IT WILL NEVER BE PLAYED.

Mr. Defoe's Drama, in which Mrs. Defoe was to Have a Subordinate Part.

From the Detroit Free Press.

"By gum!"

Mr. and Mrs. Defoe sat before a cheerful fire in their home the other evening. There had been a long period of silence, when Mr. Defoe suddenly exclaimed as above.

"What is it, dear?" she responded.

"Say, we've got tired of playing games, and what do you say to private theatricals?"

"How?"

"Why, we'll get three or four of the neighbors to join in, and we'll meet at each other's houses and have regular plays."

"That will be splendid!" she gasped.

"Hanged if it won't! Wonder we never thought of it before. Twenty dollars will get us all the scenery we want, and each one can furnish his own wardrobe. By gum! we've got the idea now!"

"What sort of a play could we play?" she asked, as he marched up and down with tragic step.

"I have it—aha," he exclaimed, as he stopped short. "Don't you remember I started to write a play about five years ago? I'll finish it, and we'll bring it out. Now let's see how the characters run. There is the Count Dumdoff, who is in love with Geraldine the Fair. I'll be the Count, of course, as he is the hero. He kills four men, rescues Geraldine from several dangers, and there is a good deal of kissing and love making, and a happy marriage."

"And I'll be Geraldine."

"You! Oh, you couldn't play that part. She must be young and vivacious. Let's see! I think I'll cast you for Hannah, who keeps a bakery near a park in Paris."

"I'd like to see myself playing Hannah in a bakery, I would!" she defiantly answered. "If you can play Dumdoff I can play Geraldine."

"Oh, no, you can't, my love. You are a little stiff in the knees, and how you'd look throwing yourself in my arms as the villains pursue, I shall cast that little Widow D. for Geraldine."

"Then there'll be two Geraldines of us! If you can play Dumdoff with your lame back and catarrh, I know I can play Geraldine with this little lameness in my left knee."

"Now you listen to reason, Mrs. Defoe. You aren't built for a Geraldine; you are too fat; your feet are too large; you haven't got the voice for it."

"And you'd make a pretty Count Dumdoff, you would!" she fired back. "You want to get that crook out of your back, that bald head shingled over, your mouth repaired, and your eyes touched up with a paint-brush! I think I see you killing four villains—ha! ha! ha!"

"Woman! do not anger me!" he said, in a deep-toned voice, as he rose up.

"And don't you anger your Geraldine, either!"

"Geraldine! Why, you don't know a skyborder from a flat!"

"Dumdoff! And you don't know a Skye terrier from the big fiddle in the orchestra!"

"Tis well! We'll have no playing here!"

"Then you needn't! When I play Hannah in the bakery to let you hug and kiss the Widow D. or any other woman all over the stage, you'll be thrown or four Count Dumdoffs!"

"I'll burn the play, jealous woman!"

"If you don't, I will, vain man!"

Then they sat down and resumed their former occupation of looking into the fire, and the disturbed cat went back to her dreams.

Wanted—Females.
