COMMERCIAL.

HONOLULU, JANUARY 11, 1883.

Since our writing business generally has brightened up. In lines of trade and the prospects seem fair for a continuance of the general prosperity. The usual settlement of quarterly accounts seem to yet occupy a portion of the time of our merchants and will probably continue during the month.

In commercial circles the arrivals of the Wm. G. Irwin and C. A. Falkenberg from San Francisco, and P. M. S. S. Gaelic from New York from the Islands and the long-view again of the letter for the Coast, carrying a mail, also the Lady Lampson, has caused a little extra amongst shippers and to some quite unusually great extent. The expected arrival of the Oceanic steamer from Sydney with long importers in the port this month and dispatch of the large cargoes of American produce for usually consigned to her. The cargoes of the steamers P. M. S. S. Co. from San Francisco are due to arrive in Honolulu on or for the 20th inst., and on the arrival, bring the usual influx of passengers and home mails will add to the business activity generally.

Friday, Wednesday, Messrs. C. Brewer & Co. held a large and well assorted stock of goods, the particulars of which are definitely described in a catalogue furnished by them. The sale will be held at the store in Queen street, Mr. Allen officiating.

Business changes during the week consist of the withdrawal of Mr. A. W. Richardson from the firm of Bingham, Spencer & Co., Messrs. Bingham & Spencer remaining the sole proprietors.

The next issue of the Coast will probably be the Calcutta, followed immediately by the Kaiulani. From the Coast, the H. M. Alex and Ella will arrive probably after the steamer Suez and Australia.

February 12th, 1883.

The powers that be, have made known, through the medium of the Premier's newspaper, that a grand treat is in store for the people of Hawaii nei and the two ship loads of visitors now on their way to these beautiful shores. Two trains between Honolulu and Waikiki, twenty miles, will run once the meeting of the eventful 12th of February 1883 will be inducted to by the mighty tract of many nations, the fearful ringing of all the bells in Honolulu and the shrill notes from ninety a steam whistle.

When the God of Day peeps down the eastern horizon, the citizens will for a time be allowed to rest. The Kanakas may keep their sweet repose, and the engineers taking the hint will straightway back up their fires and hurry home to breakfast. After the great city of Honolulu has become somewhat cleared of smoke and dirt, there is a procession of the Royal Guards at a convenient point within the city limits, headed by a band, which will escort the ship loads of visitors through the principal streets of the city and land the Royal guest where a lunch is prepared expressly for the occasion will at once be taken possession of. The two ship loads will have ample time to remove the dust and from their shoes and store clothes.

At sixteen minutes (not yet fixed upon) His Majesty will appear arrayed in purple and fine linen. On the front steps of the Palace, supported on his right by His Excellency the Premier in full court regalia, accompanying Mephistopheles, and on His Excellency the Attorney General, carefully done up in red flannel will act as left hand supporter, while their Excellencies the Ministers of Interior and Finance, in bringing up the rear, will make themselves useful by carrying the regalia and supporting His Majesty's lengthy skirts.

His Majesty's Lord High Chamberlain in a spirited signal will conduct the King and party down the Palace Grounds to the Royal Hawaiian Band, and the entire Hawaiian army spread out in two lines extending from the Palace to the front gate a distance of some three hundred feet. At the word of command, the entire Hawaiian army will be expected to do its level best. It is feared that seeing disbanding their muskets, a feat they have not yet succeeded in accomplishing. The band will strike up to the time of See the conquering hero comes, and the Royal party will move in the grand cortege. His Majesty and supporters led on by the Lord High Chamberlain will march triumphantly through the lines, through the house, through the smoke, through dust, through fire, through fire, through hell (by this time they find up in front of a stand prepared expressly for the occasion and at great expense. Here, the subscriber extended not invited party will partake of refreshments, after which the village of His Honor the Chief Justice and Lord High Chamberlain of the Hawaiian Kingdom, supported on either side by his associate Honors, each and all wearing their many honors honestly won on other occasions. Many honors, I will then and there administer the proper oath, to which His Majesty, placing the unoccupied hand of his right on a new and revised copy of Fisk and Carter-Gibb, will bow his head and kiss the book (translated English to beneficiaries do his best, his very best, even though it takes his bottom dollar, to be well never mind the rest for it won't amount to anything). The law of Hawaii being of no further use will be promptly suspended without the Palace walls.

His Imperial Majesty King Kalakaua Ruler of all the Southern Islands will then remove his hat, duly replacing the same with a $10.00 crown. The act will be the signal for another grand racket from Punchbowl and Englesides Batteries of four and three guns respectively.

By this time, the people and visitors generally will have realized that stage of exhilaration and become so will it will delight them no one will participate each whether school keeps or not. One thing is quite certain, the sun will not set on after the unveiling of the statue of the Hero King Kamehameha I, whose heroic bulwarks are expected to which is a great smile when he shall himself the centre of its admiring and (in his opinion) overjoyed crowd. Then may possibly terminate the memorable 12th.

A New Asylum for the Insane.

A new building for the reception of the insane, erected on the grounds belonging to the Insane Hospital, has been completed and has passed successfully the inspection of the Minister of Interior, Minister of Finance and President of the Board of Health, all of whom in company with Mr. Jas. C. Hopkins, the contractor, Mr. F. F. Hopkins, and Mr. T. F. Hopkins and a few press representatives visited the newly completed building on the 11th inst., by invitation of the Resident Physician, Dr. M. Hagen. The building is one story in height, built of wood, and is one of the jobs given out by the Minister of the Interior generally and for which no tenders were asked. The building is seemingly well adapted and is capable of accommodating twenty-five patients, if other contractors had had an opportunity to compete for the work there would have been more satisfactory. The hallways and rooms are lofty and well lighted and ventilated in a manner, in a satisfactory manner. This statement is not intending to mean that if other contractors had had the work it would not have been done as well. The front of the building, back of the veranda, is occupied by two large rooms suitable for dispensary and reception or waiting rooms. Several master carpenters have found considerable room for complaint in regard to the manner in which the contract was given out. The single cells are on the rear end of the building and are about 8 by 12 feet in size, and are well ventilated. Had the opportunity been given to other contractors to offer tenders for the contract the cells would have been better able to state whether or not the sum paid was a fair one or extortionate, viz $2,200. The building is intended for the reception of the Insane Patients with a view to their permanent treatment in preference to sending them to the Leper Settlement, but a few or both being visible in any of the rooms, and all of the rooms presenting a light airy and not disagreeable appearance. The only tangible objection to the building is the manner in which the contract was given to Mr. Jas. C. Hopkins, the builder, by the Minister of the Interior.

Merchant Street is to be widened, and all claims for damages for land proposed to be taken in the widening should be filed with Judge Hickeroe before the Coronation day.

The regular monthly meeting of the Hawaii Children's Society will be held on Saturday evening, January 20, 1883, at the residence of Mrs. C. E. Castle, Beretania Street.

A change has been made in the sailing time of the steamer Zealandia, and she is now advertised to sail on Tuesday's and Friday's alternately, instead of on Monday's and Thursday's.

We would call attention of our readers to the account of music Sol-Fa system on our fourth page. The paper was prepared and read before the teachers' convention by Miss Shively.

The brigantine W. G. Irwin, Capt. Turner, arrived in port from San Francisco on the 10th inst with dates to the 20th Dec. The J. A. Falkenberg also arrived from the same port on the afternoon of the 10th.

Prof. C. H. Hitchcock, a well known geologist and scientist is expected in this city from San Francisco at an early date. He will if he arrives, deliver a series of lectures under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

T. A. Goodwin the young man charged with the death of an old native, run down by him while riding horseback on New Year's day, will be brought up for trial for manslaughter during the present term of the Supreme Court.

On Monday the Steamships of the steamer City of New York was detected in the act of smuggling some line of opium on shore. She was promptly arrested, pleaded guilty and to-day will probably be sentenced by Judge Hickeroe.

The providence matter has given a great deal of trouble, so it is whispered: there were grave fears that certain succession grandeur would have to be relegated to a seat among the vulgar herd, but it has all been settled by allowing the grandees to "nominate" the lady whom they desire to take.

The P. M. S. S. City of New York arrived from the Colonies on the 12th inst. and sailed again for San Francisco at 7.45 a. m. same date. Among the passengers returning were Mr. A. D. Bell, of the S. F. Bulletin, Mr. J. S. Lawler and wife, H. J. Hyman, A. Hamburg and a number of local travelers.

Mr. Wetmore is engaged in ornamenting the note which is to be read at the approaching coronation ceremony. The stock is the horn of a Narwhal, a very fine specimen. It is to be surmounted by the regulation crown, with which every one is so familiar, depending from it will be a small plate of gold, representing in enamel the Hawaiian Coat of Arms.

The P. C. Advertiser in its issue of the 12th inst criticises the S. F. News Letter for an engraving on the cover, regarding it as a "blemish." The general public would consider the blasphemy displayed in the first story under miscellaneous items in the P. C. Advertiser of the 12th as a blemish, were and the charlatan of that paper already well spotted.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Geo. W. Parker, formerly Custom House Storekeeper at this port. Mr. Parker had relinquished his position in the Custom House owing to ill-health, and had made arrangements for a trip to the Coast in the Coldwater in the vain hope of recuperating. Mr. Parker leaves many warm friends in this city who will sincerely mourn his sad fate.

How to arrange the climax of the coronation ceremony is what is exercising the minds of our Editors just now. Whether the Chamberlain or the Premier, guarded by the Hawaiian Army, shall march up with the crown and deliver it to the Chief Justice, who will hand it to the King, who will put it on his head, or whether some other method of procedure is to be employed is a grave question.

A note in the columns of this journal has had the effect to cause a rearrangement in that portion of the Institutes relating to the management of the house rates and regalia, connected with the coronation celebrations, regular committees being now appointed. The perpetuators of the previous effort will be seriously criticised and will add greatly to making these events a fitting afterpiece to the principal comedy.

The pigeon shoot expected to have taken place at Kalihi last Saturday afternoon was unavoidably postponed by the failure of our local sportsmen to take an interest in the matter. Why cannot a match be arranged? Several good shots have been told to take a trip, expenses paid, but without the shot gun but the advent of a good machine, seems to have silenced the starters and scattered the good shots.

The man who was injured in that drunken row on the P. M. S. S. wharf 10 days ago, has not improved as much as was expected. It was found that a large number of splinters were driven into the wound, these have been removed, and it is hoped that the patient will recover, but he is in a critical condition. We hear that he does not know who struck him; this gives a nice little knot for our police authorities to unravel.

A portrait of Mr. J. Campbell's deceased child has recently been painted by Mr. Strong. The work was one of considerable difficulty, as that child died but only a photograph of the child after death, to work from. Taking this and such descriptions as could be furnished, Mr. Strong has produced a picture which has given entire satisfaction to the parents. This may be reported to a great triumph for the artist.

"First come first served," entered the delivery of three deep loads of freight on the Likelike wharf for the Lehua before 7 a. m. on the 9th inst., and at 10 o'clock the amount of freight placed on board of the Lehua would have required three times the capacity of the Lehua. The withdrawal of the Likelike for repairs is not only discommoding to shippers, but is also a pecuniary loss to the firm of Walker & Co.

One of the most useful, although may be not the most beautiful of calendars for 1883, has been received by the Messrs Mechanics & Co of this city, agents for the "a. b. c." brand of Bourbon whiskey. The calendar is regards days and dates is perpetual, the frames of the days and the numerals being printed on revolving disks. The almanac accompanying shows the phases of the moon during each month of 1883.

Two gentlemen who have been engaged in the sugar industry in Fiji are at present in our midst; we understand that they intend to settle here and engage in the same occupation. We may further add that these distinguished strangers arrived by the Julia, that they are of somewhat dark complexion, that their expressions of sugar have been connected with a hot and a shovel. In fact they are only a sort of hybrid or Molasses planters.

The usual capture of opium on inward bound vessels from foreign ports was made by Surveyor Morrill on the Jose A. Falkenberg on the 11th inst. Forty half-pound tins and three five-pound tins, a total of thirty-five pounds of the pernicious drug, was found stowed under one of the fore parts of the vessel. Two Chinese, Ah Tung and Ah Fook, have been arrested in connection with the affair and were brought before the police magistrate on the 12th inst. and remanded for trial.

The supplementary invitations authorizing the attendance of the diplomatic and consular corps to participate the ladies they wish to take to the coronation ceremony, are, we have informed, worded in such an unintelligible manner, that neither the good estate diplomatist nor the most verdant of our country cousins seem to understand them. This is not surprising, for the invitations are so short and yet so full of the more dangerous. There is no limit to Gotham's Four Hundred, and we know of no Ward McAllister to define the "Elite." It is possible for a man to become so hardened in sin, or in love of sin, so dead to better things, holy desires, that he never will repent. We see men slowly but surely corroding and hardening, but we have yet to see the man who has made a better life? Then that fact is evidence that you have not come into that awful state. There is still a slender cord within binds you to God and the Law. Once against the Devil's lie of "I'm here" I put God's truth of "Whosoever will may come." But he wave how you break that cord which still binds you to God.

You will fall, and become a hypocrite like the world; in another way in which the devil tries to destroy awakened souls. The church of God is the purest body of men on earth. Some on they will say, I know that there is a power in religion, and that men are made better by it. "He will keep you. Christ says that no power shall be able to pluck you out of His hands.

As a last resort the devil says: "God is so merciful. There can't be anything so very dreadful in sinning for a little while, and then to repent to God." God is merciful—to those who temper His mercy and live in accord with His laws. To those who threat themselves against His laws He is inexorable. If this is not true then His dealings in nature are inexplicable. Violate one of His laws, gravitation for example, will that merciful God stay its wheels that it shall not break you? Beware of making God as you wish Him to be, and not as He is. "But God's mercy is not limited to this life; when then you say that we will have another chance in the future." I would not dogmatize where good and learned men differ. But in this all agree: There is an urgency throbbing through the Gospel. The great burden of Christ's teaching is, "Repent! repent! Now! now! is the accepted time." It is wise to heed the warnings of Him who came out of the future and knew its secrets. In a convention once an opportunity was given for any one to speak. A Universalist took the floor, and made a strong speech for a future probation, trying to prove that Hell was only a place of purifying fire, and that when the dross of sin was burned away all the inmates would pass out of its horrible depths, through the gates of pearl into heaven. Then he challenged any one to controvert his argument. There was a long pause. Then old Dr. Nott arose and said: "Our brother has told us of a way to heaven which leads through Hell. In my Bible I read of another way: it lies through repentance and faith in Christ. If any one is resolved that he will go to Heaven by way of Hell, or not at all, I am sorry for him. I prefer the other way.

"There are turning—points in life; points where the souls' decision decides its course for all the future. God only knows whether these first days of this new year may not be such a point to many of you. You have not lived right. You long for a better life. Do not listen to the lies of the tempter. It is his desperate effort to retain his hold upon you. Break away from him. Make your way to Christ, and it will be with you, as was with the one in the text: Your soul shall be healed, and you, and all who see the miracle, "will be astonished at the majesty of God."

The Coronation Craze on Maui.

EDITOR GAZETTE:—We are being riled up by an embassy from the palace party to the necessity of sending a committee of fifteen to the Coronation.

The discomfitted representatives from this and neighboring districts have met to bemoan their fate in not being called to parliament and partaking of the spoils in the shape of a $500 fee.

The natives, judging from their remarks, seem to be thoroughly imbued with the absurdity of the whole proceedings in regard to the Coronation. If a meeting of the Legislature had been called it would have been beneficial to the country as the ministry would have to go out. It would have been a high prize to pay for the boon but we generally have to pay high for a good article.

One of the Ministry is very anxious to have the Legislature called for the very purpose of breaking the rabid.

However he has been the only good man in the party and we have long known he was anxious to get clear of the rest.

More money for Coronation expenses is sadly wanted, so says the emissary, in fact, the account given by him of the changes in opinions in different members of the Cabinet in regard to the calling of the parliament is truly ridiculous.
