NEW YORK CITY.

THE COURTS.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT.

Return of True Bills by the Grand Jury—Indictments Found Against William Fullerton, Alfred A. Belknap and Others—Warrants Issued for the Arrest of the Parties for Conspiracy—Important Proceedings and Serious Charges.

Southern District of New York, ss.—The jurors of the United States of America within and for the district and circuit aforesaid, on their oath present, that William Fullerton, Jacob Depuy, Alfred A. Belknap, Daniel C. Birdsall, Enward J. Windust, together with divers other persons, whose names are to the jurors unknown, all late of the city and county of New York, in the district and circuit aforesaid, heretofore, to wit, on the 11th day of June, in the year of our Lord 1868, at the city of New York, and within the jurisdiction of this Court, did unlawfully and corruptly conspire, combine, confederate and agree together, to cause and procure one Thomas E. Smith, late of the city aforesaid, to be charged on the written complaint and affidavit hereinafter stated and set forth, with the violation of the provisions of an act entitled "An act to provide internal revenue to support the government, to pay interest on the public debt and for other purposes, approved June 30, 1864," as amended by the act of March 3, 1865, and as further amended by the act of July 13, 1866, and as further amended by the act of March 2, 1867, and to apply for, and to cause and procure a warrant to be issued by a commissioner of the United States, for the arrest and apprehension of the said Thomas E. Smith on the charge aforesaid; and that the said Thomas E. Smith, being charged and arrested as aforesaid, the said Alfred A. Belknap, he, the said Alfred A. Belknap, then and there being an officer and agent of the United States, and a person having charge of the execution, and having charge of the supervision of the execution of the provisions of said act and of the several acts amending the same as aforesaid, but having no authority by law to demand, accept, attempt to collect, directly or indirectly, as payment, gift or otherwise, any sum of money or other property of value for the compromise, adjustment or settlement of such charge and complaint, should unlawfully attempt to collect, and should demand, collect, accept and receive of and from the said Thomas E. Smith, without being thereunto expressly authorized by law, a large sum of money and other property of value for the compromise, adjustment and settlement of the said charge and complaint for the alleged violations of the provisions of said act, and of the several acts amending the same as aforesaid. And the jurors aforesaid do further present that in pursuance of such conspiracy, combination, confederation and agreement, and to effect the object thereof, the said Jacob Depuy did afterward—to wit, on the 11th day of June, in the year of Our Lord 1868—in the city aforesaid, make complaint and did present his affidavit to John A. Osborn, he the said John A. Osborn then and there being a Commissioner of the United States in and for the Southern District of New York, the said John A. Osborn then and there having lawful authority to take said complaint and to issue a warrant thereon, which complaint and affidavit is in the words and figures following, that is to say:—

State of New York, City and County of New York, ss.—Jacob Depuy, of the city of New York, being first duly sworn, says as follows:—I reside at No. 774 Eighth avenue; I have been in the secret service of the War Department, and still hold a commission in such service without pay; in this position I necessarily acquired a good deal of information in relation to the revenue departments in this city; I was first appointed in the above service in the month of November, in the year 1862, and have so continued until the present time, part of the time being under pay, and since June, 1865, not under pay; shortly after the appointment of Thomas E. Smith as Collector of the Eighth Internal Revenue Collection district of this State, I became satisfied that great frauds were being perpetrated in said district with the connivance of Thomas E. Smith; on several occasions, at my suggestion, officers of the Metropolitan police force seized different lots of spirits when they were being moved in and through the city contrary to and in violation of the provisions of the Revenue laws; I knew that the spirits so seized were being removed without the payment of the tax due on it; when the spirits was seized it was taken to Collector Smith and immediately released by him, notwithstanding I had furnished the officers seizing with proof that the spirits so being moved was being moved in violation of the said law; among others officers who seized spirits as I have above stated, I recollect the names of Albert Lineback, Daniel Smith, Mr. —— Van Houghton, and I think one McCann; failing to accomplish anything by seizing the spirits as above stated, I continued to keep a lookout for the movements in the spirit business; after I had caused several seizures to be made, several distillers came to me and said that they were all right with Collector Smith; that they had fixed it with him, and they would not be disturbed, and held out inducements to me to take any spirits that I caused to be seized to Collector Smith and it would be discharged; one of them agreed to pay and did pay me twenty-five dollars a week for not making any complaints or causing any seizures to be made; I accepted this sum because I had in vain done everything I could to effect seizures and secure the forfeiture; the names of the distillers above referred to are Rosenberg, of No. 418 West Twenty-eighth street; he was the rectifier of the establishment I believe; he said to me that he had paid and agreed to pay Collector Smith $500 a week while he ran the distillery, and he was willing to give me fifty dollars a week if I would make no complaints, and he did give me that sum weekly while running the distillery; when running they turned out forty or fifty barrels a day on which no tax was paid; Newhouse, of the firm of Eickoff & Newhouse, made similar statements to me about having arranged with Collector Smith, and said that he had an illicit still, and that Smith knew it, but would not disturb them; he offered me one dollar a barrel on all they turned out if I would not make any complaint; Gropp, of Fleischmann & Gropp, Thirty-ninth street, near Ninth avenue, came to me one morning after their distillery had been seized by William Sterritt, deputy collector under Smith; he said that he had been down to Collector Smith's and had arranged matters with him; that he had settled with him, paid him and got the distillery released, and he wanted to arrange with me not to make any complaints; he said that he had given $225 to be given to me; he promised to give me twenty-five dollars a week while they ran; I had not received that sum of $225; I saw Gropp go to Smith's office that morning, having spotted him after the seizure from their distillery to Smith's office and back to Thirty-ninth street; the above conversation was on Thirty-ninth street; on his return from Smith's; he was much excited at the time; Gropp & Fleischmann's distillery was not under seizure at this time more than two hours or so; Mike, the man who did the outside business of the distillery No. 9 Abattoir place, has told me that they had paid Collector Smith money to keep him quiet; I have heard the same thing from several others having distilleries in the district; it is pretty generally understood in the district among the distillers that the moneys from the distilleries went to Smith instead of for the payment of taxes; on the 1st day of May, 1867, I followed a lot of 174 barrels of spirits from Woolsey's bonded warehouse in Thirty-seventh street, near Ninth avenue, in Smith's district; these barrels of spirits were removed ostensibly for shipment to California; they were taken to Williamsburg and the spirits were there taken out, and I saw water running through the hose; the same barrels came back to Woolsey's bonded warehouse; I saw and counted twenty-seven puncheons in which the spirits had been put; I marked two of these puncheons by driving a copper tack in the head or end of the bung stave, and I saw the same two puncheons back in the city, in a place in Tenth avenue; Matthew McConnell, the officer on the beat, went into the bonded warehouse and found water in some of the barrels removed and returned; Eickoff & Newhouse's distillery in Thirty-sixth street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues, was seized by or turned over to Collector Smith; the head of the still was broken off and put in the Collector's office; notwithstanding this, and while the distillery was in charge of Smith's keeper's, the still was being run principally at night, and during this same period, while the still head was at Smith's, they were paying, as they told me, to Smith his weekly sum, and to me the $1 a barrel which they promised me; I am quite well acquainted with the men in Collector Smith's district who are or have been engaged in distilling and rectifying, and have frequently talked with most of them in relation to Collector Smith's management of his district. It is a notorious fact among persons who are familiar with this business, that the business of the said Collector's office so far as it relates to distilling and rectifying, and collection of revenue on account thereof has been fraudulently conducted, and that Collector Smith has reaped a harvest from his office. All the facts above referred to occurred within two years last past, or within a year from last May.

11th day of June, 1868. JACOB DEPUY.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 11th day June, A. D. 1868.

JOHN A. OSBORN, United States Commissioner.

And in further pursuance of said conspiracy and agreement, and to effect the object thereof, the said William Fullerton did then and there, on said complaint and affidavit, apply for and obtain a warrant under the hand and seal of the said John A. Osborn, for the arrest of said Thomas E. Smith, which said warrant is in the words and figures following:—"The President of the United States of America to the Marshal of the United States for the Southern District of New York, and to his deputies, or any or either of them: Whereas complaint on oath hath been made to me charging that Thomas E. Smith, Collector of United States Internal Revenue for the Eighth Collection district of the State of New York, did, at divers times, at the Southern district of New York, within one year from the 1st day of May last past, knowingly and corruptly accept or receive various sums of money as bribes from a person or persons named in the complaint contrary to and in violation of the sixty-second section of the United States Revenue laws, passed June 30, 1864, and acts amendatory thereof.

Now, therefore, you are hereby commanded, in the name of the President of the United States of America, to apprehend the said Thomas E. Smith and bring his body forthwith before me or some other judge or justice of the United States or United States Commissioner, or a justice of the peace or other magistrate of the State of New York, wherever he may be found, that he may then and there be dealt with according to law for the said offence.

Given under my hand and seal this 12th day of June, in the year of our Lord 1868.

JOHN A. OSBORN, United States Commissioner for the Southern District of New York.

SAMUEL G. COURTNEY, United States District Attorney.

That afterward and on the 12th day of June, in the year of our Lord 1868, in pursuance of said conspiracy and to effect the object thereof, the said Edward J. Windust, representing himself falsely to be a deputy marshal of the United States in and for said Southern district of New York, arrested said Thomas E. Smith on said warrant, and afterward and on the 12th day of June, in the year of our Lord 1868, at the city of New York, in further pursuance of said conspiracy and to effect the object thereof, the said Alfred A. Belknap, he, the said Alfred A. Belknap, then and there being such officer, agent and person as aforesaid, did unlawfully demand, accept and attempt to collect, and did collect and receive of and from said Thomas E. Smith $10,000 in money and other property of great value for the compromise, adjustment and settlement of such charge and complaint for the alleged violation of the provisions of the said act and of the several acts amending the same, as aforesaid, against the peace of the United States and their dignity and against the form of the statute of the United States in such case made and provided.

SECOND COUNT.

And the jurors aforesaid upon their oaths aforesaid, do further present that said Thomas E. Smith having been charged with the violation of the provisions of the act [the act is here quoted governing the case], and a warrant for the arrest of the said Thomas E. Smith having been issued on the 12th day of June, 1868, by John A. Osborn, he, the said John A. Osborn, then and there being a United State Commissioner in and for the Southern District of New York, and duly authorized by law to take said complaint, and to issue such warrant, said William Fullerton, Jacob Depuy, Alfred A. Belknap, Daniel C. Birdsall, Edward J. Windust, together with divers other persons whose names are to the jurors unknown, late of the city and county of New York, in the district and circuit aforesaid heretofore, to wit:—On the 11th day of June, in the year of our Lord 1868, at the city of New York and within the jurisdiction of this court, unlawfully and corruptly did conspire, combine, confederate and agree together that the said Alfred A. Belknap, he, the said Alfred A. Belknap, then being an officer and agent of the United States and a person charged with the execution and with the supervision of the execution of the provisions of said act, and of the several acts amending the same as aforesaid, but having no authority to demand, accept, or to attempt to collect directly or indectly, as payment, or gift, or otherwise, any sum of money or other property of value, for the compromise, adjustment or settlement of any charge or complaint for any violation or alleged violation of any of the provisions of said act, or any of the acts amending the same as aforesaid, should unlawfully and corruptly demand, accept and attempt to collect of and from said Thomas E. Smith, as payment, $10,000 in money and a large amount of other property of value, in settlement, adjustment and compromise of the said charge and complaint for the alleged violation of the provisions of said act and of the several acts amending the same as aforesaid, then made and pending against the said Thomas E. Smith as aforesaid, he, the said Alfred A. Belknap, then and there having no authority in law to demand, accept, or to attempt to collect the same as payment, gift or otherwise. And the jurors do further present that, in pursuance of such conspiracy, combination, confederacy, and agreement, and to effect the object thereof, said Alfred A. Belknap, afterward, and on the 12th day of June, in the year of our Lord 1868, at the city of New York, did demand, accept and attempt to collect of him, the said Thomas E. Smith, the sum of $10,000 in money and other property of value, for the compromise, adjustment and settlement of the said charge and complaint, for the alleged violations of the provisions of said act and of the acts amending the same, as aforesaid, against the peace of the said United States and their dignity, and against the form of the statute of the said United States in such case made and provided.

THIRD COUNT.

And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present that on the 11th day of June, in the year of our Lord 1868, said Jacob Dupuy did make his complaint and affidavit in writing, before John A. Osborn, a Commissioner of the United States Circuit Court, in and for the southern district of New York, the said John A. Osborn then, and having lawful authority to take such complaints, in which affidavit the affiant charged Thomas E. Smith with the violation of the provisions of the act entitled "An act to provide internal revenue, to support the government and to pay interest on the public debt," approved June 30, 1864, and as in first count in this that said Thomas E. Smith had theretofore, in violation of the provisions of said act and of the several acts amending the same as aforesaid, unlawfully and corrupty conspired with one Gropp and one Eickhof, Newhouse and others, to defraud the United States of the tax due on distilled spirits, and did at divers times from May, 1867, to May, 1868, while Collector of Internal Revenue in and for the Eighth Collection district of the State of New York, knowingly and corruptly accept and receive various sums of money as bribes from a person and persons named in the said complaint and affidavit, and in violation of the sixty-second section of the United States Revenue laws, approved June 30, 1864, and acts amendatory thereof. That the said John A. Osborn did thereupon issue his warrant, dated the 12th day of June, 1868, under his hand and seal, for the arrest of the said Thomas E. Smith, the said John A. Osborn then and there having lawful authority to issue said warrants, and the jurors do further present that William Fullerton, Jacob Depuy, Alfred A. Belknap, Daniel C. Birdsall, Edward J. Windust, together with divers other persons whose names are to the jurors unknown, late of the city and county of New York, in the district and circuit aforesaid, heretofore, to wit, on the 12th day of June, in the year of our Lord 1868, at the city of New York and within the jurisdiction of this court, unlawfully and corruptly did conspire, combine, confederate and agree together, corruptly and by threats and force to obstruct and impede, and to endeavor to obstruct and impede the due administration of justice in the matter of the said complaint made before said Commissioner as aforesaid, and then and there pending against the said Thomes E. Smith, before the said Commissioner in the United States Circuit Court in and for the Southern district of New York; and in pursuance of such conspiracy, combination, confederacy and agreement, and to effect the object thereof, the said William Fullerton, Alfred A. Belknap, Jacob Depuy and Edward J. Windust, did conceal and keep from the Attorney for the United States in and for said Southern district of New York the fact that complaint had been made and a warrant issued against the said Thomas E. Smith, and then and there prevented the said Attorney from being informed thereof; and they, the said William Fullerton, Alfred A. Belknap, Jacob Depuy and Edward J. Windust did obtain said warrant from said John A. Osborn, and did keep the same from the possession or knowledge of the United States Marshal in and for said Southern district of New York, and did advise, persuade and induce said Thomas E. Smith to run away and depart from the State of New York, and go to Canada and out of the jurisdiction of the United States Circuit Court in and for the Southern district of New York, and out of the jurisdiction of said Commissioner, and, in consideration of the sum of $10,000, and other property of value to them paid and delivered by said Thomas E. Smith, did promise to and agree with said Thomas E. Smith to take care of said Thomas E. Smith, and to protect him from the prosecution of said charge and alleged violations of the laws aforesaid, against the peace of the said United States and their dignity, and against the form of the statute of the said United States in such case made and provided.

FOURTH COUNT.

And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present that said Alfred A. Belknap, being an officer of the United States, and holding a place of trust and profit and discharging an official function under and in connection with the Treasury Department of the United States, and being charged as such officer with the investigation of complaints made against persons for violations of the provisions of an act entitled, "An act to provide internal revenue to support the government, to pay interest on the public debt and for other purposes;" approved June 30, 1864. And complaint having been made against one Thomas E. Smith, late Collector of Internal Revenue for the Eighth collection district of the State of New York, charging that said Thomas E. Smith had conspired with other persons to commit an offence against the laws of the United States, and for having as such Collector accepted and received bribes from various persons in violation of the provisions of the sixty-second section of said act of July 13, 1866; and the said Alfred A. Belknap having undertaken, in pursuance of his duty as such officer, the investigation into the truth of such charges and complaints; and it being the duty of said Alfred A. Belknap, in case the charges and complaints should prove to be well founded, and it should be ascertaindd that said Thomas E. Smith had been guilty of violations of the provisions of said act, to cause him to be prosecuted therefor, the said Alfred A. Belknap, William Fullerton, Jacob Depuy, Daniel C. Birdsall, Edward J. Windust, together with divers of other persons whose names are to the jurors unknown, late of the city and county of New York, in the district and circuit aforesaid, heretofore, to wit: on the 11th day of June, in the year of our Lord 1868, at the city of New York, and within the jurisdiction of this Court, did corruptly and unlawfully conspire, combine, confederate and agree together to cause and procure the said Thomas E. Smith to promise, offer and give a large sum of money, to wit, the sum of $10,000 and other property of value, to the said Alfred A. Belknap, he, the said Alfred A. Belknap, then and there being such officer as aforesaid, and being then and there engaged in the investigation of the charge and complaint against the said Thomas E. Smith as aforesaid, for the violation of the provisions of the act aforesaid and of the several acts amending the same as aforesaid, with intent to influence the decision and action of the said Alfred A. Belknap touching the charges and complaint, matters and things which had been brought and were then pending before him, the said Alfred A. Belknap, in his official capacity and in his place of trust and profit, and that said Alfred A. Belknap should then and there accept and receive the same for the purpose aforesaid, and that in pursuance of such conspiracy, combination, confederacy and agreement, and to effect the object thereof the said Thomas E. Smith afterward, and on the 12th day of June, in the year of our Lord 1868, at the city of New York, did pay to said Alfred A. Belknap, he, the said Alfred A. Belknap, then and there being such officer, and holding a position of trust and profit as aforesaid, with intent to influence his decision and action on the question then and there pending before him as aforesaid, in his official capacity as aforesaid, the sum of $10,000, and other property of value, who did then and there accept and receive the same with the intent and for the purpose aforesaid, against the peace of the said United States and their dignity, and against the form of the statute of the said United States in such case made and provided.

FIFTH COUNT.

And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oaths aforesaid, do further present that William Fullerton, Jacob Depuy, Alfred A. Belknap, Daniel C. Birdsall, Edward J. Windust, together with divers other persons whose names are to the jurors unknown, late of the city and county of New York, in the district and circuit aforesaid, heretofore, to wit, on the 11th day of June, in the year of our Lord 1868, at the city of New York, and within the jurisdiction of this Court, did unlawfully and corruptly conspire, combine, confederate and agree together to commit an offence against the laws of the United States, that is to say, that one Thos. C. Smith should promise, offer and give a large sum of money, to wit, $10,000, and other property of value, as a bribe, present and reward to one Alfred A. Belknap, he, the said Alfred A. Belknap, then and there being an officer of the United States, holding a place of profit and trust, and discharging an official function under and in connection with the Treasury Department of the government of the United States, with intent to influence his decision and action on a certain complaint, matter, cause and thing which was then pending before said Alfred A. Belknap, as such officer and in his official capacity against the said Thomas E. Smith for an alleged violation of an act entitled "An act to provide internal revenue to support the government, to pay interest on the public debt and for other purposes," approved June 30, 1862, amended by the act of March 3, 1865, and as further amended by the act of July 13, 1866, and as further amended by the act of March 2, 1867. And that the said Alfred A. Belknap should then and there accept and receive the same with the intent and for the purpose aforesaid; that in pursuance of said conspiracy and agreement, and to effect the object thereof, the said Thomas E. Smith, afterward, to wit, on the 12th day of June, in the year of our Lord, 1868, at the said city of New York, did promise, offer and give, and did cause and procure to be offered, promised and given to said Alfred A. Belknap, he, the said Alfred A. Belknap, then and there being such officer as aforesaid, and holding a place of trust and profit and discharging an official function under and in connection with the Treasury Department of the government of the United States, with intent to influence his, the said Alfred A. Belknap's, decision and action on the question, matter, cause and thing then pending before him in his official capacity in his place of trust and profit the sum of $10,000 in money and other property of value. And the said Alfred A. Belknap did then and there accept and receive the same with the intent and for the purpose aforesaid, against the peace of the said United States and their dignity, and against the form of the statute of the said United States in such case made and provided.

SIXTH COUNT.

And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present that William Fullerton, Jacob Depuy, Alfred A. Belknap, Daniel C. Birdsall, Edward J. Windust and divers other persons whose names are to the jurors unknown, late of the city and county of New York, in the district and circuit aforesaid, heretofore, to wit, on the 11th day of June, in the year of our Lord 1868, at the city of New York, and within the jurisdiction of this court, did unlawfully, knowingly and wilfully combine, conspire, confederate and agree together and among themselves to commit a certain other offence against the laws of the United States, to wit: to cause and procure to be given by said Thomas E. Smith certain money, to wit, the sum of $10,000, and certain other property of value, to one Alfred A. Belknap, he, the said Alfred A. Belknap, being then and there a person holding a certain place of trust and profit and discharging a certain official function, under and in connection with the Treasury Department of the government of the United States, to wit, being then and there a special agent of the Treasury Department, duly appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury, then and there after the passage of the act of Congress approved July 13, 1866, entitled "An act to reduce internal taxation, and to amend an act entitled an act to provide internal revenue to support the government, to pay interest on the public debt, and for other purposes," approved June 30, 1864, as amended by the act of March 3, 1865, and as further amended by the act of July 13, 1866, and as further amended by the act of March 2, 1867, then and there with intent to influence the action of him, the said Alfred A. Belknap, on a certain matter which was then pending before him, the said Alfred A. Belknap, in his place of trust and profit as aforesaid, to wit, the examination and investigation by him, the said Alfred A. Belknap, then and there holding such place of trust and profit as aforesaid and discharging such official function as aforesaid into certain offences alleged to have been committed against the Revenue laws of the United States by him, the said Thomas E. Smith, and that afterward, to-wit, on the 12th day of June, in the year 1868, he, the said Daniel C. Birdsall, to effect an object, and in pursuance of the said conspiracy, did receive from the said Thomas E. Smith the said sum of $10,000, and said other property of value, then and there against the peace of said United States and their dignity, and against the form of the statute of the said United States in such case made and provided.

SEVENTH COUNT.

And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present that William Fullerton, Jacob Depuy, Alfred A. Belknap, Daniel C. Birdsall, Edward J. Windust and divers other persons to the jurors unknown, all late of the city and county of New York, in the district and circuit aforesaid, heretofore, to wit, on the 11th of June, in the year of our Lord 1868, at the Southern district of New York, and within the jurisdiction of this court, did knowingly and wilfully combine, conspire, confederate and agree together to commit a certain offence against the laws of the United States, to wit, to receive certain money, to wit, the sum of $10,000, and certain other property of value, from said Thomas E. Smith, then and there, as a consideration for not informing against certain violations of the act of Congress entitled "An act to provide internal revenue to support the government, to pay interest on the public debt and for other purposes," approved June 30, 1864, as amended by the act of March 3, 1865, and as further amended by the act of July 13, 1866, alleged to have been committed by him, the said Thomas E. Smith, and that he, the said Daniel C. Birdsall, did afterwards—to wit, in the year of Our Lord 1868—to effect the object and in pursuance of the said conspiracy, receive the said sum of $10,000 and the other property of value aforesaid from him, the said Thomas E. Smith, against the peace of the said United States and their dignity, and against the form of the statute of the said United States in such case made and provided.

EIGHTH COUNT.

And the jurors aforesaid, on their oath aforesaid, do further present that William Fullerton, Jacob Depuy, Alfred A. Belknap, Daniel C. Birdsall, Edward J. Windust, and divers other persons to the jurors unknown, all late of the city and county of New York, in the district and circuit aforesaid, heretofore, to wit:—on the 11th day of June, in the year of our Lord 1868, at the Southern District of New York, and within the jurisdiction of this Court, did knowingly and wilfully combine, conspire, confederate and agree together to commit a certain offence against the laws of the United States—to wit, to receive certain money, to wit, the sum of $10,000, and certain other property of value, from one Thomas E. Smith, then and there, under a threat of informing against certain violations of the act of Congress entitled, "An act to provide internal revenue to support the government, to pay interest on the public debt, and for other purpose," approved June 30, 1864, as amended by the act of March 3, 1865, and as further amended by the act of July 13, 1866, alleged to have been committed by him, the said Thomas E. Smith, and that he, the said Daniel C. Birdsall, did afterward, to wit, on the 12th day of June, in the year of our Lord 1868, to effect the object and in pursuance of the said conspiracy, receive the said sum of $10,000 and the other property of value aforesaid, from him, the said Thomas E. Smith, against the peace of the said United States and their dignity, and against the form of the statute of the said United States, in such cases made and provided.

NINTH COUNT.

And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that complaint having been made and being then lawfully pending before John A. Osborn, he, the said John A. Osborn, then and there being a Commissioner duly appointed by the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, in the Second Circuit, against said Thomas E. Smith, late Collector of Internal Revenue for the Eighth Collection District of the State of New York, for having theretofore and subsequent to the 2d day of March, 1867, unlawfully conspired with other persons to commit an offence against the laws of the United States, and with having, as such collector, and since the 13th day of July, 1866, corruptly accepted and removed large sums of money from certain persons as a bribe, with intent to influence his decision and action on certain questions pending before him as such collector at the time of receiving said sums of money, William Fullerton, Jacob Depuy, Alfred A. Belknap, Daniel C. Birdsall, Edward J. Windust and divers other persons to the jurors unknown, all late of the city and county of New York, in the district and circuit aforesaid, at the Southern District of New York and within the jurisdiction of this Court, heretofore, to wit, on the 11th day of June, in the year of our Lord 1868, did knowingly and willingly conspire, combine, confederate and agree together to obtain of and from said Thomas E. Smith a large sum of money, to wit, $10,000 and other property of value, under a threat of informing, and as a consideration for not informing against the offences for which said Thomas E. Smith was then and there charged before said John A. Osborn, and against said violations of the act of Congress entitled "An act to provide internal revenue to support the government, to pay interest on the public debt and for other purposes," approved June 30, 1864, as amended by the act of March 3, 1865, and as further amended by the act of July 13, 1866; and that, in pursuance of said conspiracy, and to effect the object thereof, afterward, to wit, on the 12th day of June in the said year 1868, he, the said Daniel C. Birdsall, did receive from the said Thomas E. Smith the said sum of $10,000, and the other property of value aforesaid, then and there, against the peace of the United States and their dignity, and against the form of the statute of the said United States in such case made and provided.

United States Attorney.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

The Alleged Whiskey Ring Frauds.

Before Judge Blatchford.

At the opening of the court yesterday morning United States District Attorney Courtney informed the court that he had received instructions from Attorney General Evarts, from Washington, instructing him to bring the Bourbon Company (Messmore and others), the Blaisdell & Eckel and other whiskey cases, covering about thirty indictments, to trial as soon as possible.

Judge Blatchford said some definite time had better be agreed upon forthwith.

Mr. Courtney said he was anxious to have the cases tried as early as possible. He wanted no delay; the government was ready and he hoped the defence would be ready as soon as practicable.

The counsel for defendants in the Bourbon whiskey case, in which there are five indictments consolidated, said they would do the best in their power to get ready at an early day.

Mr. Courtney thought the defence should be ready to proceed almost immediately, as they had had abundance of time to prepare.

Judge Blatchford said that from the number of other cases pending it would be impracticable to commence these cases before the early part of December, but they ought to go on then.

Mr. Courtney wanted them set down for the first day of the December term.

Judge Blatchford then set them down for the 7th of December, and, in response to the counsel in the Bourbon whiskey case, he said all the defendants must be ready to be tried together.

Mr. John Sedgwick, counsel for Frost, one of the defendants, wished to have an opportunity in the meantime to argue in favor of a motion for a separate trial for Frost.

Ex-Recorder Smith, counsel for another of the defendants, also desired a similar privilege for his client.

Judge Blatchford granted both applications, and argument will ensue in a few days. Counsel in the cases then left the court room.

The Alleged Tradesmen's Bank Defalcation.

Before Judge Blatchford.

The United States vs. Garner C. Baker.—The defendant in this case was charged, about a year back, with having misappropriated certain moneys belonging to the Tradesmen's National Bank in this city. John Arnold was also at the same time indicted for a similar offence, one at the time being the receiving teller and the other, the present defendant, paying teller of the bank. The case was very fully gone into in an examination before Commissioner Osborn, the charge against Baker being yesterday for the first time given to a jury. Mr. Bell, Assistant United States District Attorney, opened the case for the prosecution.

Richard Barry, President of the Tradesmen's Bank, was the first witness examined:—Knew the defendant for twenty-five years; he was paying teller of the bank up to August 14, 1867, when the charge against the defendant was first instituted; the prosecution put in evidence certified copy of the act of incorporation of the Tradesmen's National Bank, filed March 7, 1865; defendant was custodian of the cash of the bank and agent for paying out all cash.

Look at these two papers and state what they are. A. These are two account slips, in duplicate of day charges, between the Tradesmen's National Bank and the First National Bank of Brooklyn; we keep a credit and debit account with that bank. (Papers marked A and B handed to the witness.) The footings of figures are in the handwriting of the defendant. (Paper handed to witness.) The writing here is in the handwriting of defendant and was defendant's account with the second teller. (Papers marked E and F handed to witness.) These papers purport to be duplicates of checks received on account of the First National Bank of Brooklyn; the aggregates are in the handwriting of the defendant; on the 17th June, 1867, there was an examination into the accounts of the first teller; the minutes of the cashier will show what was done; a committee of five directors examined the first teller's (defendant's) cash to see if his account corresponded with the books of the bank. The entry of August 14, 1867, is in the handwriting of the defendant; the amount set forth as the cash in the bank in his hands is $783,085 81; counted the cash in the bank's vaults on the 15th August and found it only $560,000; counted it with the cashier; the defendant was present when it was counted; had a conversation with defendant and asked him if there was any wrong in his cash and he made no reply; asked him if he was short $10,000; he made no reply; asked him if he was short $50,000 and he replied that he wished he was dead.

Anthony Halsey was cashier of Tradesmen's National Bank in July and August, 1867. (Slip of paper produced witness found in one of defendant's drawers in the bank.) On August 15 assisted Mr. Berry (previous witness) in counting defendant's cash; all the cash was brought into the room from the vaults by the porter and myself.

Witness then corroborated the testimony of the President of the bank, Mr. Berry, the previous witness, as to the discrepancy in the amount of cash as represented in defendant's cash book and the amount found in the vault of the bank.

The further hearing of the case is adjourned till Wednesday morning.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT—IN BANKRUPTCY.

Before Judge Blatchford.

In the Matter of Myron Rosenberg, a Bankrupt.—As the debt in this case is a probable debt, the Court ruled that the stay of proceedings in the case was proper and the motion to vacate the stay is denied.

COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER.

Important Charge From Judge Barnard—The Party Press Arraigned—Stock Operators Denounced.

At the opening of the court Judge Barnard addressed the Grand Jury in the following terms—

GENTLEMEN OF THE GRAND JURY—I deem it not inappropriate at the present time to call your attention to three or four subjects that, in my judgment, the Grand Jury should look into. First, in regard to alleged frauds at elections; second, in regard to the alleged corruptions of the judiciary bench; third, as to the action of certain newspapers in New York in perpetrating daily and hourly libels. I had intended, gentlemen, at the commencement of this term, to have gone over many of these subjects more fully than I can now; but I am led to-day not to delay it any longer in consequence of the annoyance I am subjected to by newspapers and letter writers, not borne out, of all sorts of villifications and abuses for offences of which I certainly know nothing, and see if the writers of some of these articles cannot be made to come before you and substantiate some among the many of the different allegations that they have made against the Judge that now addresses you. In to-day's Tribune and to-day's Times, along with articles in the Jersey papers and elsewhere, are charges of the most atrocious character made against corruptions in interfering with the duties of electors and charging the Judge with being in a combination in Wall street. Now, it is unnecessary for me to say to you that he never bought or sold or owned a share of stock in his life, and as for the large fortune of $6,000,000 which one of the papers charges him with being possessed of, he has not now, nor did he ever have, belonging to him, separate from his wife, a single dollar's worth of property, and is to-day dependent upon his salary as a Judge and the charity of his wife, and why these particular and atrocious charges at this particular time should be made with such boldness and audacity is a matter I hope you, as Grand Jurors, whose duty it is, will look into, so that if you find them to be substantial, or even a suspicion that they are true, that you will give the Judge a chance to resign. For infamy means one thing, and it ought to be ferreted out, and if a man or a newspaper editor will sit down deliberately and make a charge without any proof, let us see whether the rigor and terror of the law will not stop this thing in future. For eleven years this Judge has submitted to it without any notice, and now, having arrived at a period of life when his usefulness is impaired by such charges, he deems it his duty and yours, gentlemen, to look into the matter whenever you have leisure, and say whether a combination of thieves, scoundrels and rascals, who have infested Wall street and broad street for years and now quarreling among themselves, shall be permitted to turn around and endeavor to hide their own tracks by abuse and villification of the Judge.

The Grand Jury then retired.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS—SPECIAL TERM.

The Stuyvesant Divorce Case.

Before Judge Daly.

Theodore Stuyvesant vs. Catherine Y. Stuyvesant.—In this case, the report of the referee having been filed, finding a verdict in favor of the defendant, a motion was made by plaintiff's counsel to set aside the report, upon the ground that such report had not been filed within the time required by law.

Counsel for the defendant also moved to confirm the report of the referee and enter judgment for the defendant upon all the issues.

The two motions were argued together, and the Court denied the motion of the plaintiff, and appointed Wednesday, the 2d of December, to hear the argument upon the evidence, and ordered the referee to file such evidence in due time for such hearing.

Edwin James and G. Shea for the defendant; Messrs. Tomlinson and Phillips for the plaintiff.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Before Judge Russel.

Pickpockets Sent to Sing Sing Prison—Pleas of Forgery.

This court received an additional batch of indictments from the Oyer and Terminer Grand Jury, upon which the accused parties were arraigned, and, pleading not guilty, they were directed to be ready for trial on Tuesday.

Manuel Wertha and Ignacio Balfe were tried and convicted of larceny from the person, they having picked the pocket of Jacob M. Shorter, a resident of New Jersey, stealing a gold watch valued at $200. The complainant was in the Tribune office on election night, waiting to hear the returns, at which time he was robbed. Detectives "spotted" the prisoners and arrested them with the watch in the possession of one of them. As they were well known professional pickpockets the Judge sentenced them to the State Prison for five years.

John Fleming pleaded guilty to an attempt at grand larceny, the charge being that on the 26th of October he stole a roll of carpet, valued at $150, the property of Melville, Hemphill & Hamlin.

Reverdy G. Alexander, who was indicted for attempting to pass a forged check on the Bank of New York for $300, in payment of a bill due the proprietors of the Fifth Avenue Hotel, pleaded guilty to forgery in the fourth degree.

William Van Wagner, against whom were other complaints, pleaded guilty to forgery in the fourth degree. The indictment charged that on the 18th of September he falsely represented to Hugh Mitchell that he was Mr. Wm. H. Lee, and obtained thirty dollars, giving as collateral security a forged check for $550 on the Commercial National Bank.

These prisoners were remanded for sentence.
