THE HAWAIIAN GAZETTE.

A WEEKLY JOURNAL, DEVOTED TO HAWAIIAN PROGRESS.

VOL. XI,—NO. 20. HONOLULU, WEDNESDAY, MAY 19, 1875. WHOLE NO. 540.

Don't Tell It.

Your neighbor's name,
Or your friend's fair fame,
And what behind it,
In deed or word,
You may have heard,
Yet pray don't tell it!

If kept within,
This removed sin
May prove a bubble;
But if it escape,
Like the thriving grain,
'Twill soon grow double!

Instead of peace,
It with increase,
Then try and quell it!
Think what you will,
Of good or ill,
But pray don't tell it.

Variety.

If they abolish telegraph poles young men will have nothing but lamp-posts to cling to.

The women of Lewiston, Maine, dip more than a ton of snuff annually, in spite of the tyrant man.

In damp weather no man can keep his name entwisted without constantly securing his door plate.

A Western paper has a department devoted to popular topics, and frequently refers to "notice in the pop column."

The Maine Legislature has rejected a bill to compel the sale of eggs by weight. "A pound of eggs" is still a dream of the future.

These are bustling times, said John Henry's wife, as she wrapped up one of our papers for some mysterious use.—Cincinnati Times.

The President of a twenty-five mile railroad in Iowa discharged a conductor because that official didn't take off his hat when he addressed him.

That Egyptian Khedive has spoiled all the girls, says a member of the home guard. They won't take up with anything but navy officers and diamonds now.

The New Haven Register relates that an actor at one of the theatres was called out three times in one evening, not long ago—twice by the sheriff and once by a tailor.

"A fight between a negro boy and a bear, after which a dog will be set upon the bear." All this in the city of Waco, Texas, and for the contemptible sum of fifty cents.

Don't write your poetry with violet colored ink. We always put our poetry in the safe at night for fear of fires, and violet colored ink will not stand heat.—Danbury News.

An Indiana woman said she didn't care to marry again, but if she ever did get another husband she'd make him buy a corrugated elbow for the parlor stove before she said "yes."

Isaac Newton has been sentenced in New York for a term in the State Prison on account of larceny, Recorder Hackett having discovered the gravity of his offence.

After all it isn't right to take babies to the matinee; they don't like to go; anybody can see that. If they liked to go they wouldn't be howling and screaming all the time.—New Orleans Picayune.

The ghost of Noah Webster came to a spiritual medium in Alabama, not long since, and wrote on a slip of paper, "It is the times." Noah was right, but we are sorry to see that he has gone back on his dictionary.

As one of the Scotch kings was dying, an attendant heard his last sentence: "Lord, I restore Thee thy kingdom whereunto Thou didst intrust me. Put me in possession of that whereof the inhabitants are all kings."

Don't tell us any more about good women of old. An observer who wrote hundreds of years ago said:—Woman is a necessary evil, a natural temptation, a desirable calamity, a domestic peril, a deadly fascination and a painted ill.

A colored congregation in Dayton have decided to forgive their clergyman for betting on three-card monte and losing $30 of festival money. One of the deacons remarked:—"We is all human, and the game is very enticing."

A very flexible temperance pledge is this which is circulated among Boston fashionable ladies:—I promise that no intoxicating liquor shall be used in this house for cooking purposes, and in sickness that it shall be given conscientiously.

A paper in Southern Illinois regrets that it went to press "one day too early to record the death of John Bates." This was not quite as cool as the paper that said: "Just as we are going to press, John Smith is being run over by the cars."

A new definition of the word "civilization" reaches us from Japan. Lately, a Japanese visitor to the English Club was induced to take some champagne, and on putting away his third tumbler, exclaimed with great fervor, "I like civilization."

The New Orleans Picayune notes it as a remarkable fact that a woman has lived there twenty-three years with three pins in her body. That's nothing Mr. Pic. There isn't a Northern lady extant that does not consume at least two papers of pins a day.

Since the post office has got control of the circulation of newspapers, a paper is judged by the weight of its mail. For instance, the Pittsburgh Gazette, a 654-pound paper, sneers at the Pittsburgh Dispatch, which it charges with being a 187-pound sheet.

The Duke de Lavac was famed for making bulls. On one occasion he said he had received an anonymous letter signed by all the officers of his regiment, and at another time that he had placed sofas in the four corners of his octagonal dining room.

A young lady hurriedly entered the postoffice the other morning, and breathlessly asked for the letter she had dropped into the box half an hour before. The letter was written to her dear friend Julia, describing the last sociable, and she had for once forgotten to write "In Haste" in the corner of the envelope.—Norristown Herald.

A Chinese General after reaping many laurels by his defence of the Mohammedans in Yunnan was struck with the beauty of a Celestial belle while passing through Shanghai. She was the affianced of a nobleman, but the warrior made it all right with the old folks and the police by a liberal distribution of presents, and then eloped with his daughter. He has since written to the nobleman, and offered to give a good sum to be rid of his new wife.

Foreign Items.

Eggs Dressed Spanish Fashion:—In a frying pan toss a slice of bacon, for the sake of the fat it will render; take away the bacon; mix a teaspoonful of honey with the bacon fat; break into it a dozen new laid eggs, and do them slowly; take them up with a skimmer, place them in a dish, and almost mask them with pickled red and green capsicums, sliced.

Efforts to reach the Gypsies with religious teaching, says the Christian Union, have never met with much success—probably have not been prosecuted in the hope of success. There are about 700,000 of them in Europe, and 18,000 in England. Their religion seems to extend no farther than a belief in their annihilation at death. Converts, however, are made here and there.

Magnitude of California.—The combined area of the six New England States is 68,348 square miles; the area of the single State of California is nearly three times as much. The area of the Middle States, including Maryland and West Virginia, is 137,364 square miles; California has 188,981 square miles within its borders. California is a great country; it is 78,135 square miles larger than the whole of Great Britain; and it would make twenty-four States the size of Massachusetts, with a couple of thousand square miles to spare; or one hundred and forty-five States as large as Rhode Island.

The "Sunday law" in England dates back to the reign of Charles Second. Previously there were no restrictions against trade on the Lord's day. It was not called Sabbath; nor is it yet in law. It appears that though tradesmen generally observe the day by closing shop, there are still many shops kept open. Lately, there has been a combined movement of the several metropolitan vestries against these men, under "the Lord's Day Act of Charles II." This has provoked counter movements. Monster meetings have been held, and petitions got up, asking of Parliament the unconditional repeal of that law, as "opposed to the essential conditions of modern society."

The Hon. W. Fox carries his aversion to spirituous liquor to the fullest extreme. At the least it would appear so from the following in his special column of the New Zealand Times:—"Our drug stores, which should be the means of preserving health and life, are dealing forth destruction and death. Alcohol is put up into the form of "bitters"—bitters they are, leading to a bitter life, a bitter death, and a bitter eternity. A man will take bottle after bottle, until the cork of the last will fly off, and a fiend will jump from out its mouth and, clutching him by the neck, will say, 'Ah! I've been chasing you those fifteen years, I've got you now.'"

New Theory as to the Composition of Guano. An American contemporary considers that the long-received opinion that guano is the deposit of myriads of sea-birds, accumulating through long ages, is now rendered untenable by recent investigations made by a Doctor Habel. This gentleman, after treating the guano to an acid, microscopical, and chemical examination, remarked that the insoluble residue was composed of fossil sponges and other marine animals and plants precisely similar in constitution. It is further observed that the fact that the anchors of ships in the neigeborhood of the guano islands often bring up guano from the bottom of the ocean is quite in opposition to the prevalent belief. Dr. Habel therefore considers that the deposits of guano must be the result of the accumulation of fossil plants and animals, whose organic matter has been transformed into a nitrogenous substance, the mineral portion remaining intact.

The Sugar Beet.—Before coming to the Old World, I never knew that the people depended upon this vegetable for the manufacture of nearly all the sugar consumed. The culture of it is almost universal; each farmer raises enough for the use of his own family, and any surplus is readily disposed of at the sugar houses. Some one estimates that in some parts of Germany and France fully one-third of the growing crop is this vegetable. For the benefit of any person who may happen to be interested, I append a few items gleaned from the very able and exhaustive books on this manufacture published in Paris. The white and the yellow beets contain the most amount of sugar, and the soil best adapted to them is a clay loam, deeply plowed. A sandy soil is too dry, and not sufficiently nutritive; while a soil rich and strong is not suited to them when cultivated for sugar, as they absorb from it too much saltpeter and not enough saccharine matter. For the manufacture of sugar, the beets are sliced and pressed (I presume the same as sugar cane); the juice is reduced to dry, grained, brown sugar. For white sugar it is again melted and filtered through burnt and blackened bone, and the result is a pure, snow white article of sugar. It is used in all the hotels, and sold in all the stores, in small, square lamps, or in cone shaped loaves. In fact, I have seen no other sugar since I left America, but I would not have known the difference if I had not been told.—Corr. San. Union.

A Society Purse.—Dr. Holland, in his "Story of Sevenoaks," in Scribner's, gives the following sketch of a personage who finds too many prototypes: "Exactly the position that Mrs. D. occupied in society it would be hard to define. Everybody invited her, and yet everybody, without any definite reason, considered her a little 'off color.' She was beautiful, she was accomplished, she talked wonderfully well, she was at fait in art, literature, society. She was superficially religious, and she formed the theater of the struggle of a black angel and a white one, neither of whom won a complete victory, or held whatever advantage he gained for any considerable length of time. Nothing could be finer than Mrs. D. in her fine moods, nothing coarser when the black angel was enjoying his victories, and the white angel had sat down to breathe. It was the impression given in these latter moments that fixed the suspicion upon her that she was not quite what she ought to be. The flowers bloomed where she walked, but there was dust on them. The cup she handed to her friends was pure to the eye, but it had a muddy taste. She was a whole woman in sympathy, power, beauty, and sensibility, and yet one felt that somewhere within she harbored a devil—a refined devil in its way, a gross one when it had the woman at unresisting advantage."

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S
CHLORODYNE
IS THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.
THE PUBLIC ARE CAUTIONED AGAINST the unfounded statements frequently made, "that the composition of CHLORODYNE is known to Chemists and the Medical profession." The fact is, Chlorodyne was discovered and invented by Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE (ex Army Medical Staff), and so named by him, and it has baffled all attempts at analysis by the first Chemists of the day. The method and secret of the preparation have never been published. It is obvious, therefore, that anything sold under the name, save Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE, is a spurious imitation.
CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. P. Wood stated that Dr. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne.
REMEDIAL USES AND ACTION.
This invaluable remedy produces quiet, refreshing sleep, relieves pain, calms the system, restores the deranged functions, and stimulates healthy action of the secretions of the body, without creating any of those unpleasant results attending the use of opium. Old and young may take it at all hours and times when requisite. Thousands of persons testify to its marvellous good effects and wonderful cures, while medical men extol its virtues most extensively, using it in great quantities in the following diseases:—Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Colics, Coughs, Asthma, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Whooping Cough, Cramp Hysteria, &c.
EXTRACTS FROM MEDICAL OPINIONS.
The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians, and J. T. Davenport, that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was CHLORODYNE.—See Lancet Dec. 31, 1864.
Dr. Lowe, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec. 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE was administered, the patient recovered.
Extract from Medical Times, Jan 12, 1866.—"Chlorodyne is prescribed by scores of orthodox medical practitioners. Of course it would not thus be singularly popular did it not supply a want and fill a place."
Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases."
CAUTION.—None genuine without the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle.
