The Gazette's Washington Letter.

TREATY TALK.

EDITOR GAZETTE:—Besides the General Porter matter the only occasion of interest this winter is the rejection of the Mexican Reciprocity Treaty. As regards the Hawaiian Treaty, its friends are becoming more hopeful every day, although there will need to be constant work done up to the moment it is brought up for consideration. The admirably written letter from Honolulu, published some time in January, in the Republican under the heading of "An American King," was widely read and created a great deal of interest in Hawaiians. Captain Dutton lectures to-morrow at the National Museum on the Islands, and will have a large audience of the best class. Public sentiment seems very friendly and the political situation in Honolulu, is even talked of in drawing rooms, Chinese Spreckels coming in for a good share of indignation.

PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITIES.

The White House, contrary to all precedent, has only been thrown open to the world on two occasions thus far this season and then only for two hours, which has given great offense, particularly as the President is reported to have said in answer to newspaper criticisms on the subject, that he thought a President could be put to better use than that of hand shaking. However he has less cause for complaint than most Presidents as he is said to have mastered the science of this American form of salutation, which is to get the first grip and thereby disable the world in shaker. His chances for nomination look very small just now, while those of Senator Sherman who is backed by the railroads, the national banks and Wall street, are becoming better every day. It is stated by a prominent Ohio republican, that two millions three hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars can be raised from those sources to begin a Sherman campaign. The friends of General Logan are also feeling a great deal of confidence in his prospects. He will have the soldier vote and will carry the Northwest which he proposes to stump during the coming season, and at which business, stump speaking, he is at his best. Mrs. Logan, who is a beautiful woman, is a power and has unlimited confidence in her husband's "star." Mr. Blaine is hurrying to get out his book, which is to be published simultaneously in English, French and German, is expected to strengthen his cause very materially. His wife is unfortunately for him, a very impolitic woman, domineering and autocratic in action. During her brief reign at the White House under the Garfield administration, she made a good many innovations and tried to set up a little court, for which the "unwashed" have never forgiven her.

SOCIETY NOTES.

The season is at its height. The whirl and rush of society was never greater than it is this winter, and the dressing is as beautiful and costly that it would do credit to an enchanter's wand. To keep up with the current, one must go to breakfasts, luncheons and teas or dinners during the day and then attend two or three receptions in the evening, winding up with a ball or German in the small hours.

THE EVENT OF THE SEASON

One of the most talked of entertainments was the ball recently given at the British Embassy, where there were between four and five hundred guests present, the spacious hall, drawing room and ball room being so arranged that there was no congestion of a crowd. Along the entrance hall, and lining the sides of the stairs, were large growing palms and plants in full bloom. At the head of the grand staircase stands a large portrait of Queen Victoria in the robe worn at her coronation. Minister West was assisted in receiving by his daughter, Miss West, who wore a costume of white satin of dancing length, the low corsage and skirt garlanded with fresh sweet pea blossoms. The wife of the first Secretary of Legation, Mrs. Charlton, an American lady, wore cream white satin with overdress of duchesse lace, the low corsage being finished with lace and diamond butterflies. Some other toilets conspicuously beautiful were those of Mrs. Jerome Bonaparte, who wore white moire with draperies of point lace, diamonds, and hair dressed with white ostrich plumes; Senora Batres, wife of the Minister from Guatemala, who wore rose colored gros grain, the front en corsage draped with pink tulle, with a profusion of pink hyacinths; Mrs. Senator Logan, whose dress was a court train of mahogany colored velvet, over a petticoat of pink plush, covered with lace. Mrs. Stanley Matheson, who wore a ruby velvet train over ruby and old gold brocade, and numerous others, the whole room being ablaze with diamonds. The cotillion began at one o'clock and the ball closed at four with the contra dance of "Sir Roger de Coverly."

HONOLULU AT THE CHARITY BALL.

The Charity ball for the benefit of the children's hospital took place the same week and was attended by several hundred magnificently dressed women. The most beautiful toilet there being a Worth costume of red blue plush and satin covered with embroidery of seed pearls, and finished at the throat by a Lorne NY ruffle of pink ostrich tips. Miss Carter wore pink satin with oriental lace; Mrs. Mott Smith black brocade with whales.

OTHER EVENTS.

The President who has been much blamed for his social delinquency this winter, in accepting numerous invitations but giving none, recently gave a cabinet dinner which was the most elegant ever given at the White House. In the East room the mirrors and crystal chandeliers were wreathed in smilax and the mantels hidden by banks of foliage plants. The windows were concealed by pyramids of ferns and palms and before the large eastern window was a huge dais of blooming tropical plants. In the State dining room the scene was very brilliant; in the center of the table was placed an immense oblong mirror, representing a mimic lake, upon which were here and there light Indian canoes of birch bark, laden with orchids. Above this formed of azalias, carnations, roses, hyacinths and trumpet flowers, was an enchanting structure, fashioned after the hanging gardens of Babylon, surmounting the topmost tier of which, reared two large stems of the wonderful "Nun's" flower whose bloom has attracted so many visitors to the Executive greenhouses, during the past week. Another of these plants in full bloom stood on each of the side boards. At either end of the table were cart wheels of flowers. Between these and the large central ornaments were the gold brocade candle sticks always used on state occasions. At each lady's plate, on a curiously folded napkin embroidered, was a bouquet of exquisite Marechal Niel, Jacqueminot and Bon Silene or blush roses, tied with streaming satin roses of delicate hue. Mrs. Frelinghuysen's dress was of black velvet with point lace and diamonds, Mrs. Carlisle's was dark green brocaded velvet over a white satin petticoat embossed in tulips; Mrs. Lincoln wore white Lyons satin with black thread lace flowers and draperies. Mrs. Chandler's was black Lyons satin with petticoat of scarlet satin under jetted lace. Mrs. Sheridan wore rose pink ottoman, Mrs. Teller black silk with brocaded petticoat of brilliant colors, and Mrs. Brewster a golden brown, embossed with tulips of natural color.

How and Where to Raise Horses.

To bring colts to maturity best prepared for many years of usefulness, was a question considered by the Iowa Improved Stock Breeders' Association. Professor Knapp said that overfeeding these animals costs the people of the State not less than $15,000,000.

"Two quarts of oats and two ears of corn twice a day is liberal feeding, but the colt would eat twice as much and not be as strong. I have tried it over and over again; I challenge the world to that contest. Giving more grain gives rapid growth, but is like stuffing an animal for market. When you desire to produce horses for endurance or breeding they must be matured more slowly. Barrenness can be produced nine times out of ten by this stuffing process. It ruins the health of stock of all kinds."

Interesting facts to the same effect were presented by Mr. Wallace, who makes it a point to spend a month once a year in Pittsburg, a noted market for horses: "I have come among the liverymen and railroad contractors and teamsters—men who use the heaviest kind of horses and put them to the hardest kind of work—and asked them where they get their horses and which kinds they prefer. Said one gentleman: 'We used to get our horses from Kentucky; but now those Kentuckians have got into the habit of pushing their horses too fast; after the manner of pushing beef cattle. We want a horse that has grown on hilly ground somewhat rocky, with a limestone soil. We want him kept until he is three years old with a good fair diet, plenty of exercise and not kept closely in the barn. Otherwise we are obliged to keep them a year before they are able to stand our work.'"—N. Y. Tribune.

Man Against Horse.

(From the Auburn Dispatch.)

Mervine Thompson, the champion Canadian wrestler, gave an out-door exhibition of his great strength, near the Central Hudson freight house last evening, between the hours of 5 and 6 o'clock. The Sunday Dispatch stated that he would pull against any team of horses in the city or county, and would give $100 to the owner of the team, if the horses succeeded in pulling him from a ladder. Yesterday the Canadian athlete made arrangements with Mr. B. F. Webster. The latter is engaged in the truck and express business, and is the owner of several large and strong teams. Five o'clock was the hour appointed, and the yard in front of the above-mentioned freight-house was the place agreed upon by the interested parties. When this hour arrived quite a large crowd were in attendance, many of them expecting to see the man pulled in twain when he attempted to resist the strength of two of Mr. Webster's large teams.

Within a few minutes Thompson made his appearance, and quickly removed his coat, vest and hat. A harness greatly resembling a pair of shoulder harness, only a great deal stronger, was thrown over his shoulders and around his waist, with two large straps left dangling from the small of his back. Then lying face downward upon the ladder, fixed in horizontal position, securely lashed to a telegraph pole, he grasped a round of the ladder with both hands and placed his feet firmly against another flat round at the foot of the ladder. A team was hitched to these straps, and then commenced the tug of war. The large pair of horses started, strained and tugged. But in vain The man could not be pulled from his position. After making three or four futile attempts, the team was removed and a heavy pair of screws attached to the man. They, like their predecessors, could make no impression, and the man of muscle did not exhibit the faintest sign of weakening. Finally one of the employes of Mr. Webster took the animals by their heads, and they again exerted their well-trained muscle. This time the large eyener to which the whiffletrees were attached snapped in twain like a pipe-stem. This settled the contest. The crowd in attendance were well satisfied that the boast of the stranger had been made good, and cheered him heartily.—N. Y. Tribune.
