THE LOCAL MARKET FIGURES

Wheat Market Abroad Steadier at Unchanged Prices—Bearish Talk on Corn.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—All the exchanges of the country were closed and the few board of trade men who came down town confined themselves for the most part to thrashing over the old straw of yesterday's gossip. Some private cablegrams from Liverpool quoted that market steadier at unchanged prices. Reports from the stock yards put the day's receipts at 23,000 head. There was a little trading in puts and calls on May wheat. Puts were quoted at 76⅝c and calls at 77⅜c. May wheat was quoted nominally worth 76⅝c. The talk on corn was rather bearish without any disposition to either trade in the article direct or in the way of puts and calls. The following are extracts from the market letter of Baldwin Farnum: "Sellers of wheat yesterday were the principal buyers on the advance, and, as has been the case for three if not six months, the so-called clique buy the wheat when it is weak and sell it back to the crowd on all strong places. There is a wide diversity of opinion regarding the situation in wheat; newspapers were full of strong talk and the strength of those who were supposed to be running the deal not only in money, but also in good judgment, and the crowd scare easily. The Northwest continues very weak and simply stand out and refuse to cover short wheat in this market at the extreme price it is selling at over their markets. The crowd here have been whipped surely. While we do not say sell wheat in weak places, we certainly see no reason for the time being to be scared of selling wheat whenever it is strong. The next thirty days will give us lots of crop scares, no doubt; and if customers will take advantage of the weak places to buy wheat they will see many a chance to make profits before March is out. Sellers of corn yesterday, like those in wheat, were the principal buyers.

LOCAL MARKETS.

Nothing occurred to disturb the tranquility of the market yesterday. Yesterday's advance of 4 cents a bushel in wheat is expected to move the surplus in the hands of the farmers who have held their crop so far this winter with the expectation of receiving higher prices. Eggs are gradually declining as the supply increases. Farm products and provisions are steady and firm at yesterday's quotations. There are indications of a slight advance in hides within a few days. Stock is becoming reduced and but little is offered in the market. Business is light in building materials with high prices. Dealers predict a sharp advance in quotations when business opens in the spring, as dry stock is very scarce:
