[EDITORIAL.]

A LIEN law for mechanics and material men is a great want on our statute books. Last session a bill, drafted by Col. Thompson and modeled after a similar law in successful operation for thirty years in the District of Columbia, was introduced by Mr. Castle and passed to third reading, when a terrific onslaught was made upon it by Attorney General Dare and it was killed. Its defeat was a denial of a measure of right and justice to a large class of the people. For the want of such a law, as we are informed, one of our most industrious mechanics has, within the past two years, lost about two thousand dollars in work and material furnished to building contractors. No doubt there are many similar cases, and it is time that the tried and tested remedy for such injustice, which other countries maintain, should be adopted by this Kingdom. The industrial interests of this country, apart from the matter of agricultural labor, have arrived at a degree of importance where the rights of the workingmen should be practically recognized by the Legislature.

IT would be well for every nationality resident here in any considerable numbers if they had such an earnest champion of their interests as the Portuguese have in Mr. A. Marques. But when that gentleman advocates, nay urges, that every Portuguese adult male immigrant shall, on landing, have set apart a homestead plot to be occupied by him on the termination of his labor contract of four years, he is going entirely outside the bounds of reason. The country has not such inexhaustible areas fit for settlement as such a policy would imply. Neither would it be politic to have all the available lands reserved for the possession of any single nationality. There are many deserving people of varied origin now in the country, including native Hawaiians, who have some claims in the matter of land settlement. If the ultimate destiny of the country is to become a Portuguese colony, then we may as well have it now as later. Hoist the standard of His Majesty Dom Luiz, and save all this trouble of trying to form a cosmopolitan state on the basis of constitutional government!

WITH a hardening sugar market and the definite extension of the reciprocity treaty with the United States, a more hopeful feeling is expressed by business men when sounded regarding the prospects. It is admitted that money has been made out of sugar even in the depression and uncertainty of the past season. Should the market now lastingly improve, while the uncertainty of trade relations is past, a general revival of business ought to be expected as inevitable. Withal the country has now a pretty good assurance of reform in administration of public affairs being a settled fact, so that the whole nation will benefit more by the revival of trade, with its consequent enhancement of public revenues, than would be the case had maladministration continued its blighting sway. Although, however, all branches of trade and industry should quickly respond to an increase in the value and the production of our leading staple, sugar, there is a worthy class that has suffered more, perhaps, than any other from the depression, which at the same time is not taking the degree of comfort that might naturally be supposed in the prospect of general improvement. This class consists of respectable mechanics who bear their full share of the burdens pertaining both to citizenship and to civilized society. They have struggled bravely through a long period of dull times, but are nearer the wall, relatively as well as absolutely, than they were at the beginning of the depression. The main cause for the unsatisfactory position of the mechanic class is stated, doubtless truly, to be Chinese competition. It is unnecessary here to repeat the old story of the conditions under which Chinese artizans are enabled to undersell those who try to maintain themselves respectably according to a civilized standard. The circumstances of the evil are well enough known. It is very hard to devise a remedy that shall be effective and at the same time constitutional and not in contravention of international law. There is no use in appealing to the civilized community against patronizing the Chinese in preference to those of civilized associations and customs. The influence of the "almighty dollar" is too strong, and it is discouraging to think of the proportion of people who deceive themselves with the "cheap and nasty." Legislation is necessary in the case and should not be deferred any longer than can be helped. Difficulties as noted above should not be allowed to defeat the duty of self-protection on the part of the state. This country is trying to work out the problem of representative institutions. It is a well founded belief, recognized in the Constitution of the Kingdom, that the Mongolian race is not competent to participate in the privileges of popular government. To make our system of government successful, every valuable element of a free body politic should be sedulously conserved and encouraged to take root in the land. Contrariwise all elements that do not mingle with the mass owning practical citizenship should be shorn, so far as possible, of advantages enabling them to crowd out material required for building up the state. The restriction upon Chinese immigration just now devised by the Government, in requiring every immigrant of that race to present a permit costing $20 before landing, is all right in its way. But something is demanded to prevent the overwhelming of Caucasian and Hawaiian industry by Chinese competition now present. It is for our best statesmanship to consider, against the regular session of the Legislature, measures whereby the desired end may be promoted.
