Late Foreign News.

AMERICAN.

BOSTON, Nov. 12th, 3 a. m.—The fire broke out about from three terrible gas explosions in or near Jordan, Marsh & Co.'s store. The fire has crossed Washington street toward Temple Place and has gained rapidly. It now looks as if the whole block towards the Common would go.

3.40 a. m.—As seen from the Providence depot, where the Western Union Company has established its office, the flames are higher and apparently spreading. The reports are that the whole block on Washington street and Temple Place will be destroyed.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12th.—Paymaster Plunkett, Purchasing Paymaster of the Navy Yard at Boston, telegraphs Secretary Robeson that his office on Kilby street is burned, but that he saved all the records.

The Assistant United States Treasurer at Boston telegraphs that the contents of the vault are undestroyed safe.

The number of firms and business houses burned out is 900. The number of dwelling and lodging houses, 60.

The Gazette was among the papers burned out, by the fire caused by the gas explosion this morning, as were Jacob J. Smith & Co., R. H. Stoer & Co. and W. R. Stevens & Co. on Summer street, Stevens, Crane & Bowe, corner of Summer and Washington, Wheeler & Wilson in the same building, and Stephenson's dry goods store was slightly damaged.

The building in Central Court occupied by Crosby, Nourse & Pope, fronting on Washington street, was burned down. The Parker House was damaged a little. The store of Palmer, Jacobs & Co., Washington street, was damaged by water.

BOSTON, Nov. 12th.—The Sub-Treasury was removed to-day from the Exchange to the Custom House. The Post Office is temporarily located in Faneuil Hall. Postmaster Burt does everything possible under the circumstances to expedite the distribution of mail matter.

Gilmore has placed the Coliseum at the disposal of parties wanting to store goods.

The inner safe of the Freeman's Bank, in regard to which there has been considerable anxiety, has been opened and the contents found safe. The outer safe fell from the second story and broke a hole inside, and depositors' trunks, valuables and other contents are all destroyed. The bank will probably lose nothing. The vaults of other banks, with their contents, are safe. The contents of the safe of the Hide and Leather Bank were, however, destroyed.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12th.—The great calamity at Boston is the main topic of discussion to-day in financial and trade circles. Many conservative underwriters place the loss at $75,000,000, and the insurance at $50,000,000, of which fifteen or twenty millions are borne by British Companies, in which, since the Chicago fire, many American Companies have reinsured. The knowledge of the fact that the Government is ready to throw all its power against a panic caused by this enormous loss, has made the loss have less effect than many anticipated.

The values of merchandise have been advanced from 7 to 10 per cent. Boston men are already here making selections and buying material for tents to be placed on the Boston Common for the sale of goods.

The condition of the Boston Insurance Companies has involved much doubt, though those familiar with their conservative policy believe that not all will succumb.

The destruction of 11,000,000 pounds of wool, and a stock of 3,000,000 suits of clothing, and almost the entire supply of woolen and clothing for Eastern Canada and the Northwest, has caused an advance here of seven cents per pound in the wool price. Heavy domestic Woolens have advanced over thirty cents per yard. Blankets, flannels and shawls seek an advance of ten per cent. Coffees are rather excited; two or three large grinders and others in Boston lost in removing from market some 15,000 bags. Some 25,000 half chests of tea, largely Japanese and Oolong, were destroyed. There is a measurably excited market here.

The condition of Wall street turns upon the action of the Treasury Department, whose programme is not yet decided upon. It is stated, however, that the greenbacks deposited with the banks by the Treasury early in October, will be allowed to remain for the present.

The money market is stringent and advancing from 7 per cent. per annum to ¾ per cent. per day, with closing business at ⅝ per cent. Sterling dull and weak at 8¾; prime 60-day bills 10¾ for sight. Fears are entertained of a supply of insurance bills on London.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12th.—Business was almost entirely suspended and the city wore a Sunday appearance. The flags were everywhere draped in mourning, out of respect to the memory of General Meade.

The route over which the funeral cortege moved was filled with people early this morning. The body of the deceased was removed from the house to St. Mark's Church, where it was placed in front of the altar, guarded by a detail selected by Gen. McDowell. Long before half past ten, the time fixed for the services, the church was packed.

The officiating clergymen were, the Rev. Mr. Hoffman, Bishop Odenheimer and Bishop Whipple. The first named read the prayers, the latter made an address eulogistic of the deceased.

The funeral procession commenced to move about half-past eleven, and took nearly an hour to pass a given point. The National, State and City officials vied with private citizens to honor the dead.

The coffin was carried on a gun-carriage, drawn by six horses, followed by a horse with a saddle, in which were variant boots reversed. The coffin was covered with the American colors, and his sword with a wreath on top.

President Grant in citizen's dress rode in an open carriage occupied by Gen. H. Stuart and other gentlemen. Gens. Sherman, Sheridan, and other army officers appeared in full uniform. The procession was a very imposing affair.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12th.—Secretary Boutwell will take no action relative to the financial complications which may grow out of the Boston fire, unless it shall be deemed necessary and will be recommended by Assistant Secretary Richardson and Comptroller of the Currency Knox, who will examine into the condition of the Boston National Banks. The Secretary does not anticipate any financial panic.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12th.—The Bulletin says that the wool dealers recently sold heavily to Boston merchants, but that the wool is still greatly held here or in transit, thus escaping destruction. Only a small amount of Boston paper, on account of wool transactions, is held here. There are no fears entertained that other than extension of time will be necessary on maturity. A partial suspension of the wool trade for weeks is expected until the insurance balances are perfected. The New York houses are not seriously affected, the actual sufferers will be the public at large, as all kinds of woolen goods are expected to advance 20 to 40 per cent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16th.—The Mixed Commission on American and British Claims to-day awarded claims amounting to $330,000 gold, to be paid by the United States to Great Britain, principally for property of British subjects destroyed or seized by Union forces during the war.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14th.—The Committee of wholesale grocers who are raising a subscription for the Boston sufferers, and have already raised $75,000, received a telegram yesterday from the Boston grocers saying the money is not needed, as Chicago has done her share. Sympathy from Boston concur in the statement that the amount of personal suffering caused by the fire is very small.

The Boston Advertiser of yesterday says: "Before the firemen had been successful in assuming in the fire so that they could assure us it would spread no further, Chicago, which suffered so much more than we only thirteen months ago, telegraphed to the Mayor that she would send us help. Other cities speedily followed with generous offers of assistance. We have not seen any of the replies made to these despatches, but we learn from Chicago that Mayor Gunther has telegraphed to the Mayor of that city that Boston will gratefully accept the pecuniary assistance. We can appreciate the feeling which prompted the Mayor's reply. We do not wish to seem ungracious when friends far and near are so generous, but we think the language used was calculated to convey the wrong impression. We cannot imagine how the money to be sent us can properly be used. Up to the middle of yesterday forenoon but twenty-five applications had been made at Charlestown street for relief in consequence of the fire. The district destroyed included but a small number of dwelling houses. We do not believe that $500,000 in all would be insufficient to make good all the property of the poorer classes which was destroyed by the fire. Should millions be given to us it would be a misappropriation of it to bestow it upon other than poor people. We could not grant the use of it to merchants; we might ask to use it to give food and clothing to persons who are simply out of employment and will very likely get some. Estimates now place the entire loss at $80,000,000.

JOURNALISM AND ITS HEROES—NOVELISTS.—The hero of the coming American novel will be a journalist. The long haired artist and the author who parts his locks in the middle have been trotting up and down the highways and by-ways of English, French and German fiction until people are no longer curious about Bohemia and the second heavens. They have had their fill of Keenmaier loves. The struggles and sorrows of the man with a picture or poem are almost as familiar, and as great a bore, as the plaints of a man with a grievance. We know all about Mr. Vance, the painter, and Mr. Copperfield, the writer, and what Bulwer and Dickens have left round on the subject of art and attics is plaintively laid open to us by Herr Freitag and Mme. George Sand, to say nothing of their predecessor, the sentimentalists of the schools of Rousseau and Goethe. The world of culture, with its sensibilities and aspirations, will always be a fruitful source of creative suggestion and popular interest. But culture changes its conditions and forms. As journalism becomes a more intimate, integral part of polite thought and action, and at the same time a more positive influence upon ideas, manners and customs; as its dramatic personae are taken from among the more attractive classes of society; as the personal exploits and achievements of these are elevated and multiplied, the theme will impress itself upon the imagination of the many who read, and be reflected in the pages of those who write to be read; so that, if there be an American novel, its hero is sure to be a journalist. Indeed, the lives of many of our most successful editors are eminently stirring and romantic, and the story of any one of them could not fail to fire the fancy of the rising generation of novel readers, telling how Samson, who came to the city with a brown paper parcel under his arm, sought and secured employment on the Daily Riverpipe at three dollars a week, walloped his man eight days in seven, rose to the position of fighting-editor, then night-editor, then managing-editor, then editor-in-chief and proprietor, with an income of $50,000 a year and a broken nose; showing how Hercules, who, at the very outset of his newspaper experience, was fallen upon by all the poetresses and actresses, resisted the blandishments of beauty and devoted his noble talents and energies to spiking the guns of the corruptionists, and was promoted in consequence for probity and valor, until now, like a witch astride a broomstick, he rides the whirlwind and guides the storm in the great city of Rataplan, showing how little Jack the giant-killer saved his country by the writing of three lines to a telegraphic despatch, which announced that Thompson had been declared elected constable by gigantic frauds, and how Fitz Gibbon, the great philanthropic journalist, fitted out a fleet at his own expense and placed Capt. Lemuel Gulliver in charge of it, to go in quest of the erudite Dr. Pangloss, lost in the wilds of Patagonia! The man who says that the hero of the coming American novel will not be a journalist, is simply—an ass.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SEE WOMEN NOT LIVE THEREIN.—A correspondent of a Western journal, writing from California, narrates the following:

When about fifteen miles from Santa Cruz we came to the summit, and there changed horses and obtained some delicious grapes, which were just picked from the vines. The woman who brought them out had been trying to wash, and there were seven small children squalling and howling around and tugging at her skirts, till it was a wonder how she could do anything.

I said to her, "You have a large family if all those babies are yours."

"Yes, I have," said she, with a weary smile on her worn face; "it's pretty hard scratching, I tell you. Them's twins, and so's them," pointing to two pair.

A bride of two days, who was intending to make Santa Cruz her home, suddenly asked her, "Does that sort of thing happen often here?" pointing to the twins.

"Law, yes! most every woman in the county has got one or two pair, and a woman is not much thought of that don't raise her pair. Yes, babies grow promiscuous here."

"Charlie," whispered the bride, "I won't come here to live. I wouldn't live down here for anything."

A CURIOUS calculation has been made by an eccentric individual, well known in Paris for his antipathy to the fly. He collected 3000 in a room measuring 70 cubic feet. On the floor he spread a pounded loaf of sugar. At the end of four days he went to investigate the result of his experiment. There remained a teaspoonful of sugar. This statistician, therefore, calculates that, sugar being at the rate of thirteen cents a pound, a fly costs the country twenty cents from its birth to its demise—that is, if fed on loaf sugar.

DR. HUME, who was physician to the Duke of Wellington, placed before the advertising clerk a "death" and five shillings for its insertion. The clerk looked at it and said, "seven and sixpence." The doctor remarked that he had never paid but five shillings for such a simple insertion. "Simple!" exclaimed the clerk, "why, he's universally beloved and deeply regretted! Seven and six!"

A LITTLE girl in a New York Orphan Asylum quarrelled with another girl and scratched her face. For this she was punished and required to learn and repeat a verse from the Bible, being allowed to make her own selection. She chose the first verse of Psalm 144, which is as follows: "Blessed be the Lord, my strength, which teacheth my hand to war, and my fingers to fight."

"POWER, can you tell me in what building people are most likely to catch cold?" "Why, no; me stranger in de town, and can't tell dat." "Well, I will tell you: it is the bank." "How's dat?" "Because there are so many drafts in it." "Dat's good; but can you tell me what makes so many drafts in it?" "No." "Because so many go dere to raise de wind."

"DID you visit Rome in your travels?" asked a gentleman, in the interval of a waltz, of his partner, who had just returned from doing the continent of Europe. "Rome? Rome?" replied the young lady, in a hesitating voice, "let me see. Did we go to Rome? Oh, yes! That is where we saw a woman shaving a dog on the steps of a church."

THE problem of a water meter appears to have been solved. A mechanic in Boston has invented and patented one, which can be attached to any supply pipe, and will indicate the smallest quantity of water which passes through.

J. C. CUTTING, a large California wool grower, has sued the Pacific Railroad Co. for $50,000 damages, he having been put off a train on account of having stopped over on a through ticket, and thereby lost a sale.
