ADDRESS OF THE EDITOR.

MARSHALL COUNTY REPUBLICAN AND FREE TRADE ADVOCATE will be, as its title denotes, a Democratic in its course; advocating with zeal the interest of the great mass of the people; and [illegible] with becoming spirit, every attempt at encroachment upon their rights and privileges, made by the Aristocratic few.

We shall, as we have ever been, be found on the side of the Democracy of the country; struggling, [illegible] for the perpetuation of those sterling principles, the pillars which sustain the temple of American Freedom—the principles of the Whigs of 76, of JEFFERSON, JAYESON, MADISON & JACKSON.

We are in favor of a strict construction of our glorious Constitution—we openly, are opposed to the establishment of a National Bank, in any and every form can be presented, while, as now the Constitution holds not a military chase or line warranting the establishment of such a monopoly. Were it so amended as to give to Congress the power, to create a monied institution—a bank owned entirely by the States, and directed and controlled solely by Congress we are willing to concede might receive the approbation of the American people; but the establishment of such an institution stands not within the pressent constitution. The Federal leaders have never dared such a look—will never propose such a bank, [illegible] as a bank that affords no exclusive privileges to meet the wishes of the Millionaires of the North, by whom, there cannot be a doubt, they have been bought and sold like cattle in the market,—from Henry Clay down to James Watson Webb.—For many not, for years past, been striving zealously and almost incessantly, to prostitute the Constitution of the United States to gratify the inordinate thirst for power of some few hundred heavy capitalists at the North, who claim, with most consummate effrontery, to own the whole nation, and to demand the legislation of Congress for their exclusive benefit and emolument? Forget it, therefore, the Federal leaders, have no [illegible] we see the establishment of what would be emphatically the people's bank—a bank owned solely by the States, and conducted under the supervision of Congressional representatives—an institution that would be a convenience and a blessing, not a curse to the people. No. They want Congress to make, for months, at an expense of several thousand dollars per day to the nation, to create an institution for a few hundred private individuals—there to enrich and aggrandize themselves with, by the great mass,—the merchants, mechanics, and farmers and most important of all the producing class, the agriculturalists of the country; who, possessing of the riches of a luxurious soil, enough and to spare of the real luxuries and comforts of life, have just one need of a National Bank as a coach has for a fifth wheel. No. The Federal leaders care nothing for the people, are the true wants of the people—they know that no strous anomaly, a National Bank, owned and controlled by a band of aristocrats, hardly, exclusively Northern and English capitalists—in reality a branch of the Bank of England, preying upon the substance of our industrious classes, and introducing into American society all the fashionable dandyism, vices, and corrupting pleasures and habits, manners and customs of the mushroom petty Aristocracy of Paris and London—the follies and vices of that most and most contemptible of all Aristocracies—a monied Aristocracy, born in beggar's rags and obscurity, but grown wealthy and self-important with the accumulation of dollars and cents by jewing, shaving and swindling. No. They want not a constitutional currency—they want not a currency made by the representatives of the people, and altogether managed by Congress—But they do want Congress to grant to A COMPANY OF PRIVATE BANKERS the privilege of making the currency of this great nation—the [illegible] privilege of making their mere promises to pay the national currency!! With as much right or a few hundred citizens of Marshall or any other county, ask Congress to give them the making the currency of this great nation, as Albert Gallatin, John Jacob Astor, Nicholas Biddle, and a few other prominent Northern and English capitalists, to Congress through their paid attorneys Henry Clay, Daniel Webster, Aaron Sergeant, and other of their agents in that body, to give them the making of the great currency.—With as much right might they [illegible] constantly harrassing Congress and the people to establish a monopoly by which the few makers may [illegible] the great producing classes of America to support in idleness, extravagance, luxury and debauchery—[illegible] a government of equal rights and privileges and such a monopoly as the Federal leaders desire have created for their soulless masters is hostile to the rights, the life, the spirit of our government—hostile to the dearest interest of the American people—hostile to a sacred and inestimable institution, that we might enjoy and flourish under which, a great, glorious and free people, our venerated and heroic fathers of the revolution peralled their blessed lives, their earthly fortunes, and their sacred and immaculate honor. Ours is a Government of EQUAL RIGHTS and not of EXCLUSIVE PRIVILEGES; and such a monopoly is clearly unauthorized by the Constitution, which only admits of exclusive privileges in two solitary specified cases and each of these founded upon a natural right. Such a monopoly cannot but become a political engine of tremendous and almost irresistable power; and well may the patriot tremble at the prospect of the creation of another such monopoly as the people have thrice endured, thrice killed, and yet though dead whose influence has proved sufficient to keep the political elements constantly in commotion—to render powerless measures of the people's Government, indispensibly necessary for the security of the national treasure and the proper management of the fiscal concerns of the Government—and in make null and of non effect the legislation of Congress, and which threatens unless the disapprobation of the people, again and again expressed through the ballot boxes, to attempt a fourth time the resuscitation of that odious and detestable institution.

We are opposed to the unnatural connection which has existed between the National Treasury and the State Banks, and entertain the opinion, that, of the few erroneous acts of President Jackson's Administration, the most unfortunate was his employment of banking corporations in the collection and disbursement of the public moneys. We were among those who at the time dissented from him with regard to the propriety, safety, and constitutionality of entrusting useless corporations with the public moneys—and we live to witness and deplore the necessary and ruinous consequences of the unnatural connection. The banks, warmed into dangerous life and power, by Government patronage, have proved stinging adders to the bosom of Democracy—and like the great leviathan they were to destroy the necessity of re-creation, they have proved hardly dishonorable in their dealings with the Government, and joined with the foes of Republican principles, have by their bought presses, and debtors in Congress, paralized for a time the action of Government—and now boldly aim to control the Executive, and seize on the national Treasure. The crisis has arrived, when they must be confined to the legitimate pursuits and objects for which they were created and endowed with peculiar privileges by the State legislatures, or they will grasp the reins of political power—make and control the Government, or govern themselves. In the language of the Washington Chronicle the TRUE issue before the people is

"Shall we have a GOVERNMENT OF THE BANKS or a GOVERNMENT OF THE PEOPLE? Shall we have a CONSTITUTIONAL TREASURY, or an UNCONSTITUTIONAL BANK? Shall we have a CONSTITUTIONAL CURRENCY of gold and silver, or one of IRREDEEMABLE PAPER? Shall we live under the dictation of a MONEYED ARISTOCRACY, or under the safeguards of a FREE CONSTITUTION?"

The REPUBLICAN will be found arrayed on the side of those who are for "a Government of the people"—a "Constitutional Treasury"—"a Constitutional currency"—and the "safeguards of a free Constitution.

We are in favor of free trade, and of course opposed to the taxing of one portion of the country for the enrichment of the citizens of another portion—the framers of the Constitution neither desired nor designed, in the great instrument framed by them for the confederation of the colonies, to infringe upon or take away from the States, the natural right belonging to each of them to trade where and with whom they found most profitable and convenient to their citizens—unshackled and unrestricted by odious prohibitions and restrictions.

We believe that the restrictions upon Southern trade imposed by partial and interested legislators have changed the course of Southern trade into unnatural channels—retarded the growth of the Southern States; their commercial progress and operated most injuriously upon the most vital interests of the staple growers. It is therefore time for every true friend to Southern prosperity, to take his stand against the whole system of obnoxious measures by which Northern legislators and Northern capitalists have heretofore benefitted their own section of the Union to the impoverishment and embarrassment of the Southern section.

The time has come when the South, shaking off the shackles of dependence upon foreign extortioners, should assume the sole management and direction of her great resources, and march on steadily and directly to the goal of glory and prosperity pointed out by the hand of nature. A direct trading intercourse between the Southern staple growing States, and Europe, will enhance the wealth, political influence, and prosperity of the South; and has become absolutely necessary—for the security of her great labor system—threatened by the fanatics of the North. A direct trading intercourse with Europe, will relieve the South from millions of tribute now paid to Northern factors, build up our seaports, attract capital, enterprise and population to the Southern States—and give them that weight at the ballot boxes and in the national councils, which rightfully they should wield—and which they had long since wielded but for unjust and partial legislation and other baneful causes consequent upon, and growing out of that unjust legislation. The Republican and Free Trade Advocate will aid to the extent of its influence in bringing about the desired changeup in commercial relations of the South.

Prospectus of the Marshall County Republican, And Free Trade Advocate.

Published every Saturday morning, in the town of Holly Springs, Mississippi, by FEGUES & HOWE.

THE REPUBLICAN AND ADVOCATE is, as its name denotes, a Political Journal, devoted to the cause of Democracy—the defence and advocacy of Democratic principles.

It is opposed to the establishment of a National Bank;

Opposed to the elevation of Henry Clay, Daniel Webster, William H. Harrison, or any other federalist, abolitionist or National Bankman, to the Presidency;

Opposed to the connection of the Treasury Department of the Government of the United States with Banking corporations;

Opposed to entrusting the public monies to Banking corporations to be loaned out on their own capital to speculators and monopolists, and liable to be lost to the National Treasury through the fluctuations of trade or bankruptcies of the corporations to which it is entrusted.

Opposed to the collection of a greater amount of revenue by the government than is necessary to defray the national expenses;

Opposed to the receival of irredeemable bank notes in payment of revenues, by the officers of the Treasury;

Opposed to Clay's Tariff, (which his lieutenant Webster threatens to again fasten upon the South) and to every other devilish contrivance of Legislators in the interest of northern capitalists to enrich the North at the expense of Southern interests;

In short, opposed to Federalism, Federalists and Federal measures, so called and known, in any and every one of the Protean shapes they can be presented to deceive the honest freemen of the republic....and consequently

In favor of a strict and liberal construction of the Constitution of the Union, by the representative agents of the people;

In favor of a constitutional Treasury, and a constitutional currency of GOLD and SILVER;

In favor of the present wise, firm, and patriotic Administration; and all the great measures it has in train for the welfare of the country, for the security of the national revenues, and for the divorce of bank and state.

In favor of Southern commercial independence, free trade and state rights;

In favor of building up Southern ports, Southern ships, and Southern commerce—and of dispensing with our present dependence upon Northern capitalists, factors and traders;

In favor of the annexation of the republic of Texas to the twenty-six republics which constitute the American Union—

In favor of allowing every man and every party a hearing—and knowing that the cause of Democracy is the righteous cause defended by the broad shield of truth and justice, the columns of the Republican will be as they have always been open and free.

For the politicians of all parties to battle in;

Finally—We are in favor of Religion, Temperance, Morality, Education—liberty of speech and of the Press—and we hold that "to the victor belongs the spoils."
