IMPORTANT FROM NICARAGUA.

A Battle—Enemy Repulsed with Great Loss—Walker Enters Masaya—The Enemy Driven to the Main Plaza—The Enemy Attack Granada—Walker Marches to its Relief—Another Battle—Walker again Victorious—The Enemy Routed with Great Slaughter—American Citizens Murdered.

[From the New Orleans Picayune, Oct. 23.]

The steamship Tennessee, Capt. Snodgrass, from San Juan de Nicaragua, with passengers, has arrived.

The Tennessee arrived at San Juan on the 16th instant, from New York, and sailed again on the same day for New Orleans.

The steamship Orizaba, Capt. Tinklepaugh, arrived at San Juan del Sur (on the Pacific) on the 8th inst. from New York, via the States of Mexico, having made the run in the unprecedented time of fifty days and seven hours.

She would take the passengers of the Tennessee for San Francisco.

The news from Nicaragua is of the most interesting and highly important character, indicating the complete success and firm establishment of Walker's government.

The enemy, that is the army of the league, having been for sometime advancing towards Masaya, and evidently seeking to occupy that town, Gen. Walker withdrew the small force stationed there, in order to encourage the enemy to occupy the place, knowing it to be a much more favorable point for him to attack than Leon.

After some ten days had elapsed, the league having collected a force numbering 4,000 men, occupied the town on the 11th of October.

This being known to Gen. Walker, he marched towards Masaya at the head of 1,000 men, leaving a small force only in Granada.

On the morning of the 12th inst., while Walker's troops were approaching Masaya, the enemy sallied out in full force and attacked them, but were immediately repulsed with immense loss and driven into the city, the Americans literally paving their way with the bodies of their dead foes.

As the Americans advanced and entered Masaya, the enemy occupied the four plazas and the principal houses of the city. During the day, General Walker succeeded in driving them from all the points they occupied to the main plaza, which he himself gained at about 11 P. M., cutting his way through the walls of the houses, and carrying his howitzers along.

While waiting here for daylight to renew the attack, a courier arrived from Granada with information that a force of the enemy, comprising about 1,000 natives and 400 Guatemalans, were besieging that city.

On receiving this intelligence Gen. Walker immediately marched his troops towards Granada, and reached there about 16 o'clock on the 13th.

Upon his arrival on the heights near the city, he found it to be barricaded by the whole force of the invaders, whereupon he gave orders to charge, and drove them from their posts, taking their commanders prisoners, capturing all their field pieces, entirely routing them from the city with great slaughter, and following them till not a vestige of them remained.

The enemy lost at Granada 400 killed, and at Masaya 400 killed and 500 wounded, making in all 1,100 men.

Gen. Walker's loss in both engagements was only 16 killed and 18 wounded—none of them wounded mortally.

It was reported that Gen. Mendez was the second in command of the enemy at Masaya, and was shot dead.

At the time our informant left Gen. Walker was to march the following day to Masaya and Leon. His troops were in the highest spirits, and eager for the march.

During the absence of General Walker at Masaya, the citizens of Granada, learning that the enemy were advancing, repaired to the Ordnance Department and, arming themselves, awaited the attack. They fought with unsurpassed bravery and desperation for twenty-two hours, defending the government buildings, until the arrival of the army under General Walker to their relief.

Mr. Lawless, the Rev. D. H. Wheeler and Mr. Ferguson and son, citizens of the United States, who had never taken any part in government affairs, were dragged out of their houses in Granada and murdered in cold blood by the natives.

Col. Jack Allen arrived on the 4th inst. at Granada, with nearly one hundred recruits. About one hundred other recruits arrived at the same time.

The Nicaraguense, of Saturday, 11th inst., contains the following notice of the illness of Mr. Wheeler, United States Minister:—"It is with the deepest sense of regret that we announce the illness of Col. John H. Wheeler, the American Minister. On the night of Wednesday he came home at a late hour, and went to bed in apparent good health. In a short time he was seized with cramps, and five painful spasms followed in rapid succession. These left him senseless, and all occurring before medical assistance could be had. In a few minutes Drs. Royston and Cataban were called in, and powerful remedies were at once administered. Throughout the night and during the next day, his life was suspended by the brittle thread; but by continued assistance, renewed cheerfully by ladies and gentlemen, he was alleviated into a gentle sleep, after which the danger was considered as almost over. He is at present convalescent, and with his constitution we may hope to see him about in a very short time."

The following is a resume of the condition of General Walker's forces and resources, published on the 11th inst., just before the advance on Masaya:—"All the internal and external foes of the state have been straining their utmost energy to cripple us at a season when it was impossible to take the field; and yet, despite all these obstacles, the government stands firmer than it ever did. With two thousand men capable of bearing arms, with all the improved means of warfare, with a better knowledge of the country, with a steamship line bringing means to us at every junction, and with renewed confidence, how can we entertain an opinion contrary to the speedy and certain restoration of peace and executive authority over all the departments of the State? It is only a matter of time, of weeks, before this whole difficulty will be terminated."

The Tennessee left at San Juan H. B. M. ships Orion, 90 guns; Imperieuse, 50 guns; Arrogant, 50; Archer, 20; Victor, 6; Intrepid, 0; and Cossack, 30 guns.

On Monday the 13th, a sailing regatta of the boats in the harbor, and those in the squadron, came off. The Mosquito boat Lillis, sailed and owned by Hutchinson, of Williamsburg, carried off the palm, beating everything in the race by a long distance.

The following is a list of the passengers by the Tennessee:—

Capt. R. L. Williams, Capt. P. A. Gallhouse, Nicaraguan army; Capt. Miner S. H. Lind, Dr. John Gallhouse, E. W. Kingland, Aloine Sue, wife and daughter, H. M. Carpenter, M. D., M. D. Mandly.

Battles of Masaya and Granada.

We have been favored by Capt. R. L. Williams, of Kentucky, who returned on the Tennessee from Nicaragua, with the following details of the operations and battles of Masaya and Granada, in the latter of which he was a participator. Gen. Walker was well advised of the movements of the enemy, but with his usual caution, he kept his information and plans from the public. About the 1st of October the order was given for the out garrisons at San Carlos, Rivas, Tipitapa and Managua to concentrate on Granada. Shortly afterward the advanced guard at Masaya was ordered to fall back also upon the capital. It at once became evident that Gen. Walker had determined to draw the enemy on, and choose his own ground for the battle.

On the evening of the 11th he left Granada, with 1,000 men, for Masaya. This is a town situated some fifteen miles from Granada, containing about 8,000 inhabitants. Nature has endowed it with many advantages. It has two plazas; in the centre of the principal one stands a large church, on either side a few shops. The houses are principally built of adobe. It was here that Gen. Walker had determined to meet the forces of the allies. The troops marched nearly all night, over a very muddy and slippery road, and before the morning of the 11th were before the town, which was in possession of the enemy, who were said to be about 4,000 strong.

Being advised of the approach of Gen. Walker, they had advanced on the road from the town with a strong body of troops. Either side of the road was lined with high bushes and cactus. At daybreak Gen. Walker formed his men in column, and ordered a charge at once. The rush was made, and the enemy broke and fled before the head of the column could reach them. The Americans kept on and followed the enemy into the town, where they were strongly posted in the plazas and streets. After a gallant fight, which had lasted all through the day and evening, Gen. Walker was in position at 11 P. M., with his howitzers before the main plaza, ready to open upon the enemy in the morning. The artillery had been brought up through the walls of the houses, which were cut through for that purpose. The troops were ordered at this hour to sleep on their arms. They had fought hard, and they slept well.

About half past 12 A. M. an express from Granada arrived, advising General Walker that that city had been attacked at noon of the day before, by a force of nearly 1,400 men. These were from the hacienda of Sonsonate and had been joined by bodies of troops from San Salvador and Guatemala, with a few Chamorristas. They had advanced upon Granada by a different road from that leading to Masaya, and had surrounded the city, attacking it on all sides. There were very few troops, which, with the American citizens left in the city, did not amount to over 150 men. These took possession of the ordnance department, guard house, hospital and principal church, all on the main plaza, and the ladies took refuge in the house of the American Minister and some of the foreign Consulates. This handful of men defended the plaza successfully for twenty-two hours.

The enemy ransacked every house in search of Americans and money. Mr. Lawless, the Rev. Mr. Wheeler, and Mr. Ferguson and son were dragged into the streets and murdered. Gen. Walker's residence was pillaged, and his papers scattered over the floor in the wild hunt for plunder. About 10 A. M. of the 13th, the gallant band in the plaza had the first intimation that succor was at hand, in the booming of the howitzers and the rattle of the musketry in the attack of Gen. Walker on the enemy at Jalteba Church, about three-quarters of a mile immediately behind the Ordnance Department.

Immediately on receiving the news brought to Masaya by the express, Gen. Walker evacuated that town with all his troops, and commenced a forced march for Granada. At 10 A. M. he attacked the enemy, who were posted in force on the height of the Jalteba Church, and charging at once, captured two field pieces and drove them, at the point of the bayonet, into and through the city. The rout commenced almost without a second's struggle, and the enemy dispersed in every direction. But on all sides they were met by parties that Gen. Walker had ordered to make a detour round the city, and their dispersion was complete.

It was estimated that about 400 of the allies were killed at Masaya, and an equal number at Granada. Nearly every house on the evening of the 13th, when our informant left, was filled with their wounded. The loss of the Americans in both engagements was only 16 killed and 25 wounded. We have not been able to learn the names of any of the killed. Among the wounded are Capt. Bell, Dr. Scott, Capt. Hardy, Mr. Tabor, editor of the Nicaraguense; Captain Green, Harbormaster; Capt. Pickeregill, and Major Gilles.

The enemy were reported to be retreating from Masaya, and Gen. Walker would advance northward as soon as his troops had had some little rest.

Capt. Williams informs us that his baggage was packed, ready to start, when the attack took place. He was rifled of everything by the enemy in the assault on Granada. He informs us that nearly two hundred letters for persons in the United States, but he was able to gather up only a few of them, and many of these without their envelopes, fell in the rout of the enemy. These he saved have been at Greytown.

A company of General Walker's troops are stationed on the Indian river, at the mouth of the Serapiqui, and about 100 recruits arrived at Greytown on the Tennessee. They would proceed to Granada at once.

Capt. W. informs us that he learned from one of the men who returned from the battle of San Jacinto, that Mr. Callahan, our late esteemed correspondent, was last seen, wounded and nearly exhausted, pursued by some cavalry, and endeavoring to get into the bush. In this he did not succeed, as the horses were nearly upon him at the time.
