WEATHER BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—For lower Michigan: Fair, clearing on Lake Huron; warmer Tuesday morning; variable winds.

TALK WITH '93 AND '94.

This is January one, eighteen hundred ninety-four. THE HERALD does not claim a "scoop" on this, as probably its neighbors will make the same announcement today; but it does claim that it is an original remark, as it has never before appeared in any public print. So, with self-complacency, we wish all our readers "A Happy New Year!" Good bye, old year, we shall ne'er see you again; and we are strongly tempted to say we do not want to see you again. You, 1893, will go down into history in many respects the most remarkable year in all the centuries—a year of great surprises and unaccountable alterations in social and political life. The world will never forget old 1893, that during your reign a great nation faltered in its onward march, paused, turned back, and finally surrendered to the enemy of its peace and prosperity. The world looked on in amazement, 1893, and has not ceased to wonder that a great people have turned their backs on the plain principles of life. Is it not surpassing strange, 1893, that a great nation would voluntarily enter upon a course which has already cost them in loss of material wealth as much, or more, than a fratricidal war of over four years? Sometimes, as our great prophet and priest, the "Czar," has said, human progress can be obtained only through suffering. Sometimes we march through Valley Forges and through all the defeats of a revolution in order to reach a free republic. Sometimes the blessings given in this world, which are the dearest and the best, are those which come from suffering, and for which we pay the highest price. Perhaps no other experience than the one through which we have passed during your reign, 1893, could have burned into the people of this country the lesson which they know today. If we have not thoroughly learned this lesson it would be better that we go on until we have learned it thoroughly, once and forever. We have had a nightmare of folly, 1893, but it was not dark all the time you ruled. We had several light months in the early reign, and one very bright day in November that, were in deed bright days as compared with the rest. But you could not help it, 1893; you simply held the chronometer while we ran the races. So, good bye, we shall not forget you while memory is on her throne. And now, 1894, we greet you as the fresh new handmaid of destiny, and chastened, we are ready to run with patience the race that is set before us. Doubtless we shall be guilty of many follies, but deal gently with the erring, 1894, and bear with our infirmities. America is young yet, and perhaps she has not sown all her wild oats. There were strong indications of returning sanity and soberness at one moment, Miss New Year, and we will cherish the hope that when you, too, like 1893, begin to grow old, you will see young America clothed in her right mind, doing what she can to redeem the past and to fit herself for the joyous days when, he whose right it is to rule, the brave Prince of Protection, shall come to claim his own. And in this hope we bid the hail, 1894. Hail! All Hail!

PRESENT CONDITIONS.

"It is a long period since the old year has closed," says Henry Clews, "under such serious conditions as now everywhere prevail. Every country in Europe has its troubles, worse than our own; and they are of a character so radical that it will require time to heal them. In this country, the derangements are acute, but they are of a kind more directly under our own control than are those of the European nations. In our case there had been no antecedent overtrading, nor excessive speculation, nor general unsoundness of credit. On the contrary, 1893 opened with a generally sound and fairly prosperous condition of business; and although the panic was one of perhaps unequal severity, yet it was due to causes not inherent to business proper but outside of business and connected with a great alarm about the condition of our currency system. The silver panic however became the cause of a general prostration of trade and credit, from which recovery could not possibly be immediate, even though the cause of the alarm has been removed. The period of recovery, moreover, is further postponed by intervention of a protracted session of the tariff. This latter circumstance would, under the best of conditions, have proved a very serious cause of commercial disturbance; but, mingling with the immediate effects of a great panic, its seriousness is doubled."

ALTOGETHER TOO GENEROUS.

In Chicago there is a contractor who has written a friend in Milwaukee for assistance in hiring men. In his letter he said: "It is hard to hire men here now, for the city has put up lodging houses and made arrangements to feed all that ask for it, and that is much easier than working for a living. Some of these people they are taking care of have all the way from $5 to $100 in their pockets. The work on the canal is rock work and will last all winter." To verify the statements made in the letter, a reporter visited the office of Mr. Clapp and found a sign on his window stating that men were wanted and would be paid 15 cents an hour. A number of men had applied during the day, but only three had been engaged. The others had complained that the work was too hard and the pay too small. The agent said: "Laborers were never so scarce at this season of the year. Why, I have seen the time when, if I should post a sign like that one out there, the office would be full in three minutes." All of which makes it appear that in taking care of her poor, Chicago is doing it on a scale that is to be criticised for its liberality.

LEVI T. GRIFFIN, the recently elected congressman from the First district, is at home for a few days and was interviewed by the Sunday Free Press. Speaking of the Hawaiian matter, Mr. Griffin said: "I do not suppose that more than two days will be taken to dispose of the entire subject. * * * My judgment is that the house and senate will support the president and the queen be restored to her throne." Poor Mr. Griffin. He has for many years been considered a man of sense and fair judgment. If a few short weeks in Washington has so turned his head what a wreck he will be by the end of the session.

THE survivors of gallant Sixth Michigan cavalry will meet in social gathering today to renew the friendships formed under the skies of the south. It is well for the brave defenders of the union to keep alive the memory of those days. Such occasions as this which takes place today are valuable object lessons in patriotism to the young.

HELEN GOULD broke the record of her family for charity and generosity and gave a Christmas entertainment for the poor gamins of Five Points. Jay Gould's great wealth may yet do more good than he ever intended it should.

THIS is supposed to be the glad New Year. Just where the gladness comes in for the unemployed, the theoretical tariff tinkers will have to explain.

"WHEN the smoke of battle, etc.," who will be postmaster of Grand Rapids?

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Stage realism seems to have a firm hold on theatre goers, if the applause which greeted the ponderous machinery which the going up of a drop revealed in the third act of "The Diamond Breaker" at The Grand last night is to be taken as a judgment. The play is melodramatic of course and full of thrilling sensations, the climax being when the heroine is in an unconscious state and started toward the wicked looking wheels, which really "go round." The hero is of course very heroic and the heroine brave and true to desperation. Love is a component of the play and comedy also runs riot. The company presenting it is well up to the requirements of the play. Miss Etelka Wardell, as Rexiana Alden, showed herself capable of good work of the emotional school. M. L. Alsop was, as Russell Shattuck, entirely at home in his part and shared with Miss Wardell in the honors of the evening. Recalls were frequent and during the course of the play many clever specialties were introduced. "The Diamond Breaker" will run all the week, with a special matinee today.

Smith's held a good sized audience last night, which was well pleased with the entertainment offered. The farces brought roars of laughter, and the olio section of the bill furnished a continuous stream of artists in taking turns. The "Big Six" is made up of specially clever people, and their act was one of the best on the program. There will be a special holiday matinee today.

Thursday night "Iolanthe" will be presented for the benefit of the Charity Organization society.

"The Ivy Leaf" will be the attraction at The Grand next week.

A MEMORIAL MEETING.

Park Church Young People Honor A. B. Moseley's Memory.

The Young People's guild of the Park Congregational church held memorial services last evening at 6 o'clock to the memory of their late associate, Alvin B. Moseley. Eulogistic addresses were made by Clay H. Hollister, Van A. Wallin, Miss Kittie Plumb, C. W. Carmon, Lauren N. Renwick and John B. Martin, and the following resolutions were read by Miss Mattie Dole and adopted by the society.

"We, the Young People's guild of the Park Congregational church are called upon again to mourn the loss of a most faithful member. Alvin B. Moseley, whose life had largely been spent in loving service of his fellow man, has been taken from among us and his spirit has gone to its reward.

As his friends we desire to commend his character and influence. We have been touched by his genial nature, his hearty energy and his unswerving fidelity to matters entrusted to his care. We have found in him a true friend. We feel that his place cannot be filled in our guild. Nevertheless, as we join in sorrow with his stricken wife and family, we wish to express our thankfulness to God for giving us such a character as may well be our standard of Christian manliness and the memory of a life always pure and sweet and acceptable in the eyes of God."

Terrible Scrofula—Sciatic Rheumatism

Mr. Arthur Simon
Of Galatea, Ohio.

"They said I was incurable, the doctors did, but the result has proven that Hood's Sarsaparilla was able to cure. I had Sciatic Rheumatism and was confined to my bed six months. Three physicians did not help me and

I Was Given Up to Die

When I was in this terrible condition, unable to move hand or foot, I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. The first bottle had a little effect, and while taking the second, I gained so rapidly that I could sit up in my chair. My system had been so run down by other medicine, that it took me quite a while to recuperate. By the time I had taken four bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, I could walk around, and now, as I have taken six bottles, I am cured and can do a good day's work. I do not feel I can praise
