COMMERCIAL.

HONOLULU, NOVEMBER 11, 1873.

We have to report the arrival of six whalers during the past week, bringing in 1,[illegible] barrels of oil and 2,300 pounds of bone. As usual the later arrivals improve the average, which will probably be not far from 400 bbls. to each vessel for this season. There are still six or seven whalers expected in, viz: Arcadia, Uncas, Jas. Allen, Jos. Maxwell, Nautilus, Gurnsey, and perhaps the Adventurer.

The transition season came earlier on the 5th, 22 days from the Navigator Islands. His grounds are to San Francisco this morning.

We are still without advices from San Francisco. The mail steamer being here detained longer than was anticipated when she last sailed for that port.

Mr. Adams sold on Friday last a cargo-sale of wholesomes ships, and other goods brought in by the schooner South Sea, which appears to have realized fair prices. Among the stock sold was one box containing dollars of genuine shell.

Bark R. W. Wood has been laid on to load oil and bone for New Bedford, and has secured nearly a full cargo. She will probably sail by December 1.

Ship Java is now due from Boston, which port she left June 25, making her 120 days out. Her cargo consists of coals, alcohol and merchandise. She will return immediately to New Bedford.

The whalers are now very lively, and whalers are busy discharging and shipping seamen, shipping oil and bone, and securing new supplies.
