My Rights.

"Yes, God has made me a woman,
And I am content to be
Just what He meant, not reaching out
For other things, since He
Who knows me best and loves me most has ordered this for me.

"A woman, to live my life out
In quiet womanly ways,
Hearing the far-off battle,
Seeing as through a haze
The crowding struggling world of men fight through their busy days.

"I am not strong or valiant,
I would not join the fight
Or jostle with crowds in the highways
To sell my garments white;
But I have rights as a woman, and here I claim my rights.

"The right of a rose to bloom
In its own sweet, separate way,
With none to question the perfumed pink
And none to alter a ray
If it reaches a root or points a thorn, as even a rose-tree may.

"The right of the lady birch to grow,
To grow as the Lord shall please,
By never a sturdy oak rebuked,
Doomed now and then to freeze,
For all its pliant slenderness, kin to the stronger trees.

"The right to a life of my own—
Not merely a casual bit
Of somebody else's life, flung out
That, taking hold of it,
I may stand as a cipher does after a numeral writ.

"The right to gather and glean
What food I need and can
From the garnered sheaves of knowledge
Which man has heaped for man,
Taking with free hands freely and after an ordered plan.

"The right—ah, best and sweetest!—
To stand all undismayed
Whenever sorrow or want or sin
Call for a woman's aid,
With none to cavil or question, by never a look gainsaid.

"I do not ask for a ballot;
Though very life were at stake,
I would beg for the rather justice
That men for manhood's sake
Should give ungrudgingly, nor withhold till I must fight and take.

"The first feet and the feeble feet
Both seek the self-same goal,
The weakest soldier's name is writ
On the great army roll,
And God, who made man's body strong, made too the woman's soul."

SUSAN COOLIDGE.

Miscellaneous.

Poor people eat mutton because it is sheep, and rich people eat venison because it is deer.

Some women are like shotguns. They would attract no attention if it were not for their bangs.

Wood is so expensive now-a-days in Connecticut that real estimags are cheaper than the Connecticut article.

An old fellow now under the control of his fourth wife always alludes to the three departed ones as his "spare ribs."

A subtle suspicion has crept into a great many breasts that Mr. Edison is holding back his electric light for the illumination of the Millennium.

General Garfield voted at the recent special election held to elect his successor in the House of Representatives. He was received at the polls with cheers from both parties.

Sir T. Chambers, M. P., said recently in London that, speaking for himself, he thought "the very dullness of London on a Sabbath was a great comfort to a Christian man."

Not everybody will be able to see the Nautch girls, but everybody can get a pretty good idea of their dance by putting two hornets down the housemaid's back.

Teacher in high school at ——: "Are yes and no synonymous or opposite terms?" Scholar: "Opposite." Teacher: "Give an example." Scholar: "Progress and Congress."

The Puget Sound Salmon Packing Company has closed operations for the season. They put up altogether about 3,000 cases. Silver salmon stopped running on the 22nd, and the run of Fall salmon commenced about the same time.

A service was recently announced at St. Matthew's, Sydenham, London, "for children of the upper classes." Whereupon the following amendment to the well known saying was promptly offered by a newspaper commentator: "Suffer little children of the upper classes to come unto me."

The astronomer royal of England announces the discovery by Louis, November 7th, of a comet in 22 hours, 46 minutes right ascension, 42 degrees, 36 minutes north declination with a daily motion of 7 minutes in right ascension and 68 minutes north.

A little love,
A little glove,
A little rosebud for a token;
A little sigh,
Few days gone by—
A little girl's heart broken.

Another man
Now stands aside,
With bank-book well extended;
A social crown,
A house in town,
And Sarah's heart is mended.

TOMBSTONE EPITAPHS.—One of the oldest things to be in this world is to find epitaphs cut on tombstones which the dead persons whose sleep they could have surpassed in absurdity and irreverence had he tried never so hard. Many collections of them have been made into books; but for the most part such literature has been gurned from rude settlements and bygone dates receding back into uncultured times. Not so in every case, however. It was only a few years ago that a stone was set up in Connecticut—a State more remarkable, by the way, than almost any other for extraordinary epitaphs—at the grave of a Freemason with these words cut upon it:

He acted on the level,
And worked upon the plumb,
And now he's left us on the square
For his eternal home.

From the Sydney Mail we take the following anecdote of the Prince and Sara Bernhardt:—"The Prince and Princess of Wales visited the studio of this actress, sculptor, and painter, Mdlle. Bernhardt never rose, but nodded as she said, 'Bon jour, Madame la Princesse! bon jour, Monsieur le Prince!' Then, seeing in the Prince's face his disapproval of this display of ill-breeding to his wife, she went on: 'You know, Prince, that Charles the Fifth stooped to pick up Titian's pencil; therefore you will excuse me for not having risen to receive you and the Princess.' 'I am certainly not Charles the Fifth,' replied H. R. H., 'though I am ready to an extent far greater than his; but therefore my saying so, Mlle. Bernhardt—you are not Titian.' The actress for once in her life looked abashed."

I found all the Minneapolis millers taking out their millstones and substituting steel rollers in their places. Wheat, by the Hungarian process, is not ground but cracked. These rollers are about thirty inches long and eight inches in diameter. It takes five sets of steel rollers to finish the flour. Each set of rollers runs closer than the preceding. After the wheat passes each set of rollers it is bolted or sifted through coarse cloth. The cloth lets the disintegrated particles of wheat through, and passes of the bulky and large pieces, which are run through another and a closer set of rollers, and cracked again. The last rollers have little else but wheat hulls and the waxy germs of the wheat, which do not crack up, but smush down like a piece of wax. The germ of a kernel of wheat is not good food. It makes flour black. By the old millstone process this waxy germ was ground up with the starchy portion and bolted through with the flour. By the new system of cracking the kernel instead of grinding it, this germ is not ground, but flattened out, and sifted out, while the starch portions of the wheat are crushed into powdered wheat or flour.

Louise Michel, the pardoned communist, made a triumphant entry into Paris on her return from New Caledonia, and was enthusiastically received by the communists whom she had succoured. Revine refused, it may be remembered, to be accompanied until some ugly old women, sent as protectresses on frivolous evidence to Cayenne, were also released. She was a municipal schoolmistress in Montmartre in the years of the invasion and civil war, and distinguished herself by her motherly care for the orphaned and starving children, and under the commune for her ambulance work. She is a very handsome woman of seven-and-twenty when I saw her nine years ago, writes a correspondent, and would have represented advantageously Charlotte Corday in Fouquet's drama. To-day she certainly looked fifty. Her teeth, which were then, I have gone; and her hair, that was raven black, is brindled. A faded Paisley shawl was on her shoulders, and a brown dingy bonnet on her head. The eyes were very dark and sweet, but much too habituated to express suffering to look at. M. Rochefort kissed her cheeks and wrung her hands, and M. Clemenceau and M. Louis Blanc also embraced her. She appeared hardly conscious of what was going on.
