NOTES OF THE WEEK.

☞ The mail steamer Australia will be due from San Francisco early to-morrow morning.

☞ "Congress will adjourn in August." So says Senator Sherman, according to a Washington telegram.

☞ The wooden buildings on Nuuanu street, offered by Mr. Barrow at auction on Saturday last, were sold, there being no bids received.

KILLED.—A sad accident occurred at Lahaina on Thursday the 20th. Sarah Hoore, a half-caste girl of about ten years of age, was mounting a spirited horse when the animal took fright, her foot became entangled in the stirrup, and she was dragged along the ground. Before the animal could be stopped, she was nearly killed, and she died in about an hour after the accident.

☞ The Band was on the wharf on Wednesday evening last at the time of the sailing of the steamer, and furnished to an appreciative audience some of their choicest gems. The same idea of the serenade was a favorite to their departing leader, Mr. Berger, who was sailing out for a visit to his fatherland.

PLANTATION SALE.—The one-half interest in the Waimea Plantation, owned by Hon. C. C. Harris, has been purchased for $80,000, by Hon. H. A. Widemann, who now owns the entire estate. The sale includes the growing crop, estimated at 3000 tons of sugar, worth from $100,000 to $150,000.

MURDER.—A letter from Mr. Ellerts of Paua recorded by the Kaulai last week brings information that on the 24th inst. an old woman at Kahoolulu by the name of Wahanui, killed another woman named Kaoaokai, by striking her on the head four or five times with a pole stone. Mr. Ellerts, in his capacity of Deputy Magistrate, held a coroner's inquest on the 25th inst. and the jury returned a verdict in accordance with the above facts. The old woman was arrested and committed to prison to be tried at the next term of the Circuit Court. As soon as Mr. Severance the sheriff of Hawaii, received news of the murder he proceeded to the scene of trouble.

☞ The steamship City of San Francisco, of winter arrival we gave notice last week, made a longer stay in port than has been customary for the ships of this line. Captain Waddell had expected to receive a large amount of freight here, and consequently had made different arrangements in regard to the ship's supply of coal than he would have otherwise done. Not finding much freight, it became necessary to shift a large portion of the coal from the bunkers to the hold, which was a slow operation, and the vessel instead of leaving in twelve hours, was delayed over forty hours. Not still, however, but narrow time to reach San Francisco ahead of her contract time. She took quite a number of passengers from Honolulu, many of whom were obliged, although provided with saloon tickets to take lodgings in the second cabin, owing to the large number of passengers from the Colonies.

AN OLD RELIC GONE.—During the past week laborers have been engaged in tearing down the dilapidated old house in the rear of Rhoder' building, which for more than half a century has borne its share in the history of the town. When it was erected we cannot learn, but fifty years ago it was one of the business centres of Honolulu, being occupied by the French, who was at that time one of the leading merchants of the place, as a wholesale and retail store. After its glory had departed, the firm of Kinney and Robinson transacted business for a time in its house, and they were succeeded by Henry Sea, merchant. Then Porter and Ogden, Ship Chandlers and Importing Merchants rendered the old store temporarily memorable with their peculiar methods of doing business, until the firm was dissolved by the sudden death of one of the partners, "Afterwards Joe Elderkin kept a restaurant in it, which for some time maintained a good reputation, and was much resorted to by business men for physical nourishment. Subsequent to the collapse of the restaurant, the place was not occupied for business purposes, and has been gradually yielding to decay.

BASE BALL.—A third friendly game of base ball was played last Saturday between the Athletes and Stars. No little interest attached to the game from the fact that the Athletes, who have an enviable reputation had to the second game sustained a defeat. Both sides entered the field on Saturday morning full and experienced of success, and although the Stars had only been organized two months, the Athletes had become convinced that in them they had "Scotch worthy of their steel." At the expiration of the third inning, the score stood one for the Stars and three whitewashes for the Athletes. At the end of the seventh inning the Stars were two ahead, the score standing 7 to 5; enough to inspire the Athletes made three runs, the Stars failed; so the last inning the Athletes made 3 runs, and the Stars but one, leaving the Athletes the victors. It was acknowledged by all to be the finest match game ever played on the islands, while the prompt and impartial rendering of decisions by the umpire added interest to the game. The best men of the day was perhaps that of Kinney on the 1st base; the excellent fly catching of the fielders of the Athletes is worthy of mention, while the Stars were somewhat deficient in that essential, the position being almost new to two of them. The base running of Pratt called forth the applause of every one present. This manly sport ought to be encouraged, and we shall look with interest for future games.

☞ A track is telegraphed as we go to press:—perhaps the Canoma from England.

☞ We would call attention to the performance by Mr. Chapman which he proposes to give at Buffum's Hall to-night.

☞ The space occupied by Mr. Green's speech and the two lengthy communications in to-day's paper, compels us to omit equally interesting matter prepared for this issue.

ROYAL ILLUSIONISTS.—A troupe bearing this title is expected down in the steamer Australia. They are renowned for their skill in the magician's art, sleight of hand, and necromancy and are first-class prestidigitators. If the opportunity offers they will give an entertainment in Honolulu.

☞ By card in our advertising columns it will be seen that Henry May Esq. has associated with himself Mr. Tom May as partner, and the firm will hereafter be known as Henry May & Co. It advertises a most tempting list of the good things of gastronomy brought from the ends of the earth for the solace and joy of the inhabitants of the isles.

☞ At the lunch room of Mr. Horn may be seen a very artistic piece of work in the form of a cake about three feet in height, covered with frosting and ornamented with tasteful designs in sugar. The whole is surmounted with a basket of roses, also of sugar. Its commercial value is $10, but it is proposed to dispose of it by raffle.

The Centennial of the Discovery of Hawaii.

An Address.

While the United States of America celebrate the centennial of their political birth, we of these isles, should prepare to celebrate the centenary of our most important historical event—the first introduction of this Archipelago to a knowledge of the world, the first dawn of civilization upon Hawaii, the discovery by Capt. Cook.

I do not propose this commemoration in order to glorify Capt. Cook; although I am satisfied that his claim as first discoverer of the Hawaiian Islands is not invalidated by any testimony of which a candid historian can take any cognizance.

I do not propose such a celebration as a jubilee, as no doubt the people of these isles have much cause for mourning as well as rejoicing in the contemplation of the past hundred years.

But I propose a national exhibition of what Hawaii was and is at the beginning and close of our era, in order to illustrate an event of immense consequence to a race, and of great interest to the world, and also in order to derive from such commemoration the inspiration of a new and beneficent departure in progress for this country.

The Archipelago will have an interesting if not a brilliant retrospect in the contemplation of her past cycle of civilization; and though her celebration may sink into insignificance, when contrasted with the commemorative spheroids of the American jubilee, yet she may in some particulars draw some parallels between herself and the Continent, in which she may not appear altogether at a disadvantage. She, restricted within her narrow ocean bounds, cannot point to any widening lines of continental expansion, nor teeming millions flowing in from an older world, but she can present her once barbarous aborigines, taught and organized and built up into an enlightened nationality, and she can offer the example of a warrior and a patriot whose fame, when his opportunities are considered, will hardly be dimmed by contrast with the most illustrious the world has ever produced.

A nation's chief glory and chief worth to the world lies in some great human example. The power of Christianity is evermore in the life of its founder. The prime value of Greece is in her men like Epaminondas, of Rome in her Fabricius and her Gracchi, of England in her Alfred, of America in her Washington—and so the world is indebted to Hawaii for the production of a man, who though an utterly ignorant barbarian and heathen, presents the example of eminent abilities resulting in the organization and nationality of his country. Therefore the people of these isles should after a hundred years of knowledge, celebrate their great chief Kamehameha, who like his cotemporary the great American Father, "is first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

We, who are of the soil, and we who have come here to find a home, should illustrate, at the close of our era, the nation, the great chief founded, and the country he organized. We should, at our exhibition, present as near as we can, an illustration of the exact condition of Hawaii, when the first ships of discovery in 1778 startled the wondering islanders. We should produce the ancient costume, the garments of tapa, the leather cloak, and feather helmet, the bone pointed and serrated spear, the club, the sling, the ancient drum, the nasal flageolet, the malka balls, and all the concomitants of the malka game, the costumes and implements of the old wrestlers and bone breakers, the priestly wands, the sacrificial implements, the longevity of the places of refuge, the common utensils, the mortars and pestles, and stone lamps and adzes; and so place before modern eyes the ancient Hawaiian as chief, as warrior, as priest, and as sort, in the war canoe, in the hale, and in the heiau or temple; and associated with what we can produce of the costumes and robes of the pre-discovery state of Hawaii.

These should contrast this ancient order with the condition of the Hawaiian of the present day—and exhibit our translated Bibles, books and newspapers. We should present the Hawaiian printer at his case, and illustrate our schools. Our children would melodiously chaunt our progress in culture and art; and of course our musical taste and skill would be fully illustrated by our Hawaiian band.

Then we should make an array of the many marvels and bounties of nature in our isles. Our mighty volcano should have its mimic illustration. Our rich botany should be displayed; its noble forest trees, most valuable for both use and ornament; in our abundant fibrous plants, in our material for paper, in our exquisite ferns and mosses, in our industrially varied land shells; and with all these we should show the evidences of the great fertility of our soil and our interesting geological conditions. And next would come the bounty and beauty of the sea. Our abounding and exceedingly varied fisheries would alone supply a noble exhibition. We could astonish and delight the world with our aquaria, by filling them with the brilliant scleroderms of these Pacific waters, and with every shell and limpet and moss that fringe and beautify our shores.

We cannot produce now perhaps specimens of the original species of animals of these islands, but we can of birds; and with these we should present prize specimens of the birds and beasts that we have imported,—the horse, the bullock, the ass, the sheep, the goat, the dog, the turkey, the domestic goose, the peacock, the guinea fowl, the pheasant, the quail, and many other animals and birds,—in order to illustrate the skill of our graziers and breeders, and also the effects of their acclimatization in this archipelago.

Then we should not fear to show what we have, and what we can produce for the marts of the world in our bountiful sugar, rice, coffee, wool, skins, woods, fibres, dyestuffs, roots and grains, and other produce for consumption or export. And now in order to stimulate the best efforts on the part of individuals in the exhibition of all these creatures and products, we should have competitive prizes that should be a substantial reward, as well as an honor. In order to do this, and in order to accomplish any such celebration as I have contemplated and set forth, it must have the fullest sanction of the authorities of the country, and receive a liberal aid from the public purse. And this matter must not be delayed; it should receive the patriotic attention of legislators now in session, because before another Legislature can in due course be convened, the proper period and commemoration day for the celebration of our era of discovery will have passed by. Therefore an appeal is made to you, gentlemen,—Nobles and Representatives,—that you will cordially, with the enlightened views of His Majesty and of His Majesty's Ministers, provide the means and the proper commission for the liberal and efficient carrying out of a commemorative national celebration and exhibition, which will honor all who shall take part therein, and which must redound to the glory and prosperity of Hawaii.

WALTER MURRAY GIBSON.

The Political Situation.

HONOLULU, JULY 24th, 1876.

To the Editor of the Hawaiian Gazette:

SIR:—As the Legislative session proceeds, the prospects of the opposition with regard to the probability of finding a good party cry seems to become less and less promising, and it is evidently difficult to establish a grievance which will find much favor with any considerable section of the people. The leaders and promoters of the opposition are not distinguishable by any means for artistic ability, although there is a certain amount of ingenuity in the idea of arousing excitement, whilst the treaty bangs fire, by placing unpleasant contructions upon Ministerial acts. The resolution and preamble are not, perhaps, destined to become as notorious as the Memorial (characterized by more than one foreign paper as "a document of an extraordinary character") still, they bear evidence of the same "master winds," conspicuous by their personal hostility to the Government and desire for office. I desire to introduce a few of the more prominent members of this conspiracy to oust the Ministers, that the public may have an opportunity to reflect and steady the personal of the conspirators, with a view to judging of the honesty of their intentions. Firstly, inside the House, we have the Gentleman occupying the presidential chair, whose capricious example has fostered and fostered confusion and disorder and violence of speech and gesture towards the Government, a chief promoter of the "Memorial" and a sworn foe to the best interests of the country by his bitter antagonism to the treaty. Then we have the acknowledged foreign member for Honolulu, whose youth and inexperience has made him the victim and tool of a coterie, breaking himself upon the wheel to gratify his vanity and gain notoriety. Then comes his distinguished "Elder brother," condemning the action of the Ministry on the Hotel bonds, which as their adviser and pre ion Minister of the Crown he endorsed, authorized and advised. How gentle and limb like was this gentleman whilst the sweets of office crowned within his grasp. I grant it it was too bad to sit himself on the pinnacle of fame and then pull the pole from under him, and the Ministry may be sure he will never forgive them. Then comes an ex Minister of the Crown, fond in his drunkenness of unauthorized expenditure, whose capability in this respect, whilst in office, transcends the achievements of any previous or subsequent Governments. These, Sir, are the principals of the movement, and I ask, "Can any good thing come out of such a Nazareth?" Outside the house, the P. C. Advertiser has been retained, its sheets filled with its usual abominables, and its walls pasted with insulting, meaningless caricatures, so offensive and personal as to utterly defeat their object. The Editor in impotent wrath at the failure of his successive attacks upon the Minister for Foreign Affairs, in true Donnybrook fashion, has been trailing his coat-tail for some time before our eyes. I trust a generous public will excuse me if I now treat it from the rear, and "tread on it behind him." It would not tainty be very much to its interest. The P. C. A. has for many years been distinguished by its personal abuse of any party who may happen to be in power; it does not require much foresight to get at the cause. A ministry that hold anything in common with the P. C. A. could not live long in any country, and successive Governments mindful of this fact, have wisely declined a too close intimacy with its conductors; ode ira! A free press is a glorious estate, but like personal freedom it can be abused, and when it is so, it becomes the vagabond amongst its contemporaries as the villain is in society. To this unenviable height has the P. C. A. attained. It has been whipped, stripped and scourged, yet is ever found guilty of prostituting its powers to present ends and future gain. Antagonistic to all independence in our public men and supporting neither measures nor men, except they originate in the one case in their sanctum, or are the nominees of their clique in the other. The wires in the late out-cry against the Ministers have been pulled by unseen, though not unknown hands. Rejoiced, secure perhaps behind the desk of his counting house, or may be watching late into night, lovingly caressing the mantle of the prophet, or in other words the portfolio of the Minister of Foreign Affairs. As the Advertiser's mentor he thus addresses the Editor.

"Come little boy blue, now, blow up your horn and forthwith his ever ready subordinate issues his "brutum fulmen," rages and makes hideous grimaces at His Excellency of the Foreign office, hoping to drive that gentleman from the stage. I admire the motion with which the Advertiser "cuts the leek." What capital they have made out of the Attorney General's "retort" to his colleague, but alas! after all its publication it transpires that the reported words were never uttered, for the Attorney General emphatically comes forward and gives the Advertiser's version an emphatic denial. The friends of that gentleman must be gratified at his disclaiming the use of words which were neither reasonable nor in common sense. In this connection may be mentioned the effusion of one "Retail" in Saturday's Advertiser, in it there is nothing noticeable but its tail, and if the author intended it as a "retort" it is "missing link," why—I appeal to Darwin! This emphatic disclaimer on the part of the Attorney General throws another leg from under our Aunt Sally of the Advertiser. "What," cries the excited old lady, "can he thought of the altered gentleman, who now sits submissive under the rebuke of his colleague at his elbow? Ah! ah! what! what!—or any other man—!! It would be hard to guess what the editor of the P. C. A. thinks of him. The mental calibre of the two men are quite different, so is also their moral principle. By the utmost refinement of reasoning the Minister of Foreign Affairs cannot be charged with prostituting his high place to fraudulent purposes, or with appropriating to his own use the public funds.
The sheep's in the meadow, the cow's in the corn,"

But the ministry have been vindicated by a large majority of the country, and the House; in spite of all the strenuous efforts of the opposition, the wire pulling, the attempt to suborn members of the Legislature, the thunders of the Advertiser, and the high fantastic tricks of the expectant office bearers, the Ministry have been twice confirmed in their positions, as they undoubtedly represent the "majority and intelligence of the land." I remember Sir, not long ago how you were invited by the editor of the P. C. A. to partake of some of their poetical bouquets, and I remember, to your honor, that you refused to sit at most with them. And so bye and bye will the public. They must serve up something different from the political hash they have lately laid before the people. Their attempts representing as insignificant minority, to harass the Ministry will be put down, young aspiring members, their parents and elder brothers must air their eloquence in the stirred and heated air, the turn, at which latter place the Honorable foreign member for Lahaina is, at least most at home.

What an astounding instance of their venality is furnished by the Advertiser, in their issue of the 19th. inst., behold them holding up as the "lamp of light" the very gentleman, who whilst in office was their very "prince of darkness." I invite the public to turn over a leaf of the P. C. Advertiser files of the last of the Kamehameha's, and peruse the editorial opinions through a series of years of this very gentleman to whom they now look with such solicitude for his aid in the management of public business." Can the force of cheek and mendacious impudence any further go?

"Hickles through my soul, to hear the cock's Sincere monitions on his friend the Fox."

But Sir, the foxes must wait, the grapes are out of their reach, and the Advertisers turn cock "turn and turn about," with nothing between its bill and the fire. It will now be our hand to baste it myself.

The "Advertiser" talks a good deal about the devil in its last issue, but what the devil has to do with anything in this matter but the Advertiser, I cannot well understand.

I think I have shown in this pretty clearly how dubious are the claims of the opposition to the public confidence. We all know how great a fire a little spark kindleth, and through the smoke now the public can discern the pallid form of the disappointed office seekers, and hear their groans. The Ministry may not be perfection, but as a whole, they probably retain a larger share of the confidence of the country than any that has been in office from the time of the 4th. Kamehameha, P. C. A. not withstanding. That confidence has been expressed in an unmistakeable manner, taking into consideration the tactics of the opposing forces. Now, that they clearly see the want of sympathy with their cause, perhaps they will join the Government in carrying out measures of relief, or at all events, cease to harass those, whom they have neither the talent to control, nor the patriotism to assist.

I am yours &c.

for either outside or inside work than and other paint known, and will last at least twice as long.

For Wagons, Agricultural Implements, Boats and Vessels it has no equal.

The Rubber Paint dries with a gloss equal to varnish, and at the same time so adhesive and elastic that it will not crack or peel off, and is therefore admirably adapted for house painting in this climate.

In addition to the above it is the Cheapest Paint ever imported here!
