Dr. Morse's Invigorating Elixir or Cordial.—There are facts and principles which can only be reached by deep research and laborious investigation. The superiority of the invigorating elixir over every other restorative and anti-dipsetic preparation is not a fact of this class. It lies upon the surface it is self demonstrable, palpable to all eyes. To overlook it is impossible; to doubt it, is to deny evidence to the evidence of the senses. As a means of removing every form of nervous disease, whether acute or chronic, continuous or spasmodic; whether affecting the springs of motion, or the source of sensation, it has never had, an equal. In neuralgia, tic doloreux, rheumatism, general convulsion of the system, morbid melancholy, hysteria, spasms, paralysis, epilepsy, palpitation of the heart &c., it produces a most astounding effect—rallying, bracing, it might almost be said electrifying, both body and mind, and replacing torpor and weakness with energy and strength. As a stomachic, it has properties of a less positive and potent. The weakest stomach recovers its vigor, on receives it, if never before enjoyed, under the influence of this great tonic, which not only renovates the digestive powers, but conserves the vigor it creates, and keeps unstable health it restores. This is the declaration not of one or two, but of thousands. The medical profession, slow to recognize any innovations upon established remedies, admit the commanding efficacy of this wonderful antidotical. The cordial is put up, highly concentrated, in pint bottles. Price three dollars per bottle, two for five dollars, six for twelve dollars. C. H. RING, Proprietor, 192 Broadway, N. Y.
