Rosaline's Glove.

To only a crumpled and worn little glove,
But you can't imagine with how much of love
I linger over it.
For Rosaline, sweetest, most modest coquette
That ever made lovers to fume and to fret
Long ago wore it.

The finger-tips got lost as if they had tried
To give us a peep at the beauties inside—
My little traitress!
But had you more, held in your hand, my dear sir,
This glove when Venus wore, you'd have challenged all her
Calumniators.

The sinners that curse and endeavored their best
To capture the hand that this dainty glove dressed—
You'd not believe it—
But THERE and yesterday, you dear little Bid,
So safely you guarded your trust, so you did,
Never could achieve it.

I took to you now and imagine I see
You flinging from Rosaline's fingers to me
Sweetness of Venus.
Did she think I was blind? Or did she know I
Was coming? Who knows? Who can fathom the sly
Arts of those women?

Your touch will possess that magic effect
It had when I asked for the right to protect,
Love and attend her.
She said not a word, but with a smile a delight
I felt her hand steal into mine with a slight
Pressure so tender.

Two blessed you—ah, how many times!—gentlest glove,
Two miles and the blessings, though born of true love,
Begins been quicker!
But those of the poor and the dying, to whom
You've carried relief, where the darkness and gloom
Needed the sunlight.

—E. J. Wheeler in N. Y. Evening Post.

Miscellaneous.

All things were easy to the man who has never tried to do anything.

The Baltimore Every Saturday commenters on them with, "An old woman died in the west last week." It is supposed the result was just as fatal as if she had died all over.—Norristown Herald.

Seldom dying was more consolerate of his friends than when well and hearty, for he requested that none of them attend his funeral, saying: "People much such odds standing about in graveyards with their hats off."

A Jewish novice in smoking turned deadly pale and threw away his cigar. Said he: "That's something in that air cigar that's made me sick." "I know what it is," said his companion, pulling away. "What?" "Tobacco."

A Youngstown, Ohio, barber has written a drama, in which seven of the cast commit suicide, two are murdered and two hang, the latter suffering early in the play, for if they did not none of the company would be left to take part in the execution.

"Gentlemen of the jury," said an Irish barrister, "it will be for you to say whether this defendant shall be allowed to come into court with unblemishing footsteps, with the cloak of hypocrisy in his mouth, and draw three bullocks out of my client's pocket with impunity."

Correspondent on piazza, West End hotel, Long Branch—Fashionable young man to an other young man with fashionable—"Is this chair taken?" Ordinary young man—"No, you can have it." F. Y. M.—"Thank you cordially." O. Y. M.—"You're cordially welcome."

At Richland, New York, a family has a pet owl which has a singular aversion to the song "Kathleen Mavourneen." As soon as it is heard the owl screeds and if the song is continued will fly at the singer and bite and scratch furiously. No other song seems low to his musical.

Shelb Stephens, Vassar, M. has just been in falling some astonishing astronomical facts and figures. A Dubuque Stockman "never went to the dog and hog raising, and he knew a lot more than his own hogs and how far away the stars are, but, by Jove, I don't quite see how they ever found out their names."—Columbia Spectator.

In Great Britain harvesters enjoy the longest lives. Next to them come the clergymen of the Church of England, other ministers, grocers, grain-sowers, farmers, civil engineers, bookseller, publishers, wheelwrights, stockbrokers, laborers, engravers, brokers, iron founders, sawyers, brewers, paper makers, makers of mineral waters, grocers, gardeners, blacksmiths, shoemakers, turners, and tailors. The greatest mortality prevails among mechanics makers and wood workers.

A London special to the New York World says: "The will of the late E. A. Sothern, the actor, has been offered for probate. It bequeaths the greater part of his property to his sister, who has the sole charge of his youngest children. The widow and the eldest son are cut off and have begun a contest of the will on the ground of undue influence, as they allege that he some had complete control over him during the last few months of his life and prevented them from seeing him.

At a recent prayer meeting in Ashford, Mass., a member of a Congregational church, brought a charge of infidelity against the pastor, founded on his exposition of the Bible account of the creation, in which the clergyman had claimed that the days in question were not of twenty-four hours each, but of seven greater length, according to the widely received teachings of modern scientists. The congregation, with scarcely an exception, sustained their minister, and the name of the dissatisfied member was so promptly dropped from the roll of the church, at his own request.

The late Duke of Cambridge had a queer habit of thinking aloud, and particularly manifested this singularity during the performance of divine service. In the preliminary phrase from the pulpit, "Let us pray," he would call unmeaningly and unceremoniously "to all means," very proper. He would respond to the commandment, "Thou shalt not steal," "Very nice, very nice, very nice, and," remember that keep holy the Sabbath day" received a commendatory response—"very nicely very right." It is recorded that on one occasion, when "prayers for rain" were about to be offered up, he ejaculated, "No use, no use: the wind's easterly."

Very few churches in America have a seating capacity of over 1000. The following shows the size of some of the largest churches in Europe: St. Peter's church at Rome will hold 54,000 persons; Milan Cathedral, 37000; St. Paul's at Rome, 32,000; St. Paul's at London, 25,000; St. Petronius at Bologna, 38,000; Florence Cathedral, 30,000; Antwerp Cathedral, 36,000; St. Sophia's, Constantinople, 25,000; St. John Lateran, 30,000; Notre Dame, at Paris, 20,000; Pisa Cathedral, 12,000; St. Stephen's at Vienna, 22,000; St. Dominic's at Bologna, 22,000; St. Peter's at Bologna, 17,500; Cathedral of Vienna, 15,000; St. Mark's, Venice, 7000; Spurgeon's Tabernacle, 7000.

In the Patent Museum of Engines, in London, there are two appliances for charging the air of a room with antiseptic vapor which are worthy of note. One of these, as described, consists of a miniature "mill wheel," revolving in two gallons, the lower of which rests in a trough filled with a solution of carbolic acid, or any other antiseptic disinfectant. The other apparatus consists of a metal box filled with Norwegian fur, the fur of the box being provided with metal fumes which are immersed in the fur, when the apparatus is to be used the cover is raised and the incensed fumes are exposed to the air—the odor being so very pervasive throughout the apartment, and highly beneficial, as a disinfectant, or inhaled by a sick consumed with the apparatus.

The women of Turin have triumphed in one of their numerous wages promises to reward them with substantial benefits. There have been throughout the Legislature, the law of determined expectant, a resolution requiring that women shall be employed in all the State departments for every position they are competent to fill upon the same terms and conditions as men. The heads of departments, it appears, have hitherto declined to do women any greater employment, but, notwithstanding the fact that the ladies have no votes, when they brought their influence to bear upon the Legislature they proved more powerful than those who elect Legislators. A relative of the late Gen. Sam Houston was the special champion of the ladies cause in the State Senate.

The project of turning the Roman Catholic school houses and seminary in Cincinnati over to the control of the Board of Education is under discussion. In 1869 the late Father Edward Purcell, then acting for the absent Archbishop, submitted this proposition: "The Catholic church will give the school houses to the School Board and give them the control of the Catholic teachers who have passed the examination. All they ask is to have the right, after the regular school hours, to indoctrinate the children in our religion." The general feeling in favor of the change is the desirability of eradicating the public mind of the notion that the church is the enemy of the public schools, and the hope of relieving the churches from the burden of the schools, many of their being in debt and without credit since the Tweed crash. The Catholic schools there now contain 5000 boys and 4000 girls.

Sheriff John T. Freeby gave a novel entertainment at his farm, northeast of this city, yesterday afternoon, which was witnessed by at least a thousand of his friends from this place. Mr. Freeby has one of the finest farms in Marion county, most of it under cultivation. In several fields, however, which had been lately cleared, were a number of large stumps, and after working at them for several weeks by ordinary methods the sheriff or official secured the services of "Fred," Sumner, of Lafayette, to blast the remaining stumps out with dynamite. After throwing out a number of them singly, Mr. Freeby announced the time of throwing up all the stumps at a 40-acre clearing simultaneously, and this was the entertainment which the guests witnessed yesterday afternoon. The field selected contains at least 40 acres, and not less than 40 large stumps dotted its surface. Holes were drilled in the roots of them, on a level with the ground, into which cartridges were inserted and connected with a battery by means of wire. The work of the engineer was entirely satisfactory, and every stump was blown to atoms. Pieces flew upward 200 or 300 feet and were picked up several hundred feet away.—Indianapolis Journal, Feb. 8.
