BARNUM AND LONDON UNITED NINE SHOWS.

ONE AND INDIVISIBLE, NOW AND FOREVER. FORMAL AND RESPLENDENT INAUG URATION OF THE SEASON OF 1885, IN MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, M ONDAY AFTERNOON, MARCH 16.

P. T. BARNUM T O THE PUBLIC: "Good Wine Needs No Bush." Having for fifty years catered to the curiosity, amusement, and instruction of a public which finds no fault with what I offer them, except that I give them many times the worth of their money, it seems superfluous for me to do more than simply announce that the GREAT SHOW IS COMING. I will only remind my millions of expectant patrons that in the short space of six months I have given, at any cost or pains, a better, more varied, and more extensive show each year. I shall in the season of 1885 present to the admiring world an exhibition beyond precedent, beyond criticism. Relying on the appreciation and patronage which have been accorded to all my previous efforts, I am, the public's obedient servant, PHINEAS TAYLOR BARNUM. WALDEMERE, BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 7, 1885.

FIFTH YEAR OF THE MIGHTY COMPACT BINDING TOGETHER FOREVER THE NINE GIANT SHOWS OF THE UNIVERSE. EVERY YEAR A STRIDE FURTHER IN ADVANCE IN EXCELLENCE, PURITY, MORALITY, GREATNESS, NOVELTY, VARIETY, SPLENDOR, AND WONDER. All these mammoth enterprises doubled in every department, rendering them quadruple the size of last season, and now presented ever before in its history. $500,000 expended in securing new attractions, added to those already possessed, and now exhibited for the endorsement and approval of a delighted people.
