Proposals.

NEW STEAM CRUISERS FOR THE UNITED STATES NAVY.

Sealed proposals are hereby invited until noon of Monday, July 2, 1883, for the construction, by contracts with the Navy Department, of one steam cruiser of about 4,500 tons displacement; two steam cruisers each of about 3,000 tons displacement, and one despatch boat of about 1,500 tons displacement, authorized by Congress to be built for the United States Navy.

Proposals will be received, either from American shipbuilders whose shipyards are fully equipped for building or repairing iron and steel steamships, or from constructors of marine engines, machinery, and boilers. Satisfactory evidence that the bidders are such builders or constructors must accompany the proposals or be submitted to the department in advance.

These vessels are to be built in accordance with all the requirements of the acts of Congress of Aug. 5, 1882, and March 3, 1883. They are all to be constructed of steel, of domestic manufacture, having as near as may be (according to the tests to be provided for in the contracts), a tensile strength of not less than 60,000 pounds to the square inch, and a ductility in eight inches of not less than 25 per cent.

THE 4,500-TON CRUISER.

The dimensions of the 4,500-ton cruiser will be: Length between perpendiculars, 315 feet; extreme breadth, 48 feet 2 inches; depth of hold from top of spar deck beams to water bottom, 31 feet and 4 inches; mean draught, 19 feet. The vessel is to be constructed with a double bottom of 42 inches in depth, extending through the entire space occupied by the machinery, boilers and transverse coal bunkers, over which also will be fitted a defective steel deck 1½ inches thick, the outer edge extending about 4 feet below the load water line.

The machinery will be two complete sets of compound beam engines for twin screws, each engine with one high and one low pressure cylinder of 45 and 72 inches diameter, with piston strokes of 52 and 54 inches respectively. Each set will have one condenser, with a condensing surface of not less than 4,000 square feet, and one independent combined air and circulating pump. There will be 14 steel boilers of 9 feet diameter and 10 feet long, each capable of sustaining a working pressure of 100 pounds, with an aggregate grate surface of not less than 862 square feet, and a heating surface of not less than 20,000 square feet, all fitted for forced combustion, with four blowers of sufficient capacity therefor and for ventilating the ship. There will also be required the necessary steam pumps for fire and other purposes, and two screw propellers, each 15 feet 6 inches in diameter, with 22 feet 6 inches pitch.

THE 3,000-TON CRUISERS.

The dimensions of the 3,000-ton cruisers will be: Length, 270 feet; breadth, 42 feet; depth from top of main deck, beams to top of flat keel plate, 26 feet 1½ inches; mean draught, 17 feet. The vessels are to be constructed with double bottoms 40 inches deep amidships, extending through the entire space occupied by the boilers, engines and transverse coal bunkers, over which also will be fitted a protective steel deck 1½ inches in thickness.

The machinery will be a back-acting compound engine with one high and two low pressure cylinders of 54 and 74 inches diameter respectively, with a piston stroke of 42 inches; two condensers with a condensing surface of not less than 5,500 square feet, and two independent combined air and circulating pumps. There will be eight cylindrical steel boilers of 11 feet 8 inches diameter and 9 feet 9 inches long, each capable of sustaining a working pressure of 90 pounds, with an aggregate grate surface of not less than 400 square feet, and a heating surface of not less than 10,000 square feet, all fitted for forced combustion with blowers of sufficient capacity therefor and for ventilating the ship. There will also be required the necessary steam pumps for fire and other purposes, and a screw propeller 17 feet in diameter, with 20 feet pitch.

THE DESPATCH BOAT.

The dimensions of the despatch boat will be: Length, 240 feet; breadth, 32 feet; mean draught, excluding keel, 13½ feet; and the vessel will have a displacement of about 1,500 tons.

The machinery will be one compound engine, with two vertical overhead cylinders of 43 and 78 inches diameter respectively, and a piston stroke of 48 inches, with one surface condenser having a condensing surface of not less than 3,400 square feet; an air pump worked by a beam connected with the crosshead of the low-pressure cylinder, and an independent circulating pump. There will be two steel boilers of 11 feet diameter and 18 feet 3 inches long, each with two furnaces at each end with separate back connections, and two steel boilers of 11 feet diameter and 9 feet 6 inches long, each with two furnaces; all the boilers to be capable of sustaining a working pressure of 90 pounds, and to have an aggregate grate surface of not less than 275 square feet, with a heating surface of about 6,000 square feet, all fitted for forced combustion, with three blowers of sufficient capacity therefor and for ventilating the ship. There will also be required the necessary steam pumps for fire and other purposes, and a screw propeller of 14 feet diameter and a length and pitch for a speed of 15 knots.

No offer for more than one vessel should be included in the same proposal. Each contract awarded will be for the hull and machinery of one vessel, with such equipment as may be specified.

Each proposal must be preceded or accompanied by a cash deposit, or satisfactory certified check, payable to the order of the secretary of the Navy, which shall become the property of the United States if the successful bidder shall fail to enter into a contract with sureties as required, within twenty days after the acceptance of his proposal. The amount of such deposit or check shall be $20,000 on the 4,500-ton cruiser, $20,000 on each of the 3,000-ton cruisers, and $10,000 on the despatch boat. All deposits and checks of bidders whose proposals shall not be accepted within five days after the 2d day of July, 1883, will at the end of that period be returned to them; and those of each successful bidder will be returned to him when his contract has been duly entered into.

Every successful bidder will be required, within twenty days after the acceptance of his proposal, to enter into formal contract for the performance of his work, and to give a bond therefor with sufficient sureties, and with a penal sum of $500,000 if to build the 4,500-ton cruiser, $300,000 if to build either of the 3,000-ton cruisers, and $150,000 if to build the despatch boat.

The three cruisers must be completed within eighteen months, and the despatch boat within twelve months from the execution of the respective contracts. Payments to each contractor will be made in ten equal installments as the work progresses upon bills duly certified, from which ten per cent will be reserved to be paid on the full and final completion of the contract.

The designs and specifications of the vessels may be seen at the Navy Department in Washington, and all information essential to bidders will be there given. Proposals must be made according to forms which will be furnished by the department.

WILLIAM E. CHANDLER, Secretary of the Navy.
Navy Department, Washington, April 28, 1883.
