Love, Time and Death

Ah, my dread friends of mine—Love, Time and Death!
Sweet Love, who came to me on sunny wing
And gave her to my arms—her lips, her breath,
And all her golden singlets clustering,
And Time, who gathers in the flying years,
He gave me all, but where is all he gave?
He took my love and left me barren tears.
Sweet and less I follow to the grave.
Death will end this vision half divine.
Ere Death, who waits in shadow overhead,
And silent, ere he gave the sudden sign,
Oh, would I had not the thing I sorrowing,
Then Death, then treatest friend at some
Ah me! for Love—will Death my love restore?
Ah me! for Time—will Death my youth restore?

Acteon Dobson.

Snow-Flake.

We parted in the winter,
And from the distant hill
He watched my ship sail onward
Over the waters cold and still.

Could you see the tear-drop
That glistened in his eye?
Nor her dainty kerchief wasted
Against the frosty sky.
But I knew her heart was breathing
A gentle word of prayer;
Knew her eye was strengthening
And her kerchief waving there
Until before I left her,
"Farewell, my love, farewell!
I am sailing to the sunshine,
And the land where myrtle-leaves
But still my longing fancy
Will turn to rest with thee;
My snow-flake on the mountains
Is more than all to me."

You know how the pine cones drop,
When the winter's cold is spent;
So, ere before that ship returned,
My sweet Snow-flake was dead.

—From All The Year Round.

Miscellaneous.

There is a scheme projected for reviving the idea of a canal through the Isthmus of Kraw, situated in the upper part of the Malay Peninsula. It is stated that the project is under French auspices. The idea is not new, as it was energetically pushed so far back as 1859-60, and was advocated at that time by Sir John Bowring, a former Governor of Hongkong.

It has been rumored that a diary left by Lord Beaconsfield is to be published before very long. It is the fact that there are at least two diaries of Lord Beaconsfield's youth in existence in one of which he relates his journey in the East with Mr. Clay. They are both diaries which were given away by the writer in his life-time, and are therefore beyond the control of the executors.

The Paris Chamber of Commerce, which has [illegible] two schools, with about 1,000 pupils [illegible] opened an [illegible] A spacious and appropriate [illegible] has been erected in the Boulevard [illegible], the curriculum comprises [illegible], book-keeping, analytical chemistry, [illegible] and customs laws, railways, [illegible], modern languages, etc.

A company has been organized at Cleveland to introduce a system of tubes in which to convey all electric and telephone wires through the streets, and thus dispense with objectionable poles. The company say they will use a wire which will overcome the difficulty of induction, [illegible] contact and retardation of [illegible] experiments in Philadelphia are [illegible] demonstrated the efficacy of [illegible].

[illegible] in most other respects, British Burmah appears to be the most progressive province of India. With a population of under 4,000,000, it had, during 1880-1, 18 Government schools and no less than 3,219 aided and private schools, with an aggregate of 58,797 scholars. The year compared with the previous one shows an increase of 8,261 scholars. These satisfactory results are [illegible] to the fact that more attention and money have recently been devoted to the improvement of indigenous primary schools.

The [illegible] fair project for 1883 has [illegible] On the 16th Jan., the committee of [illegible] appointed October 24th to [illegible] reported the poor and [illegible] and recommended that [illegible] the enterprise be postponed [illegible] when its probable success [illegible] Springfield, says that Boston is too [illegible] to take any interest in it, gives no promise of commensurate with the [illegible].

It is an office holding 15 persons, of whom can get out in [illegible] minutes by doors placed all round the building and opening outward. A Liverpool magistrate referred to the Mormon at home as affording ample means of escape in the event of riots or [illegible]. "Without trying to force that in Christendom we might learn a good deal of the wisdom of the Latter-Day Saints of the New World or the Old," says the Pall Mall [illegible] "Surely [illegible] might be done to prevent the conversion of theatres, music halls, etc., into [illegible] death traps whenever a cry of fire is raised."

The Jubilee of Chambers' Journal was celebrated in February. The Messrs. William Chambers, one of the original proprietors of this venerable and still highly successful periodical, continue to edit it, being assisted by his nephew, [illegible] Chambers. The Glasgow Herald says that "the twenty-first year of its existence [illegible] January, and the centenary was celebrated by a banquet in the Merchants' Hall, Glasgow. Mr. Henry Davies has completed the British volume of the Leader-Gazetteer he has edited since it began in 1862.

The Medical Press says that since the Melbourne exhibition, Belgian manufacturers have [illegible] a large trade direct with Australia. The German steamers of the Sloman Line call regularly once a month at Antwerp on their way to Melbourne, and there is always an extra [illegible] of cargo for Australian ports. Belgium, however, had scarcely any direct trade with Melbourne before the exhibition, has within the last eight months forwarded 5,000 tons of goods ordered for Melbourne merchants. Iron and chemicals are the principal [illegible] sent to this market. The competition with the "mother country" for patronage [illegible] British colonist constitutes one instance [illegible] many cases [illegible] coming into notice.
