They should, however, never be taken during the first three months of pregnancy, though safe at any other time, as miscarriage would be the result.

DAILY LEADER.

Stanton to our Representatives Abroad

The following is an extract from the dispatch of Secretary Stanton to our diplomatic representatives abroad, announcing the murder of the President and the attempt on the life of Secretary Seward:

"The murderer of the President has been discovered and evidence obtained that these horrible crimes were committed in execution of a conspiracy deliberately planned and set on foot by rebels, under pretence of avenging the South and aiding the rebel cause; but it is expected that the immediate perpetrators will be caught. The feeling occasioned by these atrocious crimes is so great, sudden, and overwhelming, that I cannot at present do more than communicate them to you. At the earliest moment yesterday the President called a Cabinet meeting, at which General Grant was present. He was more cheerful and happy than I had ever seen him. He rejoiced at the near prospect of a firm and durable peace at home and abroad, which manifested in a marked degree the soundness and honesty of his disposition, and the tender and forgiving spirit that so eminently distinguished him. Public advice had been given that he and General Grant would be at the theatre, and the opportunity of adding the Lieutenant General to the number of victims to be murdered was no doubt seized for the fitting occasion of executing the plans which appear to have been in preparation for some weeks; but General Grant was compelled to be absent, and thus escaped the designs upon him.

"It is needless for me to say anything in regard to the influences which this atrocious murder of the President may exercise upon the affairs of the country. But I will only add that, though horrible and atrocious as are the plans that have been resolved on by the enemies of the country, they are not the like likely, in any degree, to impair the public spirit, or to postpone the complete, the final overthrow of the rebellion.

"In profound grief for the events which it has become my duty to communicate to you, I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

EDWIN M. STANTON.

The Rebel Mason on the Assassination.

[From the London Index.]

Time will develop the mystery as yet attending the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, late President of the United States, and the attempted assassination of Mr. Seward, his Secretary of State. I desire only to repel at once the calumnious assertion of Edwin M. Stanton, the Secretary of War, in his letter to Mr. Adams, printed in the London journals of this morning, that these acts were "planned and set on foot by rebels, under pretence of avenging the south and aiding the rebel cause," and of which he says there is "evidence obtained." Mr. Stanton's letter is dated on the 18th of April, and states that Mr. Lincoln was assassinated in the theatre at half-past ten the previous night, and died at half-past seven on the morning of the day that he wrote. I adduce this to show how unlikely it is in the hurried excitement and the necessary occupations attending such events, that any but the wildest theories would prevail in regard to the cause of the event, or the objects of the perpetrators. Mr. Stanton adopts that which he deemed would be most useful before the public of his country. Should the "evidence" to which he refers to support his calumny ever see the light, it will be scanned with the experience derived in regard to other evidence, unscrupulously fabricated in the same quarter, during the present war, for base political effect. It is the crudest conception, too, that the murder of Abraham Lincoln was planned and executed for the purpose of "aiding the rebel cause" but I can well understand that it may have material influence in aiding the cause of that overpowering party in the United States of which Mr. Stanton is the type, and Andrew Johnson, who succeeds as President, with Butler of the notorious prefix, are the exponents and leaders—a party in whose path the late President and his Secretary were acknowledged obstacles in their projected scheme of plunder and rapine to follow their dominion over the Southern States. For the rest, I learn from a well informed source in London that "Wilkes Booth," who is accused of committing the deed, is a son of the celebrated English actor of that name, and was of his father's profession, which he pursued principally in the Northern States, and was generally understood as inheriting those traits significant of his father's name, Junius Brutus Booth, by whom he was named John Wilkes, after the great English Radical—an origin and mental training little likely to engender the slightest sympathy with the great cause of the conservative south. As to the crime which has been committed, none will view it with more abhorrence than the people of the South, but they will know, as will equally all well-balanced minds, that it is the necessary off-spring of those scenes of bloodshed and murder, in every form of unbridled license, which have signalized the invasion of the South by Northern armies, unrebuked certainly, and therefore instigated, by their leaders, and those over them.

Pardon the length of this note. I desired only instantly to repel the atrocious calumnies in the letter of Mr. Stanton.

Very respectfully yours,
J. M. MASON,
No 24 Upper Seymour street, Portman square, London, April 27, 1865.

The Most Momentous Death of the Times.

[From the London Herald, April 27.]

The startling news which was yesterday received from America is such as to throw into the shade even the tremendous catastrophe of the fall of Richmond and the surrender of Lee's army. Mr. President Lincoln has been assassinated and is dead. Mr. Seward has been stabbed, and is reported in a hopeless state. Mr. Andrew Johnson is President of the United States. The blow is sudden, horrible and irretrievable. Never, since the death of Henry IV. by the hand of Ravaillac—never, perhaps, since the assassination of Cæsar, has a murder been committed more momentous in its bearing upon the times. In the very height and plenitude of his triumph—at the moment when all his hopes seemed fulfilled, and all his labors rewarded, when the capitulation of his most powerful enemy had placed within his grasp that prize of empire for which he had so long and so earnestly striven—Abraham Lincoln was smitten to the earth by a dastardly assassin, who shot him through the head from behind. The commander of armies that the Macedonian or Roman might have envied, the leader in the most gigantic struggle of the nineteenth century, the ruler, or likely soon to be the ruler, of the most populous and, in the opinion of many, the mightiest nation in the modern civilized world, the man who had risen from low estate to a power as vast as was ever wielded by a mortal, whose recent success has astonished and bewildered the universe, is now reduced to some poor six feet of common clay. All the texts and sermons upon the mutability of human affairs, and the instability of life, pale into insignificance before this tremendous commentary. Much as we have condemned the attitude of the American people during this civil war, and though we have from the first opposed the policy and censured the acts of the late President of the United States, we must sympathize with the nation which is widowed by this sudden bereavement. Now that he is dead, the good qualities of the unfortunate Lincoln seem to come into the foreground. We remember his honesty and his manliness, we do justice to his consistency, we give him all praise for the spirit of conciliation which he has shown, for his refusal to be borne along by the sanguinary conquests of his friends, we make some allowance for his frequent and untimely levity, we almost excuse his obstinacy in the prosecution of the war. Such, we are almost persuaded, will be the sentiments of every right-minded Englishman; and they will be shared in by the vast majority of the Confederate people. He is gone; the pilot is gone. His country is left to toss in the sea of a dismal anarchy, a revolution of which no man can presume to foretell the issue.

W. P. Powell, a colored man, has been appointed a Notary Public of New York city, by Governor Fenton. He is the first colored man who has occupied that position in that city.

Mr. Lincoln's Old Home.

The Chicago Tribune publishes a letter from Springfield, Ill, containing the following:

The old residence of Mr. Lincoln was the center of mournful interest throughout the entire day of the funeral. With the appearance of the house, which has become historic, all are familiar. Plain, unpretending and substantial, it is the type of Mr. Lincoln's character. The shrubbery in front of the house, principally rosebushes, many of them planted by Mr. Lincoln's own hand, are in full leaf, and a beautiful rose-vine clambers up one of the door posts, and trails over the cornice. Lilies are sprinkled here and there, and closely shaven trim grass plats run down to the neat picket-fence surmounting the wall. The columns of the piazza at the rear of the house are also twined with vines and creepers, and the apple trees between the house and the barn showered the ground with pink and white blossoms, and filled the air with fragrance. The house, which is now occupied by Lucien Tilton, was very heavily draped in mourning. The windows were curtained with black and white, the corner posts wreathed with evergreens, the cornice hidden by festoons of black and white looped up at intervals, and the space between the cornice of the door and the central window filled with the American flag gracefully trimmed. There is little of the furniture in the house which belonged to Mr. Lincoln. In the front parlor is a what-not and a small marble-top table, on which was lying a beautiful cross of white camelias. In the back parlor, which he was accustomed to use as his study, is his book-case. This was his favorite room, and here he toiled and wrote, unconsciously preparing himself for the great mission he was to fulfil.

The Rebel Ram Stonewall.

[From the New York Herald, May 15.]

The rebel ram Stonewall has at last made her appearance in American waters. She arrived at Nassau, in the Bahamas, on the 6th inst., from Teneriffe, whence she sailed on the 1st of April. One of our correspondents at Nassau visited her incognito, and furnishes a most interesting description of what he saw on board. She is a formidable vessel, strongly iron plated, with two stationery turrets, three heavy guns, and a solid steel pointed beak of twenty feet in length, for ramming, projecting from her bow. Altogether she is considered a very stanch and dangerous antagonist. Her entire crew, officers and men, numbers about seventy, and everything about her presented the appearance of the best man-of-war order, neatness and rigid discipline. The Stonewall's officers, many of whom were on shore, sporting their rebel uniforms in the streets of Nassau, acknowledged that they were too late in getting afloat to be of any service to the Jeff. Davis cause, and admitted that the war is ended. They said she was originally intended to break the Wilmington blockade, but that now, as she could be of no use to the rebels here, she would probably be taken back to Europe and sold. She was to leave Nassau on the evening of the 7th inst., having obtained a supply of coal. Our report said she was bound for Galveston; but others gave her a different destination. It was understood that our Consul at Nassau, immediately after the arrival of the Stonewall at that place, dispatched a fast vessel for Key West, Florida, with the intelligence.

Lee's Parole Troops in Macon.

[From the Macon Constitutionist, May 2.]

Every day brings to our city increasing numbers of soldiers from General Lee's army, returning to their homes. Most of them are much soiled and jaded, and some are sick. We cannot learn that any provision has been made to feed these men.—Surely they are entitled to subsistence until they can reach their homes, and if their own countrymen will not provide for them may we not hope that a magnanimous foe will do so out of the stores recently captured here? Brave men who have encountered one another upon the field of battle should respect each other when the conflict ceases.

MEDICAL SUCCESS
EXTRAORDINARY.
100 DOLLARS PREMIUM!
SEMINAL WEAKNESS,
Or Spermatorrhœa, Gleet, &c., and
IMPOTENCY CURED,
AFTER ALL OTHER TREATMENT FAILS
DR. A. GIBSON,
formerly of New York City, will pay one hundred dollars for the proof that he ever fails to cure the above-named disease. He will pay the same sum for the proof that any other Physician in the United States treats the same diseases with equal success.
After many years of laborious study and experience, Dr. Gibson is happy to inform his fellow-sufferers of the unfortunate, that he has perfected a system of treatment for
THE SPEEDY AND PERMANENT CURE
of the above, and also all contagious diseases of the Reproductive Organs, with all bad effects arising therefrom, including General
DEBILITY OR NERVOUS PROSTRATION.
He has succeeded in curing cases in this city, some of whom had expended hundreds of dollars with self-styled physicians, who profess to treat all private maladies with success, and without receiving the least particle of benefit.
Dr. Gibson does not assert that he is a member of some College of Physicians, or that he cures others so far the purpose of assuring the innocent, and who hold out great expectations never to be realized. He says that Dr. Gibson is the man, that he is able to give entire satisfaction to those who repose confidence in his ability and integrity, and that he has perfected an American system of treatment which challenges any Physician of London or Paris, or any patent medicine, to equal for the radical cure of seminal weakness, and all disease or derangements, the result of physical errors, arising from sexual or secret abuse.
Dr. Gibson also claims for his new treatment the following advantages over all others yet discovered; and first, the agents used are so no respect disagreeable; he uses no drugs of the dark ages, such as Mercury, nor any other deleterious drug; secondly, no restrictions in diet or business is required; thirdly, his treatment is positive and certain in all cases. He stands prepared to produce any public or private hospital in the United States and demonstrate the truth of these superiority of his new treatment over any other now known to the world, in point of expedition, permanency, efficacy, safety and convenience to the patient.
Dr. Gibson is permanently located in Cleveland, and has during the past five years performed many cures of cases which had for years resisted all other modes of treatment. Reference can be given to individuals of the first respectability in Cleveland, Boston, New York and other cities, to whom he is known in skill and integrity in all professional transactions. Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Scrofula, all Diseases of the Urinary Organs, and all Chronic Diseases treated with success.
Medicines sent to any part of the country on receipt of the dollars.
Dr. Gibson's New work on Physiology for sale at his office.
DR. GIBSON,
Physician or Electricity and Homoeopathy,
Office—19 Seneca street, a few doors from Superior, over the Post Office.

PRIVATE AFFAIRS,
IN WHICH
All Classes are Interested.
Farmers, Drovers, Merchants, Lumbermen, Mechanics, Miners, Bankers, the rich and the poor, should ask themselves if the slightest SUFFERING, or so called trifling disease, which is lingering in their systems if so, they should apply in person, if possible; if not possible in person, by letter, and receive by return mail a blank circular of questions, which will enable any one to know positively what they ailed.
To the intelligent reader it is not necessary to publish the names of the many complications and forms assumed by this terrible scourge, yet it may be advisable to mention as most prominent Spermatorrhœa, Syphilis Secondary, and Scrofula Tertiary, the latter involving the bones in its dreadful pollution.
Every one should know, also that many of the most obstinate and worst Cases of Venereal proceed from this cause, and will, if not properly handled, ultimately cut in loss of voice. Look to your true interest, and consult by letter or apply at
