HE HAS TWO WIVES

Will Martin's Disgraceful Conduct at Otsego.

CASE FOR PITCH AND PLUMAGE

Married to Two Wives Who Consent to Live in Shameful Polygamy—Officers Camping on His Trail.

OTSEGO, Mich., Feb. 11.—Otsego people armed with a rope and tar and feathers have for the past forty-eight hours been in search of Will Martin, whose disgraceful matrimonial experiences are the talk of the county.

About seven years ago Martin married an Otsego girl, and since that time has become the father of three children. All appeared to be moving smoothly until about a year ago, when Martin became enamored of an Allegan woman by the name of Lewis. For a time he lived in Kalamazoo with both women, or until the citizens drove him out. Then he returned to Otsego.

While in Kalamazoo he began divorce proceedings against his legal wife, she consenting to it, and agreeing to work for her board so as to be near the man who had treated her so unnaturally, and to provide for her children. But before the proceedings had been obtained Martin was married to the Lewis woman by the Rev. M. McKee of Allegan, and by his failure to pay for his marriage certificate it was learned that he was living with both wives, married to both, and had no divorce cut from one pending.

The officers in Allegan looked up the records and started to arrest him, but he got wind of their plans and has vanished.

DETROIT MEN OPPOSE IT.

They Will Remonstrate Against the Anti-Option Bill.

DETROIT, Feb. 10.—The committee appointed by the Detroit board of trade to prepare a remonstrance against the Washburn anti-option bill, now pending in congress, has prepared a letter, which will be sent to every congressman from Michigan, with a request that he use his influence against the passage of the bill. The letter says:

"The passage of the bill would affect the interests of the country adversely. This system of trading has been in vogue for twenty-five years or more, and every farmer can now go to his nearest buyer and contract any portion of his crop for any delivery he sees fit at a good market price, and if done away with he would be obliged to sell to consumers or exporters."

Other objections which the committee makes to the bill are that it largely restricts trade in the products of the soil to the producer and consumer, which decreases the number of buyers. This consequently decreases the demand and values and suppresses free competition, which always sustains values. The milling interest desires to control the wheat market, and depress prices for selfish purposes. It kills speculation, which, when not excessive, is generally regarded as a healthy factor in trade.

IT IS A BUSINESS MATTER

Coulter Confesses to Murdering His Father at Sault Ste. Marie.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Feb. 11.—Coulter, the self-confessed murderer of his father, was arrested on a charge of perjury in the circuit court this morning. He pleaded guilty. Judge Steere asked him if he understood the nature of the charge against him.

"Yes," he replied, "it is a business matter between God and me for eternity."

He was remanded to jail to await sentence. Coulter is undoubtedly crazy. He says that his soul is in heaven and that he cares not what becomes of his carcass.

EXTRADITION DENIED.

Governor Winans Revokes the Warrant for Schlesinger's Arrest.

LANSING, Feb. 11.—The adjourned hearing in the Schlesinger extradition case was held in the executive chamber today, occupying the entire day. At the conclusion and after the testimony and arguments, Governor Winans concluded that there was no evidence that tended to show the respondent a fugitive from justice, and the warrant for his arrest was revoked. The testimony clearly showed there was a conspiracy on the part of the New York creditors to secure his return to New York for the purpose of effecting a settlement.

To Hence Up the Road.

LANSING, Feb. 11.—The Continental Trust company of New York have sent a representative here to superintend the improvements upon the electric street railway. A new power house will be erected and new rails laid over the whole line as soon as the weather will permit. It is proposed to make it one of the best equipped roads in the state. The trust company a short time since secured a controlling interest in the road with above result.

SUPREME COURT CASES.

General State News.

Will Martin, 35 years old, and a cripple, has damaged tar and feathers and various other accompaniments by going from Otsego, where he was expected to get the example of Solomon in the number of wives and mistresses. He had apartments at the Tompkins house with an Allegan female, while his deserted wife roomed contentedly next in the same hotel. It is alleged that he married the second woman before his divorce from the first was granted, and if the officers find him he will have to face three charges—perjury, bigamy and adultery.

The young man who partakes of hospitality on invitation from his best girl, may be playing with fire, at least that is what young Loesing of Kingston thinks. He won the heart and hand of a village belle against her parents' wishes, and they are now suing him for twenty-four days' board at seven meals while he was courting her.

Reports to the state board of health show influenza, neuralgia, rheumatism and bronchitis in the order named causing the most sickness in Michigan during the week ending February 6. Diphtheria was reported at thirty-four places, scarlet fever at thirty-nine, typhoid fever at twenty-three and measles at ten.

Anna McIntosh of Saginaw, claims to have been severely injured by being struck by a train on the Flint & Pere Marquette railroad December 17. She says that the track was imperfectly lighted and the gates were not lowered in time. She wants $10,000 to enable her to spend the remainder of her days in comfort.

George W. Stearns, one of the publishers of the Coldwater Republican, died Wednesday of inflammation of the lungs. He was 74 years of age, and had been associated with his son-in-law, A. J. Aldrich, in the publication of the Republican about fifteen years.

Conrad Winterstein, 13 years old, attempted to cross the track in front of an approaching train at Saginaw Wednesday while going to school. The pilot struck him and threw him thirty feet. Death was instantaneous.

Two boys stole a ride on a Lake Shore train near Carrollton the other night. One of them named Ed. Winstrom jumped off to escape the conductor. He struck on his head and was dead when found.

William McKay, who stole $140 from his old uncle at Ewen, Ontahogan county, will have ten years in prison for repentance. Ten years of bondage for $140 is mighty small compensation.

Barefooted burglars helped themselves to shoes and $3 in cash at Soow's shoe store in Jackson Wednesday night. They were bold burglars, too, and operated early in the evening.

SCIENTIFIC NOTES.

RECENT calculations show that the sun's light is 600,000 times that of the full moon.

AN interesting photograph of the heavens, which is being made in Paris, will show over 60,000,000 stars.

RECENT experiments in Queensland have shown that mother-of-pearl shells can be made to produce pearls artificially.

A MAHOGANY plant has been successfully grown in the university of Pennsylvania. Hitherto it has been found impossible to grow this plant away from the ocean.

REGUL, the magnificent star of the first magnitude in the constellation of Orion, has recently been discovered by astronomers to be one of the most distant stars in the celestial vault.

A VALUABLE antiseptic soap is made by adding twelve parts of sulphate of copper to eighty-eight parts of any good soap. It will readily heal sores and scratches and is devoid of any irritating action.

RECENT delicate experiments with kites show that the amount of electricity in the air is proportional to the height above the earth's surface. A galvanometer placed in the circuit showed at once the changes in elevation or whether the kite was rising or falling.

PROF. NORDENSKJOLD of arctic fame will soon start from Australia in two small sailing vessels, having auxiliary steam power, for an exploration of the Antarctic ocean. The vessels will be thoroughly supplied with every device found useful in ice navigation. The locality has not been visited since James Ross' expedition in 1841, although the English ship Challenger went as far south as latitude 65 degrees 60 minutes in 1874.

AN INGENIOUS KNOT.

Simple as it May Appear It is Remarkably Hard to Make.

A correspondent of the Queen offers this ingenious knot as a sort of puzzle to be solved. He for one says:

"It is one that is made with great facility, and is not only of an amusing character, but also of a practical character, as it can be made on the same plan of taking and work as braid, but is of considerable utility in carrying a bottle or vase, as shown in the second figure. If before the knot is pulled tight it is put round the neck of a vase or bottle and then tightened, it takes a perfectly secure hold and cannot possibly be pulled off.

The bottle knot, as first and used in ornamental knotting.

"Simple as the knot may appear it is so peculiar in the manner in which it is made that I doubt whether anyone who has not been shown how to do it will discover the right method. I please myself on being rather an expert at making knots, but I am quite free to confess that I do not think that I could have made this apparently simple and elegant tie had I not been shown how to do so. When I offer the knot as a puzzle I do not intend that it should be threaded, but tied, which can be done in less than a couple of seconds."

SHARPE'S WOOD OWL.

A Valuable Addition to the Collection of Regent's Park.

Our illustration represents a recent addition to the collection of the Zoological society at Regent's park, to wit: a specimen of Sharpe's wood owl (Syrnium sharpei). The bird, says London Black and White, comes from the west coast of Africa, and is the first example of this species that has been in the society's possession. Mr. Bowdler Sharpe, of the British Natural History museum, from whom the owl takes its English name, described it for the first time a few years ago; but nothing is as yet known with regard to its habits. The original locality was on the gold coast, but specimens of this pretty little bird have since been found as far south as Liberia.

The general color of the body is a warm dark brown, while the lighter cross-bands on the breast-feathers are a rich yellowish brown, as are also the spots on the head. The feet are yellow with blackish claws, and one of the most striking points about the bird is the presence of purple rings, surrounding its large dark eyes. When excited, the subject of the picture assumed a very different attitude from the one in which it is here depicted, putting out its head and wings, puffing out its feathers, and rapidly drawing the bluish nictitating membranes of its eyes backwards and forwards across them, by no means improving its general appearance, evidently with the idea of frightening one away.

TOBACCO AN ANTISEPTIC.

When and Where the Deadly Bacillus Stands No Chance.

It has long been a popular opinion that tobacco is an antiseptic, and this belief seems to have some solid basis of fact. Prof. Vincenzo Tassinari, of the hygienic institute of the university of Pisa, recently made some very interesting experiments on the supposed germicidal virtues of tobacco smoke, which seemed to show that it really had a destructive action upon the growth of bacilli, those minute organisms which are said to be the cause of a vast number of bodily ills that flesh is heir to. Prof. Tassinari observed the action of the fumes upon several different kinds of bacteria—the so-called cholera bacillus, the cattle distemper bacillus, the pus coccus, the Finkler-Prior bacterium, the typhus and pleuro-pneumonia bacillus, and the blue pus bacillus.

Wishing to imitate as closely as possible the processes going on in a smoker's mouth, the professor passed tobacco fumes through a horizontal tube into a receptacle kept moist by damp cotton wool, which contained also a colony of bacilli. The result shows that the smoke retards the growth of some kinds of bacilli, and absolutely prevents the growth of others. The tobacco experimented with was that which is used in making the large Cuban cigar, much favored in Italy, and it was proved that its fumes retard the growth of pus bacilli by 72 hours and of cattle distemper bacilli by 100 hours, while they absolutely arrest the growth of the so-called cholera and typhus bacilli. If Prof. Tassinari's results may be relied upon it is evident that not only is tobacco not the deadly enemy of man—and it is singular with what eagerness man takes to so many of his deadly enemies—but in many instances it is his great friend, not only by way of solace, but as a warder-off and destroyer of deadly germs that insist on colonizing his body and turning it to their own uses.—All the Year Round.
