Japan's Motives Purely Selfish, Says Diplomat

NEW YORK, N. Y., August 24.—(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)—The German ambassador, arriving from Rotterdam, made a statement today in which he says:

"Japan will undoubtedly take Kiaochau from the Germans. Her cheer weight of numbers assures that result. When the war is ended Japan will have the supremacy of the Pacific. Japan took advantage of the present situation for that sole purpose."

Zeppelins Proving To Be a Disappointment As Fighters

PARIS, August 24.—(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)—Germany's fifteen Zeppelin dirigibles are apparently inoffensive for war purposes. The forts at Liege disabled one with their gun-fire. A French aviator demolished another at Metz and Belgian aviators report that they saw two more in forests between Metz and Aix-la-Chapelle. Wind-squalls are believed to have wrecked these. A fifth was "winged" by hostile fire near Luneville.

LONDON, August 24.—Official announcement from the French embassy here confirms the destruction of the German military dirigible, Zeppelin No. 8, which was reported shattered by French shells about twenty miles southeast of Luneville.

United Fleets Blockade and Bombard Tsingtau

TSINGTAU, Kiochau, August 24.—(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)—With the warships of three hostile fleets bombarding the German naval base on the Chinese coast, the Germans have dynamited all lofty structures which might give the bombarding forces points at which to sight their guns. The railroad bridge across the boundary that marks the edge of German territory has been destroyed.

FLEETS BLOCKADE TSINGTAU.

PEKING, August 24.—(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)—The British, French and Russian fleets are now blockading Tsingtau.

The British troops have been ordered to cooperate with those of Japan. The French expect like orders.

BOMBARDMENT OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED.

TOKIO, August 24.—(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)—The naval censor has permitted the announcement in newspaper extras of the fact that the Japanese fleet is bombarding Tsingtau.

Local Germans who have traveled in the Orient and are familiar with the situation at Kiao-Chau state that the place is so well fortified that to take it by sea is practically an impossibility, while any land atack would mean a violation of Chinese neutrality. The place is also well provisioned and is easily able to stand a three-months' siege.

This, in the opinion of some of the Honolulu Germans, will be long enough, inasmuch as they expect the war to be over and Germany triumphant by that time.

Japanese Diplomatic Agent Leaves Berlin for Frontier

BERLIN, August 25.—(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)—Upon being handed his passports the Japanese charge d'affaires left yesterday for the Dutch frontier.

GOVERNOR MAY BE ASKED TO DECLARE ELECTION HOLIDAY

Will Saturday, September 12 next, on which day the first direct primary election will be held in the Territory, be a legal holiday? Governor Pinkham was asked this question yesterday by The Advertiser. Admitting that he had given the subject some consideration already, the Governor stated that he had not quite decided whether he would proclaim the day a legal holiday.

"One request, asking that I make September 12 a legal holiday has already reached me," said the Governor yesterday.. "Before I take up the subject definitely I would like to know how the public feels on the question. Should a majority of the people favor a holiday, I rather think they will get it."

A law passed by the legislature of 1911 gives the Governor the authority of calling a legal holiday when in his judgment public interest may be best subserved. In regard to September 12, it is the opinion of many that a legal holiday should be declared in order that all who wish to vote may do so. It is believed that the proper officials of the different political parties will soon join in asking the Governor to designate September 12 as a legal holiday.

BRYAN'S DAUGHTER, WIFE OF BRITISH CAPTAIN, ASKS HELP FOR WAR SUFFERERS

LONDON, August 7.—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of the American secretary of state, and wife of Capt. Reginald A. Owen of the Royal Engineers, issued today an appeal for the assistance of the American press in collecting contributions in aid of British subjects suffering privations through the war.

JAPAN WILL GO ON AT THE FAIR

SAN FRANCISCO, August 25.—(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)—Consul General Nomano yesterday notified the directors of the Panama-Pacific Exposition that the outbreak of war in the Orient will not affect Japan's plans to participate on a large scale at the Fair next year.

JAMAICA SUGAR MAY BE SOLD

KINGSTON, Jamaica, August 25.—(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)—The recent proclamation of Sir William Manning, the Governor, prohibiting the exportation of sugar from the colony, was yesterday cancelled, except that the exportation to any country an enemy of Great Britain is still interdicted.

JAPANESE LINER SLIPS AWAY LATE AT NIGHT

Evidently awaiting the arrival of the Chiyo Maru, which docked from Yokohama at four-thirty yesterday afternoon, the Seiyo Maru lifted anchor at eleven o'clock last night and steamed westward.

The Seiyo has been in the roadstead since she was ordered to return here August 21, and since then there has been much speculation concerning her future movements.

The fact that the Seiyo got under way so soon after the arrival of the Chiyo strengthens the belief that one or more Japanese warships are in this immediate vicinity and will convoy her to Japan.

HUERTA SICK; SAILS FOR SPAIN

LONDON, August 25.—(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)—Former President Huerta of Mexico, who has been here, left yesterday with his party for Spain. The deposed dictator appears to be ill.

The British steamer Kestrel, from Fanning Island, arrived off port last night and will dock this morning.

Why Republicans Oppose Kuhio

Interests of Hawaii Demand Continuous, Intelligent Representation at National Capital

BY LORRIN A. THURSTON.

Intimations are being freely made that the opposition to Kuhio is personal; because he is a Hawaiian; and that it veils a sinister attack on the franchise of the native Hawaiians.

These suggestions are entirely wrong.

It is fair to Kuhio; to those who have heretofore supported him; and in the public interest, that the reasons for the present opposition to him should be distinctly set forth.

Kuhio a Man Among Men.

Speaking for myself, I have known Kuhio from boyhood. An engaging presence; is a man among men; a "good sport." When younger he "bucked the line" with the best of them at football.

In the recent yacht race to Hilo, by the "outside passage," he was a member of the crew of the Hawaii. He hauled in on the main sheet; stood his trick at the wheel; lived on hard tack and coffee for fifty-eight hours; played hard, worked hard and slept hard—I know, because I shared a stateroom with him—with the rest of the boys.

He holds his own, without asking any favors, in any social relation; at any function; as an entertainer or as a public speaker, and is a good campaigner.

Last Male Representative of Hawaiian Chiefs.

He is almost the last male representative of the ancient Hawaiian Chiefs; and they were a remarkable class, of great personal force and impressive dignity. A chivalric recognition of his status in this respect has tinctured sentiment toward him, more even among the whites than among the natives.

He has had the continuous support for approximately twelve years, of the Republican organization; the leading commercial men and concerns, and of most of the independent thinkers, who are bound but lightly by party ties, as a result of which he has been continuously elected to congress since 1902.

Race Issue Heretofore Absent.

At every Hawaiian election, certain demagogic light weights try to draw the color line, and make capital out of the race issue. During the past twelve years this issue has been almost wholly absent from the Kuhio campaigns.

In fact, he has continuously received the large majority of white votes, as against his white rival for the office of Delegate, L. L. McCandless. Neither have the Hawaiians drawn the color line in his favor.

Whites Elected Kuhio In 1912.

At the last election on the Island of Oahu, there were 3873 votes cast for McCandless and only 3,105 for Kuhio, a majority of 768 for McCandless, although the Hawaiian vote of the Island is in a heavy majority, demonstrating that there was no race issue on this Island at that time.

Kuhio himself acknowledged in a recent address, that it was the haole votes and influence that elected him at the last election.

Under these circumstances, with the recognized advantage given by acquaintance at Washington and familiarity with the duties, why is it that since last election a strong opposition to Kuhio's re-election has grown up in his own party, among those who have heretofore been his strongest supporters?

A Suggested But Incorrect Reason.

Hostility to Sugar Planters:

It has been charged that his hostile course toward the sugar planters at Washington is the basic cause of the present opposition to him.

In view of the virulence of his language at Washington, and the support and assistance which his course and statements gave to the enemies of Hawaiian sugar, this alleged reason has a plausible sound; but it is entirely incorrect, as a brief examination will show. For example:

The conduct of Kuhio referred to occurred not long before the last election.

Sugar Planters Supported Kuhio In 1912.

It was then fresh in the memory of those affected thereby. If any change of attitude toward Kuhio was to be made by reason of this course concerning sugar, then was the time when such change would naturally have been expected.

So far from the sugar planters joining the opposition to Kuhio at the last election, it is a fact that in Honolulu, the locality where the planters exercise the least influence, the majority against Kuhio was the greatest; whereas, in the country districts, where the plantation influence is at a maximum, the vote was so strongly pro-Kuhio as to overcome the heavy majority against him on Oahu and elect him over McCandless, his white opponent.

Kuhio Characteristics.

To understand the present situation it is necessary to refer briefly to certain facts and past events and conditions.

Kuhio is not industrious.

The easy life suits him, except at election time, when he works hard. He has no faculty for compiling or using vital, commercial, financial and other facts, figures or statistics affecting Hawaiian affairs.

The work at Washington requires a fund of ready knowledge concerning all Hawaiian affairs, and the ability to put one's hand upon information not contained in one's head. It is a life of steady grind.

Kuhio has no such fund of detailed knowledge, and steady and continuous application is wholly foreign to his nature, education and entire makeup. He has no aptitude for, or knowledge of, business, finance, or practical affairs. His own business affairs, although not numerous or complicated, are handled by an agent.

Kuhio's Strongest Point.

His strongest point is his genial, social way; the fact that he represents a Territory around which there is a romantic glamor in the minds of thousands who used to contribute nickels through the Sunday schools for the support of the American missionaries on the other side of the world; and finally in the fact that he represents the last remnant of royalty in the Pacific. There is no one who worships at the feet of royalty more fervidly than freeborn American citizens.

The above character study of Kuhio applies no more and no less to him now than it did twelve years ago.

He is no weaker in his weak qualities than he was at the beginning of his term, and he is as strong in his stronger qualities as he then was, with the added advantage of his acquaintance and experience.

Why Sentiment Has Changed Against Kuhio.

Why, then, the change of attitude toward him?

The reply is that the change of attitude toward Kuhio is coincident with and based solely upon his own change of attitude toward the work entrusted to him.

For example:

Character of Delegate's Secretary.

At an early period during the incumbency of the office of Delegate to Congress, it was recognized both by himself and his constituents, that a keen, industrious and able business man with specific knowledge of local conditions, was required at Washington, to supplement the qualities of the Delegate. An "assistant," not merely a secretary, was absolutely necessary, if Hawaiian affairs were to be adequately attended to.

The salary of secretary to the Delegate, only one hundred and twenty-five dollars per month, was insufficient to secure such an assistant.

Appointment of Geo. McK. McClellan.

An arrangement was accordingly made between the Delegate and the commercial organizations of Honolulu, the chamber of commerce and the merchants' association, that they would contribute enough to secure a man of the character required.

Under this arrangement, Mr. George McK. McClellan was appointed secretary by the Delegate in October and filled the position until the summer of 1912.

This team combination worked well.

Combination Worked Well.

Kuhio filled the role where his genial nature was required; did the society act; was a sport with the sports; jollied up the "boys" and presented a dignified front which was both impressive and valuable.

Meanwhile McClellan, from the vantage of the prestige of the Delegate's position, and with the entre to official Washington incident to his office, became one of, if not the most, accomplished and competent representatives which Hawaii has ever had at Washington.

With a good address, accurate knowledge of local conditions, and a wide acquaintance at Washington, he became invaluable to the Delegate and to Hawaii.

I know whereof I speak when I say that it was an evil day for the Delegate and for Hawaii when Mr. McClellan resigned his office.

Kuhio's Change of Base.

Now for the first change on the part of Kuhio which has resulted in opposition to him.

Had Mr. McClellan remained as secretary to the Delegate, or had Kuhio appointed another secretary of the character and caliber of McClellan, Kuhio would today continue to receive the united Republican support; not unanimous, perhaps, but amply strong enough to continue him in office.

Instead of making such an appointment, however, he appointed J. R. Desha, a son of his friend and supporter, Reverend Stephen Desha, an excellent young man, freshly graduated from college, without any previous business or practical experience of any kind.

More Is Required Than a Private Secretary.

If all that was required of the office was the performance of the duties of a private secretary to the Delegate, there would be no reason to question the appropriateness of the appointment. The young man is of high character and good education, a credit to himself and the Territory, but entirely without the knowledge and experience required to supplement Kuhio's qualities, and adequately represent Hawaii at the capital, even if Kuhio were continuously present.

Kind of Assistant Required.

It must be continuously borne in mind, however, that the secretary to the Delegate at Washington is not merely a private secretary, but must as an assistant supply those qualities which the Delegate lacks, viz.: detailed knowledge of facts and of conditions; ability to do original thinking and with power to formulate and present plans for the benefit of, and defenses to attacks on Hawaii.

More necessary than all, the assistant must carry conviction of his ability and responsibility to such an extent that officials at Washington, regardless of party, will look to him for advice and information whenever Hawaiian matters are under consideration, and will trust his judgment and discretion—a man who will be looked to as Governor Frear has been during this summer.

Kuhio Does Not Stay On the Job.

The second reason why there is opposition to Kuhio is because he does not remain "on the job" at Washington.

There is ample Hawaiian business at Washington to keep two men continuously busy during sessions of congress.

If both the Delegate and the secretary are not continuously on duty during sessions of congress the public interest must suffer to a greater or less extent.

While Kuhio was absent from his post, more or less during the earlier years of his term of office, it did not make so much difference while Mr. McClellan was at Washington, as the latter was fully competent to attend to matters as they arose.

Necessity for Continuous Presence At Washington.

At no time since Hawaii became a Territory has every interest in the Islands required the continuous presence at Washington of the ablest representative who could be secured, as during the past sixteen months.

At no time since Hawaii became a Territory has there been such almost total absence of representation at Washington as since the election of November, 1912.

Kuhio's Almost Continuous Absence.

During the special session of the house of representatives in the spring of 1913, while the Tariff Bill was under consideration involving the financial life of Hawaii, Delegate Kuhio remained away from Washington. No special reason has been given why he so remained. It was not until after the Tariff Bill had gone to the senate that Kuhio returned to Washington, and he was back here October 1, 1913, although congress was still in session.

The present regular session of congress began December 1, 1913. Kuhio did not leave for Washington until January 29, 1914, and was back in San Francisco February 20, returning to Honolulu, where he stayed until June. He then returned to Washington and stayed there just twenty-six hours.

He thereupon announced that the doctor advised him that he was threatened with pneumonia and should go to a milder climate. He immediately returned to Hawaii, after a brief stay in California, arriving here approximately July 1 last.

Is Now In Good Health But Continues Absence.

No suggestion has since been made that he is not in good health. He published a letter after his return stating that the "balmy air of Hawaii" had restored him to health.

There is no intimation that he intends to return to congress for the remainder of this session, although there are many and important Hawaiian questions pending before congress and the executive officers.

As examples of the urgent necessity of continuous representation at Washington, the Chamber of Commerce has been compelled to employ private counsel, this summer, at an expense to that organization of approximately $2000, to secure proper presentation at Washington of several purely public questions.

Question of Kuhio's Health.

It is claimed in defense of Kuhio that no man should be required to stay at Washington if his health is endangered.

The claim is absolutely good, with two limitations, however, viz.:

1. That the absence should continue no longer than ill health requires;

2. That such ill health should not continue for so long a time as to deprive the Territory of representation at Washington.

I know of no one who suggests that Kuhio should remain at Washington, at any time, at the risk of his life.

Should Remain at Washington When Health Permits.

There is very strong insistence, however, that Hawaii is

VON DAMM SAFE IN CHRISTIANA

Bertram von Damm, the former leader of the local G. O. P., whom most Honululans have been imagining at the front, exchanging rifle shots with the enemies of the Fatherland, is in Norway, according to a cablegram received from him last week. He was, at the time he cabled, at Christiana, his cable being an inquiry regarding the whereabouts of one of the German reservists in the city, whose father in Germany did not know whether he had as yet started for the front or not.

Since the surrender of the baseball magnates to the Players' Fraternity in the Kraft case many members have been added to the organization. The fraternity now has 866 members.
