During the fifty years' experience in selling Pianos, we have always tried to supply the best instruments that could be made. Pianos that were made to last a lifetime.

We are retiring from the music business consequently our large stock must be disposed of in short order. This is the last week to buy the best Pianos and Organs at almost your own prices and terms.

Some of the very highest grade Pianos left for the last week of the sale that sell in New York and Chicago at $400, $450 to $550—which can be had now for $217, $243, $228 to $317—on easy payments.

Several good Pianos that have been rented for a short time that usually sell for $275, $325 to $350—to close out at half price and on small monthly payments.

Good people can buy these Pianos and Organs on payments without any advance in price. We need the money, but don't stay away on that account. Bring enough with you to make a first payment to bind the bargain and we will arrange about the balance.

Few Sample Bargains. Just to give you a faint idea we will give below a few sample bargains on good, serviceable upright Pianos that have been traded in on new Pianos:

$200 Black Case, only..... $ 62

THREE BISHOPS QUIT

Synodical Board is Divided on Letting Catholics Attend Congress.

Three bishops and 10 priests of the Protestant Episcopal Church resigned yesterday from the board of missions after one of the stormiest sessions ever held by a religious organization in this city. Extreme bitterness characterized the lengthy discussion, and so intense did the situation become that the board decided not to hold its spring meeting, but to hold it until this morning, when it is hoped sessions may have cooled down and that a threatened split through the entire church organization may be avoided.

Those who resigned were Bishop B. Walter of Fond du Lac, Bishop J. H. Harbo of Washington, the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning of Trinity parish, New York, and the Rev. Selden P. DeLaney, dean of All Saints Cathedral,

MILWAUKEE

The question which precipitated the angry debate and the resignations was the congress for Christian work, which is to be held in Panama in February. This congress is to be composed of delegates from all Protestant churches, and those who resigned from the board said their main support is in the body of the church maintains that for the Protestant Episcopal church to take part in a congress which eliminates delegates from the Roman Catholic church, and the Russian Orthodox Catholic church, means the alienation of many ardent communicants and the death of all hopes for one great church union.

"What is in the mail from daughter?" asked mother, eagerly.
"A thousand kisses," answered father, "and 16 handkerchiefs, two waists and four bunches of ribbons for you to wash and mend." Kansas City Journal.

NATHAN STRAUS DIED TUESDAY

fants of the poor, and secondly for the men and boys athirst in the streets.

In New York City alone, during the first twenty-two years of the work his milk depots distributed 35,000,000 bottles, and 18,000,000 classes of milk at the rate of one cent each. During the first thirteen years (from 1892 to 1905) the death rate of children under five years was cut in New York City from 126 in every thousand to only 61. Each succeeding year has shown steady gains in baby-saving. While medical authorities said this was due primarily to Mr. Straus's work, he faced considerable criticism, some by those who interpreted his motives as profit-making, notwithstanding figures to the contrary; and some by those who claimed that the sterilization of milk devalitized it in a way to make it less nourishing. The reformer, at one time, was even arrested for selling milk alleged to be inferior. In the face of such circumstances he kept on with his service, and finally had praise always outbalanced criticism. At one time in 1910 when there were reports that he would abandon his milk stations, a mass meeting of thousands in the East Side tenement district of New York called upon him in fervent resolutions not to give up his "sacred task."

Although of Hebrew parentage, and of the Jewish religion, Mr. Straus's benevolence was remarkably nonsectarian. In the panicky times of 1893 he sold to the needy in New York 2,000,000 buckets of coal at the rate of five cents for 25 pounds. At one time he supplied thousands of turkeys free to New York poor. At his own expense he erected the first of the now numerous recreation piers which surround Manhattan Island.

Outside of these home philanthropies, his greatest interest lay in helping the inhabitants of the Holy Land. He spent a quarter of a million dollars in establishing soup kitchens, an anti-cancer institute, a public health board, and other benefactions in Jerusalem, and planned the thorough modernization of that city.

Mr. Straus was born January 31, 1848 in Bavaria, Germany. He was six years old when the family emigrated to America and settled in Georgia, and was a young man when, just after the Civil War, they moved to New York. They established a china and glassware store in Chambers street, New York, and later another as a branch in the R. H. Macy & Co. store. Nathan and his brother Isidor later became sole owners of the Macy store. Another brother, Oscar, became prominent in civic work, and was Secretary of Commerce and Labor in the Roosevelt administration, and later ambassador to Turkey.

Nathan Straus suffered a serious set back in his health as a result of the shock of the Titanic disaster, in which his brother Isidor and the latter's wife went down in each of the embraces. In speaking of this disaster Nathan Straus once said: "All creeds were united there in a brotherhood of death. If one could only hope for a brotherhood of life! Why wait for death to teach us the lesson of human fraternity?"

Although political life was always open to Nathan Straus, he accepted little in this line. He was once nominated for mayor of New York, but the only two offices he ever accepted were those of park commissioner and president of the board of health, in which he found inspiration for his campaign of baby saving.

His wife, Lina Guthrie, was his ardent coadjutor in all his philanthropies. A son, Nathan Straus, Jr., was largely interested in his father's work and it was said he would carry it on so far as possible.

At a dinner in New York in 1911 when 200 distinguished citizens in many walks of life did him honor, Nathan Straus told of his work.

"I often think," he said, "of the old saying, 'The work is my religion; to do good is my religion.' This has often been an inspiration to me. I might say, 'Humanity is my kin; to save babies is my religion.' It is a religion I hope will have thousands of followers."

HORSES RAISED IN PANAMA

EXPIT FOR U. S. ARMY SERVICE

Panama, Oct. 23.—(Associated Press Correspondence.)—Much difficulty is being experienced by the United States troops in obtaining good horses for the various branches of the service in the Canal Zone. Very few of the animals raised in Panama are either high or heavy enough for the requirements of the army.

Recently Lieut. Joseph A. Marmon, aide de camp to Brigadier General Clarence H. Edwards, commanding the Panama Canal troops, made a trip to the Province of Chiriqui to obtain horses. Out of more than 200 examined only eleven came anywhere near the army specifications. All of them were under 14 hands high.

General Edwards made a trip to Costa Rica where he purchased a few animals but they also are not quite up to the army specifications. Army officers believe it is necessary to obtain recruits from other parts of Central America, but the latter market, because of the war, is now temporarily closed.

"Man Power"
Will Power is the most vital form of Man Power. Master it. It is the Proteoglyph of your life and your future—for it will protect you against that something which holds you back, and make you do the Square Thing, and please the man inside that calls. Throw off the shackles of Ne-er-do-wellness, sell yourself, yourself, and you'll find that your talk will win with a convincing sincerity that will win for you, then you'll be loyal to yourself, and loyalty and sincerity are one and the same, and Sincerity is the white heat that makes Life and Life's work, Business, head, life.

Loyalty is the keynote to successful selling. When you are loyal to yourself, your Prospect, and to your company, you have won for peace, happiness and success are yours. Your Heart is in it, you are Sincere! Frolic The Proteoglyph.

The Victor's View of It.
"Oh, Georgia, Georgia!" exclaimed a fond mother. The Houston Chronicle tells of when she saw her small boy considerably battered up and dirty. "You have been fighting again. How often have I told you that you shouldn't fight?"
"Well," said he, "what are you going to do when a fellow hits you?"
"Why, keep out of his way," said the mother.
"I'll be," said the youngster, "I'll keep out of my mine after this."

A Great Thanksgiving Day.
(Charity and Children.)
This is going to be a great Thanksgiving Day, men and brethren, and it certainly ought to be. Half the world is wrapped in the flames of war, and we are at peace with all mankind. Cotton is bringing a fancy price and the boll weevil has invaded our fields. Woodrow Wilson is president of the United States, and Wall street and the jingoes cannot move him. South Carolina has gone dry, and the suffragettes in New Jersey have met a Waterloo. But we must prove our gratitude must prove our gratitude and give it expression; and the best way in the world to do that is to give the Orphanage the fruit of one day's toil!
