FUGITIVE PAROLED ON HIS WAR RECORD

Accused Bookkeeper Won Croix de Guerre Fighting as a Marine.

BOSTON, Dec. 26.—How Arthur B. Abbott, long wanted as a fugitive from justice for the theft of $15,000 from the Federal Trust Company of this city, enlisted in the marines and as Sergeant William H. Haskell was cited for brilliant war service, was disclosed to-day when it was announced that he had been set free on probation by the District Attorney, and that he had received the Croix de Guerre officially under his right name.

Abbott, who was employed as a bank bookkeeper at $25 a week, disappeared in the fall of 1917 after the bank loss became known and it was learned that he had been living like a man of wealth and leisure away from his family. He eluded a nationwide search for him and enlisted in the Marine Corps at New Orleans as Haskell and went overseas with the Sixth Regiment. Abbott was one of the forty-four men left of the famous 1,300 marines who went through the Argonne. He was cited for bravery after capturing a machine gun and nine prisoners near Viereyn on July 19, 1918.

After receiving an honorable discharge last January Abbott immediately reënlisted under the name of Haskell. He was detailed aboard the U. S. S. Delphin in July and ordered to Portsmouth, N. H., where he was recognized and arrested. District Attorney Pelletier of Boston, on learning of his service record, ordered his release on probation. He was rearrested by the Navy Department, charged with enlisting under a false name, but his commanding officer, Capt. John Grady of the gunboat Dolphin, effected his release and a few days later decorated him as Arthur Abbott with the Croix de Guerre before the ship's crew and marine detail drawn up at attention. The citation accompanying the decoration was signed by Gen. Pétain, and was presented to Abbott by his commanding officer in the absence of an official representative of the French Government.

RAY STANNARD BAKER

America's Fearless Reporter Is Covering the Critical Industrial Situation for the New York Evening Post

Ray Stannard Baker, noted magazine writer, whose "Adventures in Contentment," written under the name "David Grayson," made him loved by every reader, has come back to the newspaper field and will write for The Evening Post on the menacing industrial situation that confronts the country.

New Yorkers have walked to work because of the subway strike. They have carried their own milk because of the milk drivers' strike. They have worn collars past the stage of respectability because of the laundry strike. They have traveled in cold cars because of the coal strike. They have read abominably printed magazines, or none at all, because of the printers' strike. Their food supply has been threatened by the longshoremen's strike. Should the railroad men go out the very existence of New York would be in peril.

People all over the country have suffered in similar fashion.

Surely the public has put up with many inconveniences, while employers and employees have been having their disputes. Is it not time to get down to basic facts and seek real remedies? But to get a true picture of the situation is the first necessary step.

What the Public Wants to Know

What are really the conditions in the steel industry, the coal industry?

Who are the leaders on both sides in the succession of national labor troubles?

What do they stand for?

What is their strategy?

What are the conditions and ideas that have given birth to the present unrest?

Where lies justice?

What is the solution?

Twenty-Six Years' Experience Behind Baker's Articles

Ray Stannard Baker's experience fits him, in a very unusual way, to discuss these questions. Back in 1894 he described the great Pullman and American Railway Union strike at Chicago. Later he handled the Colorado metal mine strikes and the complicated political-industrial situation at San Francisco. He went through the great anthracite coal strike in 1900 that Roosevelt broke up by his firm stand, and during the year before the American Peace Delegation took up its work in Paris he prepared reports for President Wilson and Colonel House on the Labor and Liberal movements in France, England and Italy. This background, together with Mr. Baker's known fearlessness and accuracy, gives promise that his articles will have great influence in guiding the nation through its dangerous crisis.

For two weeks now Mr. Baker has been at Gary, Ind., finding out what was behind the steel strike, and whether it is off for good or merely postponed. The first of his articles, telling the truth simply and humanly, will appear in The Evening Post to-night.

Whether you are a capitalist, a worker, or just an ordinary consumer, we feel sure you will wish to follow Mr. Baker through this series.

RECRUITING CAMPAIGN
"For more and Better Christians in New York."

Aims and methods:
1. To stress the evangelizing function of the individual churches of the city, through the medium of their own ministers and members, in recruiting followers of Christ in every neighborhood of Greater New York.
2. To appeal for and aid the utterance in all pulpits of a magnetic and timely message on the claims of Christ as the Redeemer of souls and society.
3. So to organize the neighborhood forces of religious education and evangelism throughout Greater New York as to project the invitation and influence of the campaign into every avenue of public appeal and over every family threshold.
4. To pray and plan for large accessions to all churches at Easter, 1920.
