MANY PROMINENT PERSONS ON LUSITANIA'S PASSENGER LIST

Many Americans of Note on List of Passengers

Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Charles Frohman, Charles Klein and Justus Miles Forman Among Those Who Sailed on the Lusitania.

ELBERT HUBBARD ON WAY TO WRITE ABOUT WAR

There were many prominent passengers on board the Lusitania when she sailed from this port on last Saturday. Alfred G. Vanderbilt was on his way to England to spend three weeks in the British Isles.

Charles Frohman, one of the passengers on the Lusitania, is one of New York's foremost producing managers. He has under his management more theatrical stars than any other one man, and has interests in many theatres throughout the country. Maude Adams, Otis Skinner, Helen Ware, Baby Deslys, John Drew, William Gillette, Ethel Barrymore and several others are the principal artists under his management.

Charles Klein, who was another passenger on the Lusitania, is considered one of the leading playwrights of the present day. He was born in London on January 7, 1867, and married twenty-four years later Lillian Gottlieb, at that time a play reader for Charles Frohman.

Elbert Hubbard, generally known as Fra Elbertus, is an author, journalist, lecturer and farmer. He is best known through his two publications, the Philistine and the Fra, and the product of his bookbinderies at East Aurora, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen D. Loney were widely known in New York and Baltimore society. For nearly ten years they have lived in England, their last home in that country having been Guildsborough House, in Northamptonshire. Both Mr. and Mrs. Loney have been devoted to hunting in England and when the war broke out they disposed of their hunters and came here, being at the Gotham for the greater part of the winter.

Mrs. Loney is the daughter by his first marriage of the late G. Bruce Brown, who left her a handsome fortune. She married her stepmother's half-brother, Mr. Loney is a son by his second marriage of the late William A. Loney of Baltimore and this city, who died last summer in Skaneateles, N. Y. He is a half-brother of Mrs. Frederick Roosevelt and of Mrs. G. Bruce Brown.

Justus Miles Forman originally meant to go to the front as the correspondent of a New York evening newspaper, but arrangements to that effect were not completed when the steamer sailed, so that he went only as a free lance.

Dr. Warren Pearl was in Europe when the war began and was arrested in Belgium as an English spy. He was held prisoner by the Germans for some time. In December he returned with his wife to this country. She is a daughter of the late John Duncan and a sister of Stuart Duncan and the late Mrs. Walter Watson. Both Dr. and Mrs. Pearl were on the way to Belgium, where they expected to engage in hospital work.

Other New Yorkers Aboard.

A. S. Witherbee of Larchmont, also a passenger, is head of the Mexican Petroleum Solid Fuel Company of 527 Fifth avenue. The company has a big trade with England, closing a $1,000,000 contract not long ago. Mr. Witherbee went to England two or three times a year in the course of his business. He is a member of the Larchmont Yacht Club and the Lambs Club of New York.

Herman H. Myers, another passenger, is a millinery dealer of 684 Broadway. It was said at his home, 605 West 113th street, that he had gone to London on business.

W. Bredrick-Cloete one of the prominent British passengers, is one of the directors of Vickers, Ltd., the famous armaments manufacturing firm. He is also a large landed proprietor in Texas and in Mexico.

Father Basil Maturin is one of a well known High Church family, many of whom, including Father Basil, later became converts to the Roman Catholic Church. Father Basil was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and went to the Cowly brotherhood under Father Benson.

Commander J. Foster Stackhouse, a member of the Royal Geographical Society, was the organizer of the British Antarctic expedition sent out in 1914 to determine the coast line of King Edward VII. Land.

Here for Sargent Bids.

Sir Hugh Percy Lane, who was one of the passengers on the Lusitania, is noted in England as having a "wonderful eye for a picture." The son of an Irish clergyman, he was born in County Cork forty years ago. Although well known as a writer on art subjects and as a leader in the revival of a national school of Irish art, he is chiefly prominent in the public eye as director of the National Gallery in Ireland, which his progressive methods have brought to a high level of excellence.

David Alfred Thomas, a Welsh colliery king, who was also aboard, is very prominent in trade and politics in the United Kingdom. He represented a mining constituency for twenty-two years in Parliament, and though a mine owner himself and representative of other large holders he has always stood close to the miners. Mr. Thomas is 55 years old. In March last year he paid a visit to this country in the interest of other large mine owners in Britain to bring about an amalgamation of American collieries, but did not succeed. His daughter, Lady Alice Mackworth, was also a passenger.

Charles T. Jeffery of Kenosha, Wis., who was also aboard the ship destroyed, is president of the Thomas B. Jeffery Company, makers of Jeffery automobiles and motor trucks. He is 38 years old and married. He has one child. The Jeffrey company has been very active in selling motor trucks for war purposes abroad, and Mr. Jeffery only recently returned to the United States after having spent five months in London, where he stayed at the Hotel Savoy.

Making Semi-annual Trip.

Charles Cheever Hardwick, a member of the lace importing firm of Burr & Hardwick, 130 and 132 Fifth avenue, was on the Lusitania making his semi-annual trip to Europe to buy for the firm. He lives with his wife at 224 Oakwood avenue, Orange. Usually Mrs. Hardwick accompanies her husband on his business trips abroad, but she stayed at home this time because of fear of the perils of war.

Gerald A. Letts is an antique furniture dealer of 21 East Fifty-fifth street. His home is in London and he was on his way to join his wife there. No word nas been received from him.

Frank Partridge is also an antique furniture dealer at 741 Fifth avenue, with a branch in London.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden H. Hammond of 30 East Seventieth street left on the Lusitania for a six weeks trip abroad. They have children in school at Bernardsville, N. J. He is a broker.

Mrs. R. D. Shymers of 41 West Forty-seventh street went abroad on business, her mother, Mrs. J. J. Henkins, said last night.

Going to Visit Cousins.

Michael G. Byrne, a retired merchant, of 440 West Fiftieth street, was going to Liverpool to visit some cousins. He is Irish, and his wife, who is German, said at her home last night that they were in Germany when war was declared and had immediately started home. They didn't get back to New York until October 8, after trying experiences.

A. H. Adams, an officer of the United States Rubber Company, and Mrs. Adams, were living at the Marie Antoinette Hotel before sailing on the ship, according to information given out at the hotel last night. They were accompanied by their son, W. McM. Adams, a soldier in the British army, who was returning to join England's forces.

Robert G. Burnside of 562 West End avenue said he was a relative of Mrs. J. S. Burnside, who was aboard the ship with her daughter Vivian and a maid. Her husband had retired from business, he said, and was in Europe, where the wife and daughter were to meet him before going to visit relatives.

Miss Phyllis Hutchinson of Birkenhead, near Oxton, Cheshire, England, had been here for two months recuperating after her labors in England making comfort kits for the soldiers at the front. She had been entertained at the home of her uncle, Robert A. Franks, at Llewellyn Park, West Orange. Last week her family sent a cable asking her to return at once. She had fully recovered her health.

Dr. J. Houghton of Troy, New York, was a passenger on the ship, having sailed to take charge of a Red Cross hospital at La Panna, Belgium. A. Depage has charge of a certain phase of the relief work in Belgium. Friends came to inquire about Cyril H. Brereton of Los Angeles, Cal., who with his wife and two children had shipped second class.

At 139 Riverside Drive, the home of Max M. Schwartz, all information was refused last night except that Mr. Schwartz was a cloak and suit manufacturer at 137 Madison avenue; that he was a widower and had taken the trip for business.

187 of Passengers American Citizens

There were 1,254 passengers and 850 crew on the Lusitania, making a total of 2,104. These are the official figures given out at the offices of the Cunard Steamship Company here yesterday. Among the passengers were 187 American citizens and 956 English subjects.

The passenger list was divided as follows: First class, 291; second class, 601; third class, 362. Among the passengers were nine first class and twenty-nine second class passengers from the Cameronia who were transferred to the Lusitania at the last minute because the Cameronia was drafted for Government service.
