Supreme Court of the Hawaiian Islands April Term, 1883.

PAHAU vs. D. MAIO.

Before Mr. Justice Austin.

The plaintiff in ejectment established presumptive title as heir to the Palmyra Kua.

The defence was claimed title by adverse possession.

The plaintiff attacks first the character of the possession itself. He says it was not continuous or complete and is for that reason insufficient.

To determine this point the amount and nature of the land are to be considered. It consists of two and 15-100ths acres mainly taro patches. There is a small part of it not adapted or used for kalo culture. The land was not fenced till lately. At one time a grass house was built on the land which was occupied by defendant and his father, and his aunt, under whom he claims. This house was pulled down, but the proof establishes I think a substantial continuous cultivation of the taro land and occasional cultivation of the other land for potatoes.

The whole land is small. Only scraps of it, from time to time, were left idle. I think it may be found that the land was usually cultivated or improved. This is sufficient as to the kind of possession.

See Washburn on Real Property, Vol. 3, 148-9-50-150.

The defendant and those under whom he claims paid taxes on the land for over twenty years. The character of their acts and possession may be taken as notice to the owners of a claim of title. Express notice is not necessary to be shown.

See authorities last cited.

The defendant's aunt Kahawaiki under whom defendant claims, as her remote heir, through his father Kalama, died in 1871, whatever rights she then had descended to her brother Kalama. Her husband Hoohoko took no interest from her under the then statute. Kalama resumed the possession and transmitted it to the defendant privily is shown by him with Kalama and with Kahawaiki.

I therefore think that title by adverse possession is made out by the defendant unless other facts shown to which I shall now refer establish that the possession was not adverse but in subserviency to the title of the plaintiff.

Kea, the patentee died in 1849 in possession of the land in dispute and having been in possession since 1835. It was declared to have been his land on February 26, 1848.

Kahawaiki widow of Kea held possession after his death till some time in 1854. We have held that she had no right to the possession as widow. What was her intention in so holding possession may be inferred by her subsequent acts.

In 1854 she and her brother Kalama made application before the Land Commission and the land was awarded to Kea by name and his heirs. Subsequently, in 1856, Kahawaiki obtained for the name of Kea a Royal Patent running to Kea and his heirs. This she received and kept. If remarked to her possession till her death and was transmitted to her heir Kalama who held it till 1877 when defendant claims it was taken away by some party in plaintiff's interest.

The plaintiff's counsel earnestly claims that these facts show a subserviency to the title of the heirs, and dispute all claims to hold the land adversely.

Upon the first trial of this case I was inclined to so decide. But further examination and reflection have led me to modify my opinion.

In order to establish any valid title to the land the statute of 1845 provides that it was necessary that an award should be made: that otherwise the land would escheat.

By applying for the award to Kea in 1848 Kahawaiki did not intend to acknowledge the title of the plaintiff or his ancestors. This application was not made for their benefit, but for her own and to prevent the escheat of the land. It was in effect a claim that she was entitled to the property as heir, and that there were no other heirs. The heirs did not appear before the land commission, nor was any proof made before it of their existence.

Had the matter rested with them, the Statute Sec. 5, p. 100, Laws of 1845, declares that all their claim to this land would have been forever barred. The first time the heirs of Kea under whom the plaintiff claims made known their claim was in 1872, twenty-four years after the death of Kea. Kahawaiki it would seem, though erroneously, relied on the Royal Patent as a muniment of her title. Its possession by her under the circumstances, cannot be taken as an admission of the plaintiff's title. But for the Statute of 1845 the possession taken by Kahawaiki in 1848 would have ripened into a title before her death in 1871. By procuring the Award and the Royal Patent as stated she did not take away all chance of her maintaining a title to the land. The Statute is peculiar to this country, and no similar question could arise in England or in the United States.

I hold that the defence of the Statute of Limitations is made out, and direct that judgment be entered in favor of the defendant with costs.

BENJ. H. AUSTIN,
Justice Supreme Court.

W. R. Castle for plaintiff. R. F. Bickerton for defendant.

Honolulu, May 1st, 1883.

Supreme Court of the Hawaiian Islands—April Term, 1883.

KALANITUA (K.) vs. LONOAKA (V.)

Before Austin, J. (Jury Waived).

By the articles of adoption of the defendant dated April 29th, 1858 he is not declared to be the heir of Kawelo the patentee of the land claimed, nor the father of the plaintiff and two others, a brother and a sister. The defendant is therefore not entitled to inherit as heir.

The question is more doubtful. See estate of Hannah Maughan deceased intestate, 3rd Hawaiian, 263, Wei See and Ching See vs. Yeong Chong, Afong et al. 3rd Haw'n. 480.

The defendant is admitted to be in possession of the whole premises described in the complaint.

The plaintiff is therefore entitled to recover an undivided third of the said premises.

BENJ. H. AUSTIN,
Justice Supreme Court.

John Russell for plaintiff. R. F. Bickerton for defendant.

Honolulu, April 18th, 1883.

Dancing a Fine Art.

A New York master expressed the following opinion in regard to the proprieties of round dances:

"What is your idea of the modern mode of support in round dancing?"

"My idea is that as it is seen at public balls and long Branch hops it is most indecent, ill-bred, immodest and unnecessary. A lady who dances well, gracefully sustains her independence of motion and a perfect balance. The moment she becomes a clinging vine and allows her head to rest on a man's shoulder and his arm to embrace instead of support her, she shows not only a shocking lack of refinement, but of good dancing, and impedes her partner's movement as well as her own.

"What do you consider the proper support?"

"The gentleman should take the lady's right hand in his left, and she place her left hand upon his shoulder, the fingers appearing in front. The gentleman should rest his right hand gently on the lady's back, near the waist, and both should stand on parallel lines, looking over the other's right shoulder, the lady turning her head slightly to the left. Both should bend the upper part of the person slightly, so that the shoulders should not be more than four inches apart, and the hands that are clasped should remain only a few inches from the person, not allowing the wild sticking out of arms recently adopted. In this grouping there is no more contact of persons than a lady taking a gentleman's arm walking. But to put the whole matter in a nutshell, the vulgar and vicious waltz vulgarly and viciously; the innocent and refined in a refined and innocent manner."

"Among what nations do you find the best dancers?"

"Forty years observation and experience has led me to conclude that American women are the best dancers in the world. The Germans are very correct and easy, but not graceful; the English put too much struggle into it; the French are inclined to angularity; but the American woman is by nature supple and graceful, learns with facility and has the vitality that takes the place of strength.

Our young ay a Boy—Moral courage requires more fiber than physical courage. It is more difficult, sometimes, to do right than to march up to the cannon's mouth. The boy who could keep from swearing, and was not afraid to stand by his colors in the presence of a room full of profane men, was a little hero.

A lad in Boston, rather small for his years, worked in an office as errand boy for gentlemen who did business there. One day the gentlemen were chaffing him a little about being so small, and said to him:

"You never will amount to much; you can never do much business, you are too small." The little fellow looked at them:

"Well," said he, "as small as I am, I can do something which none of four men can do."

"Ah, what is that?" said they.

"I don't know as I ought to tell you," he replied. But they were anxious to know, and urged him to tell what he could do that none of them were able to do.

"I can keep from swearing," said the little fellow. There were some blushes on four manly faces, and there seemed to be very little anxiety for further information on this point.

IDLE GOSSIP.

THERE IS NO IDLE GOSSIP HOWEVER, that the undersigned will take Portraits in any style or size in order to the best style of the Photographic Art, and on the most Reasonable Terms—but it is only purely which says "he will not try to please." Those who always was and will be willing to please everyone who can be pleased, and never troubled anyone out of its way, and never will trust anyone otherwise than in a proper manner. Do not forget to purchase, but come and see for yourself—there is always two sides to a story. (80 3m) E. L. CHASE.
