NOMINATING SPEECHES.

By Mr. Longstreet, of Claiborne.

MR. CHAIRMAN AND GENTLEMEN: As a Representative of the county of Claiborne, and of a people who acknowledge with profoundest gratification the recognition already given his eminence and ability, but supported by the will and desire of the whole people of the State of Mississippi, who, knowing and loving him, have again, in unmistakable tones calling upon him to stand forth, I desire to submit to your consideration for the nomination now to be made, the name of General Edward C. Walthall, of Grenada.

I need not tell you in terms of minute description of one you know so well. The soaring eagle, flashing his gray wing against descending sunbeams, charms more in his native grace and beauty than when subjected to microscopic dissection. The towering pine, lifting its grand proportions into the blue ether upon the mountain crest, outlined against the silver sky in all its massive strength and beauty, loses nothing of its pre-eminence because no finger board points to it—so of humanity, the man is the man, and all the rhetoric of art and the analyst's touch can discover naught to add to the pre-existent qualities, and lasting lustre and glory where glory and honor, with transplendent radiance, does not already blaze.

Let me say, then, in a word, that as a statesman, a man and a Mississippian, he is of the noblest, the kingliest type—his statesmanship, broad, comprehensive, liberal, is the outgrowth, the type of the time. The world has at interval, in this lofty sentiment and of chivalry—of poesy and of oratory—of states-craft—of daring adventure, of practical science. But these were epochs, and this is the present. The age is the incarnation, the embodiment, the combination and concentration of all,—and his statesmanship is of it. He measures to the Constitution of the Republic and of the State,—its height,—the needs of the country,—its depth, even to the foundation of good government. In the field of military renown and soldiery achievement—

"Though here the verse so oft her harp has strung
"That not a mountain rears its head unsung,"

I feel that I am peculiarly justified in one brief allusion—for amid the cannon's roar, when shot and shrieking shell were ringing out wild requiems over the dying and the dead, when death, in ghastly horror stalked, and amid the blood and carnage of the battle field, gathered in great harvests of lost lives,—so fine was his courage, so brightly flashed his glittering blade so proudly danced his white plume far in the van, and so true was the chivalric intrepidity that sent him ever to the thickest of the fray that no soldier, no Mississippian, but will rejoice in the tribute that we saw him not in those great conflicts, but, who, in the annals of war, in the stories of comrades see him at proud fame's imperial seat with jewel-blazed, magnificently great," now render unto him. From that eventful day when prompted by a careful love for his soldiery, by a generous spirit of self-sacrifice, ever characteristic, he waived proudly aloft the colors of Confederacy to draw upon himself the fire of a doubtful enemy, and came unscathed from the bullets and flames of blazing musketry. To the end of that conflict, no braver knight, no truer soldier, no Sir Galahad of all chivalry, ever carried himself more nobly, more effectually discharged heroic duty, or more deeply established himself in the hearts and admirations of the followers of a common cause.

From then till now, his life has been along the "way of virtue's paths and bright honor's course,—no vaulting ambition, "no sovereign passion, scorned of restraint," has impelled him towards the goal of his desires, or to the "arduous heights where glory lies." Conscience and fidelity, sensitive honor and high courage, by just and even operation, have led him through a career full of civic, political and military renown, and crowned him with laurel-bright and undying.

It remains now only for us, the representatives of the people of the State of Mississippi, to put the last stone in position, the crown jewel of his life in place, by electing him our representative in that great forum where giants contend and the destinies of States are moulded.

By Mr. Sykes, of the Senate.

MR. CHAIRMAN:—I rise to second the nomination made by the gentleman from Grenada. In doing so, I desire to say that when in March last the President of the United States, in recognition of a re-united people called to his council boards the senior Senator from Mississippi, thereby creating a vacancy from this State in the upper branch of Congress, the hearts of the people of this commonwealth, instincively went out to, and their eyes were immediately centered upon, the one of her many distinguished and gifted sons, best fitted to fill the little circle of the illustrious Lamar. An autaneous, free and unforced conviction, such as manifested itself in the town, village, and rural district, found expression in public meetings, in the press and by private letters. On the 14 and 15 of November, demanding the appointment of that man as Lamar's successor—a voluntary tribute of the people to their sons of fellow citizens, both early and orthy and unprecedented; and when the electric wires flashed the glad tidings that Walthall had been appointed by the Governor to the vacant Senatorship, a spontaneous congratulation and pride burst forth to repeat thunder from every quarter of the State, and thrilled the entire South with the echoes of her rejoicing people.

Qualified will Mississippians will never cease to be as a naval cadet, to love, and to honor Walthall. Students of the dismembering the lustre shed upon their examination when he led her sons to glory on imaginined fields, they will not withhold honor from him, and through him honor to their State, when opportunity offers to have his counsel in the highest and most distinguished representative body known to the American people.

The manifestations in the recent past embolden me to say that Gen'l Walthall has a following such as in power, number and enthusiasm, few men in Mississippi, have ever commanded. And this is owing to the harmonious elements of his character, which is grand from every point of view.

Generous culture, careful discipline, cordial ...vation, accurate knowledge, ex... ...earch, profound and independ... ...generous sympathy with nature, and a close observance of ...things, all superadded to a varied ...Dignified man, a finished man, and ...all that is essential to full... ...tures.

...Liberal and broad, his ...massive. His opin... ...; his decisions ...his character.

...tion of E. ...Demo...

By Mr. H. C. Williamson, of Carroll

MR CHAIRMAN: I would be untrue to my feelings and untrue to the constituents that I have the honor to represent, were I to fail to lend my voice in support of the nomination of James Z George as his own successor in the Senate of the United States. I know full well their love for him I know, too, their admiration for his greatness and their hearty endorsement of his matchless course. I have often heard old and old Carroll (his home county) speak of his boyhood and young manhood, of the days when the sound of the ax was heard reverberated in the forests along the road side, from Carrollton to Yazoo City. When in the course of time the genius and power of his great mind developed and ripened into the profound jurist and able statesman, and when Mississippi called forth her brave and chivalric sons to defend her rights and honor, he left home, family and all that was dear to him behind and marched, in obedience to this summons, in the face of shot and shell, discharging every duty of the brave and gallant soldier till the cause for which he fought was lost; and returning home, he bore the laurels so proudly won, yet conquered but not subdued. Again, when dark clouds hovered over us and not a star could be seen in our political firmament, twas then in the hour of their affliction the people of Mississippi turned instinctively to him for guidance and deliverance, and again he responded to the call of his State and battled with the dark and overwhelming horde of Radicalism till Mississippian regained control of Mississippi. It was he who dared to demand of a sectional and Republican President of the United States that a hired soldiery sent here to insult and oppress our people, should be withdrawn from the soil of our State. And when in the course of time he was chosen in the fitness of things to represent in the U. S. Senate the State he loved and had served so well, twas but the voice of a grateful people bidding a faithful fellow citizen to receive the highest honor within their gift as his reward. I but voice the wish of every citizen of Carroll county when I heartily second the nomination of James Z. George as his own successor in the U. S. Senate.

By Mr. Henry, of Leflore.

MR. CHAIRMAN AND GENTLEMEN OF THE CAUCUS: I rise not for the purpose of pronouncing a eulogy upon the character and acts of my friend, Gen. James Z. George, for no words of mine could add anything to his fame, or the confidence and esteem in which he is held by the people of the State of Mississippi. Nor could they dim the luster of his brilliant intellect, or detract anything from the powers of his mighty genius; for his daily walk for the last twenty-eight or thirty years, speaks louder to the people of his native State, than the loftiest panygeric eulogy. I have known this gentleman long, intimately and well. His walk both public and private, has been all that any good citizen of the State could desire. His course as a representative, both in and out of the Federal Congress, has borne the scrutiny of the most skeptical, and I am satisfied that the public interest, in his hands, will not suffer, and more especially do I say to the gentlemen of this caucus, that the agricultural interest of the State of Mississippi will ever be zealously guarded and ably protected in the hands of James Z. George, and if I could add one jewel to the chaplet that now encircles his brow, by making him Chief Justice of the United States, I would gladly do so. Gentlemen, I heartily second his nomination.

Impromptu Remarks by Hon. O. B. Collins.

IN SECONDING THE NOMINATION OF GEN. J. Z. GEORGE FOR U. S. SENATOR.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Caucus:

I had not expected to say anything on this occasion, but the eloquent words of the gentleman of Yazoo just uttered, have awakened in my bosom emotions that have slumbered for ten long years. I well remember the time to which he refers, and the noble and gallant part that Gen. Jas. Z. George took in the memorable campaign of that eventful epoch—that period in which the destinies of the people of Mississippi seemed to be involved. I remember well the dark and ominous cloud that overshadowed the State from North to South, from East to West—a time when Republican misrule and legalized oppression ruled the hour. Then it was that Gen. George was called to conduct, as Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee of the State, that memorable and exciting campaign so vividly remembered by many of you.

I saw him as he traversed the State, and with counsel, advice, labor and eloquent words, rallying the hosts of the Democratic party and reviving the hopes of the despondent. Amid that trying canvass we beheld a rift in the dark and ominous cloud, and ere it closed, a silver lining appeared, then an effulgent ray of light burst upon us—the light of peace, pro-perity and happiness had once more dawned to gladden the hearts of Mississippians.

I saw Gen. George earlier still,—I saw him at Grenada when the fierce storm of battle was raging in the land with sword in hand and his regimentals carrying with his countenance to the ... of the Tennessee, where he distinguished himself as a soldier—when ... that was grand and ...

...and the banners ...ried forever,—this ...patriot returned to ...me, to re-enter the ...

No one ... citizen, soldier, patriot, jurist, and ...man, he has made a record of which ...may well be proud.

Sir, I have watched with pride and pleasure the rapid and merited promotion of this distinguished fellow-citizen, who though young in years and still in the prime of vigorous manhood, has made a brilliant and honored record, and by his long devotion to his State and her interests has built for himself a monument in the hearts and affections of the people more enduring than marble or brass.

And gentlemen of the Caucus, when you elect him to-night to succeed himself in the United States Senate, you confer an honor, it is true, on him, but at the same time you confer great honor upon yourselves

Thanking you for your indulgence I will not detain you longer.

FOR THE CLARION.]

Proceedings of Holmes County Delegate Convention to Express Choice for Congress.

The delegate County Convention for Holmes county met at the court-house at Lexington on January 9th, 1886, pursuant to the call of the Democratic Executive Committee, and organized by electing J. M. McCaleb, temporary chairman, and A. C. Durdin, temporary secretary.

It was moved and seconded that the chairman appoint a committee on credentials, consisting of one member from each beat. E. F. Noel was appointed from beat 1; W. T. Johnson, from beat 2; M. C. Gill, from beat 3; J. M. Bates, from beat 4; and S. D. Gwin, from beat 5.

The Committee retired, and reported the following delegates entitled to seats and to represent the precincts named:

Acona Precinct—W. A. Reid, L. L. Hunes, R. W. Harvey, H. J. Reid, J. T. Buck, R. T. Bailey, Sr., and J. T. Walton.

Bowling Green Precinct—J. P. Eubanks, T. H. Raynor, and F. A. Howell.

Durant—J. G. Montgomery, W. T. Johnson, W. C. Red, F. H. Bills, T. L. Stevens, E. T. Weems, Jim Watson and Edgar West.

Goodman Precinct—Ben West and M. C. Gill.

Franklin Precinct—R. G. Owen.

Lexington—C. V. Irwin, E. F. Noel, Baxter Wilson, proxy, S. F. Horton, W. L. Dyer, G. C. Phillips and A. C. Durdin.

Richland—A. D. Sample and B. W. Cotton, proxy.

West Station—L. A. Powers, Jno. Bustes and J. R. Moore.

Ashton J. L. Mitchell and S. D. Gwin, proxy.

Tchula Precinct—S. D. Gwin, G. W. Shackelford, Sam Goodman, F. A. Wyat and John Kelly.

Marcella Precinct—J. P. Neal, J. K. Hope, J. W. Wade, John Shurls, S. D. Gwin, proxy.

The committee on credentials also reported that Messrs. J. H. Downer and F. L. Thurmond, of Emory, were present, claiming to be delegates from this precinct, but had no credentials, and referred their case to the Convention. The report of the committee was received and adopted.

Upon motion the temporary organization was made permanent, and Messrs. J. H. Downer and F. L. Thurmond were admitted as delegates from Emory.

Mr. C. V. Gwin put Dr. W. L. Keirn in nomination for Congress.

Mr. L. A. Purvis put Col. J. G. Hamilton in nomination.

There being no other names put in nomination, a ballot was ordered, and a call of precincts was had, with the following result:

For Col. J. G. Hamilton—Franklin, one vote; Durant, 8; Bowling Green, 3; Emory, 2; West, 3; Richland, 3; and Eulogy, 1.

For Dr. W. L. Keirn, Lexington, 8 votes, Goodman, 2; Ebenezer, 4; Tchula, 5; Ashton 2; Marcella, 5; Acona, 8.

Pending the roll-call the Ebenezer precinct presented their credentials, showing that S. N. Sample, T. D. Noel, P. A. Parker, Sr., and A. J. Brown were chosen delegates from that precinct, and no objection being made, they were permitted to vote. The Bee Lake and Payne's precincts were called and no response being m de, Col. J. G. Hamilton thereupon stated to the Convention that he was at the Bee Lake precinct meeting and its vote was cast for him, and asked that it be so counted, and offered to agree to the counting of any missing precint for Dr. Keirn that Dr. Keirn would state he knew was cast for him. The chairman ruled that as no credentials, delegate nor proxy from Bee Lake precinct was in the convention, its 7 votes could not be cast. Col. Hamilton thereupon withdrew his name from before the convention, and declared himself as a candidate from the district at large.

The result of the ballot was then announced, being 34 votes for Dr. W. L. Keirn and 27 for Col. J. G. Hamilton. Dr. W. L. Keirn was thereupon declared to be the choice of this county for Congress.

It was moved, and carried, that the chairman appoint two delegates from each beat to the Congressional Convention for the 5th District of Mississippi, and five delegates from the County at Large, and that the chairman be also a delegate, and that the delegation be instructed to vote as a unit, and to use all honorable means to secure Dr. W. L. Keirn's nomination.

The following delegates were appointed: From the County at Large—Baxter Wilson, C. V. Gwin, E. F. Noel, J. N. McLean, J. D. Dabney and J. M. McCaleb.

From Beat 1: G. A. Wilson, W. L. Dyer.

From Beat 2: Jno. C. Pitken, T. J. Tate.

From Beat 3: M. C. Gill, S. N. Sample.

From Beat 4: J. T. Nixon, J. E. Stanfield.

From Beat 5: S. D. Gwin, H. J. Reid.

The Convention, upon motion made, and carried, adjourned sine die.

The Hon. Edwards Pierrepont for Free Coinage of Silver.

St. Louis Republican.]

Mr. John T. Field of this city received the following letter yesterday from the Hon. Edwards Pierrepont:

MY DEAR SIR: I thank you much for your very valuable pamphlets. One of these things must happen: the silver bill will be suspended or repealed, or there will be a substitute increasing the weight of the dollar, or there will be free coinage of the present dollar.

Any stopgage of coinage kills silver and gives all power to the gold men for our generation at least War or famine would not cause more trouble.

No silver bill which does not make coinage free and circulate the silver by legal tender notes will be of much use. I mean free coinage for American silver I doubt not much that if we open our mints to the free coinage of the silver of those nations which will not coin silver at all, we will not regret it.

It is humiliating to see the richest, greatest nation in the world afraid to adopt a financial policy suited to our conditions, and stretching our suppliant hands across the sea to beg for directions as to how we may arrange our currency.

The Bland bill must not be repealed unless there is a substitute, and legal tender notes must circulate the silver or nothing will be gained.

EDWARDS PIERREPONT.

New York, Dec 21.

An Unwise Prediction.

N. Y. Sun.]

Isn't our esteemed St. Louis contemporary, the Globe Democrat, a little hasty when it throws out this hint?

"Mem. for the Hon. WILLIAM M. EVARTS: No silver idiot will ever be President of the United States"

What is to prevent a "silver idiot" from being elected President if the majority of the people in this country are for silver? The Globe-Democrat should examine into the composition of the House of Representatives. According to the most thorough canvass of the House yet made, the silver idiots have a clear majority of seventy five.

If it were only a question of his views on silver, that body would vote for Brother EVARTS for President with the greatest cheerfulness; and the country at large might do the same.

The impediment, the damnable obstacle that stands in EVARTS' way is his relation to the HAYES fraud.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF MISSISSIPPI.
In the Matter of the Receivership of the Vicksburg and Meridian Rail Road Company.
IT IS ORDERED IN THE FOREGOING CAUSE that the Receiver in said cause pay to the former employees of said Rail Road Company, or others having demands against said Rail Road Company, out of the moneys in his hands, or to be received, as provided in a former order in this cause, and to no others, for any liability accrued before his appointment as Receiver.
It is further Ordered, That said Receiver shall not in any case be subject to suit as such Receiver, in any other Court than in the Court by which he holds his appointment, and then not without leave of said Court, or one of the judges thereof.
It is further Ordered, That in any case in which the said Receiver, his employe, or property in his charge shall be interfered with he shall report the same to said Court, or one of the judges thereof, for such relief as may be deemed just and proper.
Ordered, this December 26, 1885.
E. A. HILL, Judge.
