt was made at about 2 o'clock this morning to wreck the Southwestern Express (westbound) on the Pennsylvania Railroad at Rope Ferry, near this place. Samuel Wyland, a former employe of the company, has been arrested, charged with the crime.

SCHOONER BLOWN UP BY HER OWN CARGO.

Salem, Mass., Oct. 31.—The schooner Emma J. Gott, from New-York, was wrecked by an explosion in the harbor this morning. Eleazer Panker, the cook, was badly burned about the face and hands, and another of the crew was struck by flying wreckage and cut about the head. The schooner was loaded with cases of dynamite and gasoline in tanks. She had discharged part of the dynamite here, the rest being consigned to Boston. The cause of the explosion is supposed to have been vapor from the gasoline, as when the cook lighted his fire the explosion followed. The whole side of the vessel was blown out, and she was thrown on her beam ends and filled. A tug was secured and sent to the aid of the wrecked schooner, which will be beached and unloaded. Captain Hunt, his nine-year-old son and three men were aboard the vessel when the explosion occurred, and their escape from more serious results was remarkable.

NOT EVEN A TRACE LEFT.

A MAGAZINE EXPLODES AND A HORSE, A WAGON AND A MAN DISAPPEAR.

Geneva, Ind., Oct. 31.—The Empire magazine, situated half a mile northwest of this city, exploded at 3:45 o'clock this morning. Seven hundred quarts of nitro-glycerine which were stored there tore the magazine to atoms and wrecked scores of houses in this city. Hundreds of windows were blown out, walls were cracked and chimneys were torn down. It is reported that a wagon was unloading at the magazine at the time of the explosion. The rumor has not been positively verified, but it is believed that such is the case. Not a trace of wagon, horse or driver can be found.

A remarkable fact is that the Hercules Torpedo Company's magazine, situated only seventy-five yards from the Empire magazine, did not explode. Twenty-five hundred quarts of explosives were stored in the Hercules magazine, where a wall was blown in.
