THE HAWAIIAN GAZETTE.

A WEEKLY JOURNAL, DEVOTED TO HAWAIIAN PROGRESS.

VOL. XIV.—No. 5. HONOLULU, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 30, 1878. WHOLE No. 681.

LOVE'S GARDEN.

[illegible] garden; In it there grow
[illegible] flowers, lovely and true;
[illegible] the sextoner, set it apart,
[illegible] it, christened it "Heart."

[illegible] brought a creaky rose to flower;
[illegible] dark and inscrutable bower—
[illegible] the leaves of it, calling them "Pears,"
[illegible] from Hope, and watered by Tears.

[illegible] a Sunbeam flowed o'er its bed,
[illegible] a place for the half-hidden head;
[illegible] was every where [illegible] to spend its
[illegible] smile for Hope alone?

[illegible] Sun-ray, would it warn other
[illegible] where thy golden glories ever might shine
[illegible] lovely night, comforting, one
[illegible] the photograph ever should be!"

[illegible] Love, the gardener, proved, in his art,
[illegible] kind Sunbeam from your little Heart.
[illegible] my blossoms, who truthfully woo,
[illegible] be the brides of Sunbeam, and you!"

[illegible] gardener for groomsmen, all velvety bright,
[illegible] snowdrops in vestures of white,
[illegible] ringing harebells that nodded above,
[illegible] kiss a little in the garden of Love!

VARIETY.

[illegible] of impecuniosity.—A spiritualist without [illegible]

[illegible] was the first man to establish an iron [illegible] America. He cast at another there.

[illegible] before pleasure," as the Custom House [illegible] when he lighted upon some smuggled [illegible]

[illegible] digest paper in Switzerland says that [illegible] Nagyiva, of Pengyirania, has been using his mischaving."

Greenland's icy mountains are provokingly allluded to as a summer resort. "Thou art so near and yet so far?"

Punctuation was first used in literature in 1520. Before that time words used to run together like this.

A hotel is advertised as "kept by the widow of Mr. Brown, who died last summer on a new and improved plan."

An orator declaring that Fortune knocked at every man's door, an old Irishman said, "When she knocked at mine I must have been out."

A swell who stuttered horribly paid court to a very pretty actress. "Ah! sir," said she, "life is too short. I haven't time to listen to you."

"You're a smart fellow," addressed a lawyer to a witness, the other day. "I'd return the compliment if I wasn't under oath," replied the witness.

Sailor, smoking and soliloquizing: "If I only had been born a steamboat! I could have smoked like that steamer without buying tobacco."

A landlady said that she did not know how to make both ends meet. "Well," said a boarder, "why don't you make one end vegetables?"

"Carpenter," said a gentleman, finding a lot of nails strewn about the floor, "if you do not pick up those nails they will be lost." "No fear," said the man; "you will find them in the bill."

"I try to preach the milk of the word," replied a city clergyman to a parishioner who remonstrated that his sermons were too long. "Yes," remarked the other, "but around here what we want is condensed milk."

Smith spent two whole days and nights in considering an answer to the conundrum—"Why is an egg underdone like an egg overdone?" He would suffer no one to tell him, and at last hit upon the solution—because both are hardly done.

A free-trade orator was complaining of the cost of clothing in the United States and its cheapness abroad. "Why, my friends," said the orator, "you can buy as much for a shilling in Ireland as you can for fifty cents in the United States." "True enough, your honor," said an Irishman in the crowd, "but the difficulty in Ireland is to get the shilling."

In one of the public schools a short time since the class in definitions was called up to recite. The teacher gave out the word "punctuality," and required the definition. No one in the class was able to answer. A little eight year old boy named Johnny, in a corner of the school-room, held up his hand, as a signal that he could give the required information. On being asked by the teacher to do so, Johnny replied, "It's a lotin' lots o' time waitin' for the other fellur."

A gambler in Deadwood is so superstitious that he avers that he is always lucky when he wears a certain shirt, and so fearful is he of a change of fortune that he will not send the garment to be washed. He says he does not know but the luck might wash out and the shirt lose its power for good. He has won $19,000 in one day while wearing it. Others are superstitious with regard to dreams, the state of the atmosphere, or the number of men they meet in going a certain distance. When luck is against them they immediately leave the gambling table or turn in the streets, go home and change their clothing.

A clergyman was annoyed by people talking and giggling. He paused, looked at the disturbers, and said: "I am always afraid to reprove those who misbehave, for the reason—Some years since, as I was preaching, a young man who sat before me was constantly laughing, talking, and making smooth grimaces. I paused and administered a severe rebuke. After the close of the service a gentleman said to me, 'Sir, you have made a great mistake; that young man is an idiot.' Since then I have always been afraid to reprove those who misbehave themselves in chapel, lest I should repeat that mistake and reprove another idiot." During the rest of the service there was good order.

Archie Campbell, the head of the old town guard of Edinburgh, was a somewhat remarkable man in his way. His old mother died, and Archie, being well to do in money matters, resolved to take her back to her native place in the Highlands, and did so. Thinking it a great pity to be taking the hearse back to Edinburgh empty, he thought of the plan of sending a few gallons of real small-stiff smuggled whisky, which he could easily sell to the members of the town council with a good profit. After his feelings of regret had got somewhat blunted by years, he used to think it a good joke to say, over his toddy with some of his cronies: "I took awa' the body and brought back the speerit."

A gentleman who entertained a good deal of company at dinner had a black as an attendant who was a native of Africa, and never could be taught to hand things invariably to the left hand of the guests at table. At length his master thought of an infallible expedient to direct him, and, as the coats were then worn single-breasted, in the present Quaker fashion, he told him always to hand the plate to the button-hole side. Unfortunately, however, for the poor fellow, on the day after he had received this ingenious lesson, there was among the guests at dinner a gentleman with a double-breasted coat, and the African was for a while completely at a stand. He looked first at one side of the gentleman's coat, then at the other, and finally, confounded at the out-landish make of the stranger's garment, he cast a despairing look at his master, and exclaiming in a loud voice, "Button-holes on both sides, massa!" handed the plate right over the gentleman's head.
