Political Gossip.

The following interesting document was sent to a select number of gentlemen :—

[PRIVATE AND CONFIDENTIAL.] NEW YORK, Sept. 17, 1856.

DEAR SIR—You are requested to meet a few of the friends of Buchanan and Breckinridge, at Room No. 229 New York Hotel, on Thursday, the 18th day of Sept. inst., at half-past 7 o'clock P. M., for consultation. Yours, respectfully,

WATTS SHERMAN,
EDWIN LUDLOW,
ROYAL PHELPS,
JAMES T. SOUTTER,
WILSON G. HUNT,
WILLIAM B. DUNCAN,
E. K. ALBURTIS,
HENRY EBBEN,
AUGUSTUS SCHELL.

Owing to the crowded state of our columns we are unable to give any of the proceedings of this important assembly of distinguished politicians in this morning's paper. It will suffice for the present to say that the country is safe.

At a meeting of the Middlesex North American Association of Unitarian ministers, held on the 10th inst., at Shirley, Mass., the following resolution was unanimously adopted:—

Resolved, That as Christian ministers, remembering our responsibility to God and our fellow men, we regard with anxiety and alarm the present position of our country and the position of the existing administration in relation to the evil of slavery; that we deeply sympathize with our brethren in Kansas, exposed to the ruffianism of the lawless marauders of Missouri, and the cruel despotism of the general government Washington; that we see no hope of redress but in the peaceful revolution at the ballot box; and we hereby pledge ourselves to do what in us lies for the consummation of such a revolution in the election of John C. Fremont to the Presidency of this nation.

The Columbia, South Carolina, Times having heard the news from Maine, is more than ever certain that Fremont and Dayton will be elected, and exhorts South Carolina to have nothing to do with the hopeless struggle in behalf of Buchanan, and even to refuse to vote at all in the election.

Hon. A. G. Magrath has consented to run for Congress in the Charleston district of South Carolina, in place of Governor Aiken. In his letter of acceptance Judge Magrath announces his determination not to enter personally in the canvass. He says that he neither desires nor solicits the office, but will, if elected, discharge its duties to the best of his ability.

While the black democrats and Fillmore Know Nothings are making a great time over Fremont's being a Catholic, no one ever thinks of accusing Buchanan or Fillmore of having any religion at all.

The whole State of Illinois is in a political ferment, such as was never before known. In every county, almost in every town, in the day and the night time, political meetings are held, and a degree of zeal is infused into them which surprises every one.

QUERY.—In case the Presidential election goes to the House and the delegation from any particular State is equally divided, what course will be pursued in voting? ANSWER.—The vote of that State would count one against a choice, but none for any candidate. It was so with the votes of two states—Vermont and Maryland, we believe—in the struggle between Jefferson and Burr in 1804. But for this Jefferson would have been chosen at once.

Peter Alexander, of Tensas parish, the Fillmore elector for the Sixth district of Louisiana, declared in his speech in New Orleans, on the 10th instant, that if the Presidential contest were confined to Fremont and Buchanan, he would not vote for Buchanan.

Charles G. Loring, Esq., a prominent lawyer of Boston, who has always heretofore been intimately identified with the whig party, has come out for Fremont and Dayton.

LOOKING FOR THE UNDERGROUND RAILROAD.—The Memphis Evening News relates that a negro fireman employed on the Somerville Branch Railroad stole the locomotive Saturday morning, and taking on seven or eight other negroes, ran away with it to within twelve miles of that city, when they left it and took to the woods

ADVERTISEMENTS RENEWED EVERY DAY.

To Southern and Western Merchants.
CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.

In the year 1848 I fortunately succeeded in making a discovery in the manufacture of gin, by which it is deprived of all acrid and inflaming properties, and rendered perfectly pure.

This article was introduced to the public under the title of "Wolf's Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps."

My manufactory for this article is at Schiedam, in Holland, and no individual, save myself, has imported, or can import a solitary bottle of this pure alcoholic preparation.

The reputation which it rapidly acquired as one the most powerful curatives in disease, and as a wholesome, invigorating and pleasant beverage, is without a parallel in the history of importations. Many thousands of our most enlightened physicians, after full trial, have borne testimony to its medicinal properties in the cure of many distressing maladies. Analytical chemists, over their own signatures, have certified to its purity, and our citizens, in every section of the Union, have attested that, as a beverage, it is free from all those impurities and adulterations which, in the spirituous compounds of the day, form a basis for intemperance, and which are sold under the names of brandy, rum, gin, and their relatives.

The well-earned celebrity of the "Schnapps" soon excited the avarice of speculation, and my genuine article had scarcely received the impress of universal approbation, when a host of impostors, imitators, and importers of a spurious article from other parts of Europe than Holland, entered the lists for competition determined, if possible, to thrust their base imitations into the market under the title of pure gin. There are certain national peculiarities in manufacture which distinguish that of one country from another by superior excellence, totally beyond the reach of any imitation. England has long been famed for her porter, which art in other countries has never equaled; Scotland and Ireland for their whiskey; France for her unequaled brands of brandy; and Holland for her gin.

The imitations of gin in other parts of Europe have been as far inferior to that of Holland, and especially of Schiedam, in that kingdom, as the common root beer in our city is inferior to the double brown stout of Great Britain.

The moral consequences arising from the administration of a pure article are not the least among its benefits; in Holland and Germany, where pure Holland gin is a common beverage, drunkenness is rarely, if ever, seen. The same remarks apply to the wines of France. Notwithstanding the French mechanics and peasants drink Bordeaux wine as we do water, at their "tables d'hote," intoxication can scarcely be found among them.

In England, where, as in our own country, the basest adulterations are made in spirituous liquors, particularly in those sold in the "gin palaces," under various names, intemperance, in all its loathsomeness and deformity, has scarcely a parallel.

It is not the genuine article, but the base, spurious adulteration, which inflames the stomach, excites the brain, deprives its victim of his reason, destroys his constitution, and hurries him to his tomb.

These adulterated compositions, manufactured in and imported from Europe, have, unfortunately, since the introduction of my Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps, found their way here in overwhelming abundance; their importers and retailers have palmed them upon the public, as equal in medicinal properties to my article. Medical testimony—having no legitimate claim to that title—has been trumped up to entrap the unwary and credulous; and the degrading imposition has sometimes unfortunately succeeded, to the injury and destruction of health, and the increase—rather than the alleviation—of the disease.

The effects of the schnapps are the tests of its purity. Judiciously taken as a general beverage it will not intoxicate; its stimulation is gentle, and unattended with those burning and cravings of the stomach, which in the exhibition of impure spirits, constantly demand a fresh supply, and which no repetition, within the limits of intoxication, can satiate.

Notwithstanding I have surrounded my preparation with every safeguard which prudence could suggest, I still receive daily communications informing me of base imitations under its name, of my bottles being filled with the most impure gin, cosked up, sealed, and sold as the "Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps." I have endeavored, still further, to guard the public from these impositions, and maintain the reputation of my importation. Should they still be evaded, I trust the sufferers, whoever they may be, will give me the most early information, when in their behalf equally with my own, I shall appeal to the laws of the country to protect them and myself.

I wish the public to understand the schnapps is not sold by the gallon or pipe. It is only sold in quart and pint bottles, in cases of one dozen quarts and two dozen pints, each bottle enveloped in yellow paper, with my name on the bottle and cork, and a facsimile of my signature on the label.

For sale by all the wholesale druggists and grocers in the city.
