Beggars for Yesterday.

BY ALETIS DOBSON.

"Pities!—and you want valorous,
Nobles and knights of all degrees!
Bows a while in the present of me—
Beggars that come from the over-seas!
Nothing we ask of gold or fee:
Glory we not with the heralds, we pray;
Be for the summer's term we sore—
Give us—ah! give us—but Yesterday!"

"Dances meet do brain, amperkin?
Diamonds billes as the hailed bow?
Skin's white to the power of sin—
Beggars that come from the over-seas?
Nothing we ask of the things that please;
Many are we, and old and gray;
Be for we church and we may your knees—
Give us—ah! give us—but Yesterday!"

"Dances—dance, be pleased!"
(But the dance only for by the roadway trees.)
"Hear us, O knights magnanimous!"
(For the knights pricked on in their panoplies.)
"Nothing they get in of hope or ease,
But only to look on the broad and sea,
Look to the dings and lies—
Give us—but Yesterday!"

Variety.

Speaking of fire-escapes, the Buffalo Express says that not one on record is the fond husband who lies in the morning.

A Wisconsin lumberman offers $30 in cash for "a strong good will—one who is not too high toned to grease his boots in bear soup."

The girl who skips herself to death with a jumping rope appears early this year. The first case is already reported from Vincennes, Ind.

Why are ladies kissing each other an emblem of charity? Because they are doing unto each other as they would men should do unto them.

"Mary," said a Fourth street woman to a new servant, "when you hang out the clothes, be careful to put the nicest pieces nearest to the street."

He was telling a female friend how Mary Jane quarreled with her "feller," and said she, "Why, if you heard 'em talk you'd think they were married."

It is rather an auspicious sign than otherwise when a woman makes a face at the man she loves, unless she has eaten something that disagrees with her.

New York claims the model mother-in-law. She refused to appear against a daughter's husband who made her a target for goblets and his angry passions.

The Boston girl is nothing if not intellectual. It is a clear sight that of a Boston girl and her beau at Newport trying to look at Venus through the same telescope.

An English critic says that the habit of dressing children for fancy ball and concert exhibitions induces the children a foolish conceit and an immoderate love of ideas.

A Maine editor, noticing the marriage of a contemporary, remarks of the bride, "She will do the world service if she makes him a better and more manly man."

An Englishman lately imprisoned for beating his wife, as he was locked up, "I've one comfort, and that is that I am not sent to jail for an mean thing."

"A blushing cure for consumption!" as the old horse keeper said when she sprinkled her hash pan with cayenne pepper before putting it before her boarders.

"I was reading at prayers just now of the Pharisee and Publican, and when I read 'the Publican went home justified,' my little boy of 7 exclaimed triumphantly, 'O, you see the Republican are right.'"

"Is the handsomest woman in town," was the answer to a valentine received at the Conway (Mass.) Post Office. The female population of that village numbers about 240, and there were just 190 calls for the valentine.

A sailor was recently brought before a magistrate for beating his wife when the magistrate attempted to reach his heart by asking him if he did not know that his wife was the "weaker vessel." "If she is, she hasn't to carry so much sail!" replied Jack.

An intoxicated Irishman, on being kindly questioned in a very narrow lane across which he was reeling as to the length of the road he had traveled, replied: "Faith! it's not so much the length of it as the breadth of it that tires me."

Professor of Chemistry: "Suppose you were called to a patient who had swallowed a heavy dose of prussic acid, what would you administer?" K. (who is studying for the ministry, and who only takes chemistry because it is obligatory): "I would administer the sacrament."

He was sitting silently by her side one chilly evening last autumn, thinking of something to say. Finally he remarked: "How sad it is; the frost has come, and it will kill everything green." Thereupon the young lady extended her hand, and said in a sympathetic tone: "Good bye."

A Rome sentinel says: A Rochester book agent came into a house in West Rome on his dignity and tried to sell a copy of Heim's Babies. He came out in a hurry. There were twins in the house, and he didn't know more about babies and the other place than he could be put in a stack of books as high as a church.

"When you see a young fellow standing on a corner with far away look in his eyes and a bit of yarn on one of the last two fingers of his hand, you may be pretty sure that he has just begun keeping house, and that he is muttering to himself: "Chopping sticks, eggs, clothes line—that's the thumb and first two fingers. Now, what did she want on the other fingers?"

A stranger, who put up at one of our most inferior boarding-houses, was very much disgusted with his accommodations. This morning at the breakfast table the conversation turned on rain. The landlady remarked that the rain hadn't stopped all night, upon the reckless stranger observed: "I reckon the rain was ordained to stop all night at such a first-class hash factory as this." And yet some people wonder that the South is so bitter yet.

Near Prospect street she dropped a little red bow with a gold pin attached, and it fluttered to the edge of the sidewalk. She stopped and looked at it. It might as well have fluttered to the edge of the universe and dropped over for anything that she could get it. She walked around it two or three times, gazed sadly at it, and then walked a block to Grove street, got a small boy and paid him 10 cents to come back and pick up that bow. As the boy returned his companions he remarked: "Durned if I know a woman so proud. She wouldn't pick up her own things from the sidewalk." But it wasn't.

An interested English tar rolled up against Sir Harry Mundy, and ejaculated, with considerable asperity, "Get out o' my way!"

"How dare you address me like that, sir?" demanded the admiral. "Don't you know who I am?" "Admiral Mundy." "Don't care if you are admiral today, week!" persisted the sailor. "Get out o' my way."
