HAWAIIAN GAZETTE

AN INDEPENDENT JOURNAL,
DEVOTED TO HAWAIIAN PROGRESS.

PUBLISHED AND EDITED BY HENRY M. WHITNEY.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1877.

It affords us great pleasure to be able to inform our readers that arrangements have been completed between the Hawaiian Government and the Pacific Mail S. S. Company, whereby the terminal service between this port and San Francisco will be inaugurated by the sailing of the steamer St. Paul from the latter port on the 19th of December. An oil painting of this vessel is now on exhibition at the bookstore of Mr. H. M. Whitney, and judging from her appearance, and information received from Mr. W. H. Dimond, special agent of the company, our community have cause for congratulation on the accession of so fine a vessel and one so peculiarly well adapted to the service. She is a new, full rigged iron bark of about 800 tons capacity, with fine cabin accommodations, built by Wm. Cramp & Sons of Philadelphia, under the special supervision of Captain Martin Bulger, superintendent of the P. M. S. S. Company. She will be officered with special reference to receiving the favor and confidence of our people and it is to be hoped that the experiment will be a pecuniary success and lead to continued and increased steam service.

Our attention has been called within the past few days to the present condition of the remnant of the Hawaiian exhibit now in the Centennial Building at Philadelphia. It is perhaps known to many of our readers, that at the close of the Centennial Exhibition, an arrangement was made by which the main building and some of the auxilliary structures were to remain in the grounds, and an attempt be made to organize and maintain a permanent exhibition. Whether any agreement has been made on the part of this government to co-operate in such an enterprise, we are not informed. We presume, however, in the absence of any appropriation by the legislature, or of any money in the treasury, which could be used for that purpose, that nothing of the kind has been undertaken. A letter, however, now in our hands, and recently received from a party well known in this community, contains the following passage: "The Hawaiian exhibit is perfectly horrid! A few tapas, a few pictures of Queen Emma, Kalakaua and Kapiolani, and a few broken bits of pink and white coral, and this is all." Surely this state of things is not creditable. If our government propose keeping up an exhibit at Philadelphia, it should be done in a manner calculated to reflect credit upon the country. Otherwise the balance of our goods, whatever they may be, should be removed at once, and the Hawaiian Department definitely closed.

The Tax Decision.

We are able to lay before our readers this morning, the full text of the recent decision of the Supreme Court in the well known case of Sereno E. Bishop and Mrs. C. C. Armstrong against Charles H. Judd, Assessor of Taxes for Honolulu. This, as most of our readers are aware, was a test case made up for the purpose of obtaining an authoritative settlement of questions in which a large number of our people are heavily interested. It is safe to say that no case of equal interest and importance has come before our Supreme Court for adjudication for a long time past, and our Judges must expect that not only the conclusions arrived at, but the processes of reasoning by which those conclusions have been reached, will be subjected to a close and critical scrutiny, at the hands of the large number of very intelligent people whose interests are affected thereby. The points involved in the case are quite familiar to most of our readers, and the decision of the Court thereon was briefly but comprehensively stated in our last issue. For any further particulars we refer to the decision itself, which will be found in the third page. As law-abiding people, we of course all expect to yield prompt and loyal obedience to the dictum of the Court. A tribunal of competent jurisdiction having passed upon the matters in dispute, and that tribunal being also in the present instance the Court of last resort, obedience becomes both a necessity and a duty. But although we fully recognize the duty and necessity of making our returns and paying our taxes as the Court directs, we do not recognize any obligation whatever to change our minds, or to hold any different opinions on the subject, from those which we held before. The strictly legal and technical points involved, we have no intention of discussing. We leave that to those whose special and technical training fit them for the task. But though we do not profess to know very much of law, we do claim to understand and appreciate justice, and if the two things, instead of being identical, are often distinct and sometimes antagonistic, the fault certainly does not lie at the door of the laity. The members of the legal profession, both at the bar and on the bench, are the parties we have to thank for that. Looking then at the simple facts in this matter, we find that the recent decision compels a large proportion of the property in this country to pay double taxes. No legal hair-splitting, however astute, can alter this plain fact, and no legal fiction, however ingenious, can cover it up or hide it. To regard a mortgage secured by lien on real estate as property, and to tax the holder thereof accordingly, is probably good law as it is certainly equity, but to require the party in whose name the title of the real estate stands, to pay taxes on its full value without regard to the amount he may owe on it, is to tax him on what he does not really own, nor have the benefit of, and no amount of decisions from any number of Courts can ever make it right or just. Substantially the same remarks apply to the case of plantations and other property which have been made the basis of stock corporations. To compel the unfortunate stockholder to pay taxes on his share of something which has already been taxed at its full value, in the lump, is a violation of the fundamental principles of equity, which will hardly be rendered any more palatable by the bland assurance of the Court that, "We must regard the creation of stock as in a certain sense the creation of new taxable property."

To understand how a mere change of the form of organization among the owners of a piece of property, or the partners in a business; a mere change on paper, which does not add to the actual wealth of the nation, so much as a single dollar; a mere fiction of book-keeping adopted simply as a matter of convenience, and which makes the parties interested neither richer nor poorer, can be held to "create" property, in any proper sense of the word, is something not only quite beyond the comprehension of ordinary mortals, but of some very good lawyers as well. But, as we have already said, we do not profess to know much of law. We will assume, therefore, for the sake of argument, that the Judges of the Supreme Court know the law and have stated it correctly. In that case we can only say: so much the worse for the law. If that is the law, we may well pray to be delivered from it. Surely nothing but a high sense of duty and an inflexible determination to construe the letter of the statute according to the strictest rules of legal interpretation, could have sustained the members of the Court in the performance of the disagreeable duty of deciding, not only against the personal interests of their friends and neighbors, but against what must have been their own feelings and sympathies as well.

Beware of the Dog.

ONE of the most offensive sights to be seen in and around Honolulu, is the multitude of miserable, worthless, mangy curs which infest our streets by day and by night, to the annoyance and disgust of all decent and sensible people. To a stranger arriving here, the innumerable multitude of our dogs and their general worthlessness are subjects for equal astonishment. We do not believe that an equal number of utterly good-for-nothing canine beasts can be found in any town of the same size in either America or Europe. It must have been Honolulu which Goldsmith saw with prophetic eye, when he wrote his well known lines:

"Now in this town a dog was found
As many dogs there be,
Both mongrel, puppy, whelp and hound,
And curs of low degree."

And it is scarcely necessary to say—the curs of low degree decidedly predominate. Let any one have occasion, as we frequently have, to traverse our streets by night, and we will guarantee that he will speedily come to consider a good stout cudgel in his hand, or a liberal supply of rocks in his pocket, as a necessary and essential part of his outfit. And then the unearthly racket they kick up! As the benighted way-farer whom business or pleasure has called forth into the pitchy darkness of our unlighted streets, pursues his dubious way; suddenly he stumbles over one of these four footed aristocrats—one of these representatives of the "privileged classes," who nightly bivouac on our pavements—no, we beg pardon, we have no pavements—and then the music begins. Disturbed in his virtuous slumbers, his peaceful dreams of juicy rump steaks and succulent marrow bones, rudely broken in upon, his dogship sets up a yelping and a howling which is taken up and repeated from mouth to mouth, up and down each street and alley until its echoes are lost in the depths of space. Dogs big, little and middle sized, bass dogs, tenor dogs, soprano, contralto, and falsetto dogs, every conceivable kind of dogs in fact, except dumb dogs, all unite in the execution of a grand fugue movement, which, if not for beauty, certainly for variety and power leaves nothing to be desired. Meanwhile the unfortunate and innocent cause of all this disturbance stands with his fingers in his ears, waiting the time, described by the poet, when

"Silence like a poultice comes
To heal the blows of sound."

Speaking seriously, the dogs in this country are a pest and a nuisance, and like any other nuisance, ought to be abated. A large proportion of them are diseased, and their diseases are of a nature known to be communicable, not only to other dogs but in some instances to human beings as well. Of course this latter consideration is, in the opinion of many of our people, a matter of quite secondary importance, but we believe that even human beings have some rights which dogs—and their owners—are bound to respect. We see no good reason, why the free and independent Hawaiian who choses to lie down with dogs and get up with fleas, should be allowed to make a nuisance of himself to his neighbors. In the interests then, not only of men, women and children, but also of the decent and respectable dogs among us, we call upon the proper authorities to rid us of these miserable, worthless, diseased brutes, who are not only an offense to the eye by day and to the ear by night, but whose only discoverable function is to propagate disease and serve as breeding places for vermin. We have said, "we call upon the proper authorities," but just here arises a somewhat troublesome question: who are the "proper authorities?" "Ah, there's the rub." Has any branch of this government power to rid us of the pernicious presence of this perapatitic pest? This, it appears, is a question very easy to ask, but extremely difficult to answer. The Board of Health has discussed the matter at great length, and doubtless with great learning; but have been unable to arrive at any solution of the difficulty. The Marshal of the Kingdom is powerless in the presence of these four-legged nuisances and the police, as is usual with such officials, "can't see it." To whom, then, shall we look for relief? Alas! we know not. It is a conundrum, and we fear we shall have to give it up. It appears to be, as Lord Dundreary would say, "one of the things which no fellow can find out." Are the accumulated wisdom and experience of our politicians and statesmen unequal to the emergency? Is the whole power of this Kingdom unable to cope successfully with the Hawaiian dog? Must the whole vast and complicated machinery of government stand paralyzed in the presence of a lot of dirty, diseased, disreputable curs, whom it is simply cruelty to animals to allow to drag out their miserable existence in our midst? We pause for a reply.

Startling Revelations!

On the 12th of last month, two of the leading Dry Goods Merchants of San Francisco were detected in the act of Passing Whole Cargoes of Merchandise under Fraudulent Invoices.

Their Goods were seized, and Sheriff Noonan offered them for sale. The San Francisco Market is glutted at present, and our offer of 42 Cents on the Dollar!

Was Readily Accepted. The Consequence is that the
