FOR THE "CHRISTIAN SABBATH."

Cardinal Gibbons Makes a Strong Plea in Behalf of Sunday Observance.

"Sunday Rest" is the theme of Cardinal Gibbons's paper to be read at the Congress of Sabbath Observers at Chicago. A part of it is as follows:

The desecration of the Christian Sabbath is one of our social dangers against which it behooves us to set our face and to take timely precautions before it assumes proportions too formidable to be easily eradicated. * * * A close observer cannot fail to note the dangerous inroads that have been made on the Lord's Day in our country within the last quarter of a century. If these encroachments are not checked in time, the day may come when the religious quiet, now happily reigning in our well-ordered cities, will be changed into noise and turbulence, when the sound of the church bell will be drowned by the echo of the hammer and the dray, when the Bible and the prayer-book will be supplanted by the newspaper and the magazine, when the votaries of the theatre and the drinking saloon will outnumber the religious worshippers, and salutary thoughts of God, of eternity, and of the soul will be checked by the cares of business and by the pleasures and dissipation of the world.

The Christian sabbath is a living witness of revelation, an abiding guardian of Christianity. The religious services held in our churches each successive Sunday are the most effective means for keeping fresh in the minds and hearts of our people the sublime and salutary teachings of the Gospel. Our churches exercise on the truths of revelation an influence analogous to that exerted by our courts of justice on the civil law. The religious decorum observed in our temples of worship, the holiness of the place, the sacred character of the officiating ministers, above all, the reading and exposition of the sacred Scriptures, inspire men with reverence for the Divine Law and cause it to exert a potent influence in the moral guidance of the community. The summary closing of our civil tribunals would not entail a more disastrous injury on the laws of the land than the closing of our churches would inflict on the Christian religion. The institution of the Christian Sabbath has contributed more to the peace and good order of nations than could be accomplished by standing armies and the best organized police force. The cause of charity and mutual benevolence is greatly fostered by the sanctification of the Sunday. When we assemble in church on the Lord's Day we are admonished by that very act that we are all members of the same social body, and that we should have for one another the same lively sympathy and spirit of coöperation which the members of the human body entertain toward one another.

The Christian Sunday is not to be confounded with the Jewish, or even the Puritan Sabbath. It prescribes the golden mean between rigid Sabbatarianism on the one hand and lax indifference on the other. There is little doubt that the revulsion in public sentiment from a rigorous to a loose observance of the Lord's Day can be ascribed to the sincere, but misguided zeal of the Puritans, who confounded the Christian Sunday with the Jewish Sabbath, and imposed restraints on the people which were repulsive to Christian freedom and which were not warranted by the Gospel dispensation. The Lord's Day to the Catholic heart is always a day of joy. The Church desires us on that day to be cheerful without dissipation, brave and religious without sadness and melancholy. She forbids, indeed, all unnecessary servile work on that day; but as "the Sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sabbath," she allows such work whenever charity or necessity shall demand it. And as it is a day consecrated not only to religion but also to relaxation of mind and body, she permits us to spend a portion of it in innocent recreation. In a word, the true convention of the Lord's Day is expressed in the words of the Psalmist, "that is the day which the Lord hath made; let us be glad and rejoice therein."

ONCE WEALTHY JOHN F. HENRY.

Only $12,000 Was Left for His Widow and Children.

The will of the late John F. Henry of Brooklyn has been admitted to probate by Surrogate Abbott. The widow receives one-third of the real and personal estate, and the daughter and two sons each two-ninths. Although Mr. Henry had been in the wholesale drug business for a quarter of a century, and was once thought to be worth over $200,000, the real estate he left behind him is estimated at only $2,000, and his personal property at only $10,000. Mr. Henry was a bustling and active, but unlucky Republican politician nearly all his life, and his friends say that he would probably have died a wealthy man had he had less political ambition. He was Treasurer of the Kings County Republican General Committee at the time of his death.

Condition of Winter Wheat.

CHICAGO, June 13.—The Farmers' Review has received reports from correspondents in twelve States regarding the condition of winter wheat. The Review to-morrow, in a summary, will say:

"The condition of winter wheat has improved greatly in the last few days, but will fall far short of a good crop. In Illinois the improvement is very noticeable, but so much of the area of wheat has been destroyed that some counties will get little benefit from the improvement.

Some correspondents report that nine-tenths of the wheat acreage in their localities has been abandoned. The improvement has continued in Indiana and Ohio. In the latter State the outlook is good. Little change is seen in the condition of wheat in Michigan, but in Kentucky the improvement is marked, and a good crop is assured. In Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska conditions are still adverse, though there has been improvement in some localities. Iowa and Wisconsin promise a comparatively good yield.

A Brooklyn Home for Medical Societies.

Some generous citizen of Brooklyn has offered to bear one-half the expense of erecting a $100,000 building in the central part of that city for the use of the various medical societies provided the societies themselves raise the other half. To-night representatives of the various societies are to meet at the house of Dr. Alexander J. C. Skene to consider the proposition. The identity of the man who makes the offer has not been disclosed, but he is supposed to be Dr. C. N. Hoagland, who founded the Hoagland Laboratory.

Miss Holtering Gets $300 Damages.

Miss Lena Holtering, whose breach of promise suit against Bernard Freser was adjourned abruptly last Tuesday, when the plaintiff dived into one of her stockings and brought forth an engagement ring given her by the defendant, was set down for trial before Justice Patton in the District Court in Hoboken yesterday morning. The plaintiff and her family were on hand at 9 o'clock, but the defendant failed to appear. The Court gave judgment in her favor for the $200 she claimed.

TUESDAY, June 13.

Wall street was favored to-day with a typical midsummer market; that is, the dealings were light and the fluctuations narrow. It is hardly necessary to add that these two circumstances reflect an indisposition to trade, even on the part of the professional element. During the greater part of the day a few brokers, identified in the popular mind with operators of bearish proclivities, endeavored to depress prices, and they were fairly successful, not so much because of the pressure they exerted, but because no especial support was given to prices. They were assisted, too, by fresh advices from the West of financial and commercial failures. In the last hour they undertook to, recover some of the stocks they had sold, and then, if not before, they must have become convinced that the early selling was chiefly for short account, and that the stocks had been fairly well taken.

Of the market in detail it is hardly worth while to speak; still, it may be noted that Atchison, St. Paul, General Electric, Reading, Chicago Gas, Distilling and Cattle Feeding, were the only stocks that made any approach toward activity. Net fluctuations were limited to fractions and in the main favored the short account. The closing was steady at a recovery from lowest prices.
