SUNDAY, JUNE 11, 1916.

South Carolina—Probably local thunderstorms Sunday and Monday.

Who's going to pour the oil on the troubled waters at Chicago?

Mr. Bryan is in Chicago, but evidently he left his Dove of Peace at home.

Our young friends the college graduates are now ready to "accept" positions.

Every time Teddy knocks Wilson the latter's reelection becomes more of a certainty.

Character is what a man knows himself to be; reputation is what others think he is.

What the G. O. P. needs is not a nominee for the presidency but a funeral director to inter the remains.

Atlanta is Brought Nearer to Savannah—headline. Seems like Savannah's afflictions will never end.

Now let those college fellows who danced so "divinely" show what they can do in father's cotton field.

An Atlanta woman was given two divorces in three days. And yet some people contend that the world is growing better.

Motorcycle Collides With Ice Truck—headline. Some scribble may be able to make a paragraph out of that, but we haven't time to fool with it.

Savannah Asks Job At Ylco—president of Ylco Company—headline. Probably she could qualify for a job with a "crack" company.

W. England and Norman can't settle the question of making out the list of the Julliard sea battle, they have no full permission to try it.

We read where a cat had adopted a kind of mouse but the article doesn't say whether the chickens were to be included.

COOPER'S STOCK DECLINING

Newspapers of the state that a few weeks ago were boosting the candidacy for governor of the Hon. Robt. A. Cooper, are noticeably silent nowadays in respect to this particular matter. In fact, we do not recall having seen his name in print in many months. What is the cause of this silence on the part of the champions of the gentleman from Laurens. Have they forsaken their candidate or do they realize, as do some of the sanest political observers of the state, that Cooper "stock" has declined rapidly during the past few weeks?

Reports from all over the state are to the effect that Governor Manning's strength was never at such a high stage as it is at the present time. Of late he has had the opportunity of getting out into the different sections of the state and talking with the people and to the people, and it has been a case of the more they saw of him the better they liked him. With the very evident decline in Cooper "stock" and the pronounced growth in strength of our present governor, it takes no political seer to foresee the return of Richard J. Manning to the office which he has so creditably filled for the past two years, and his return to it by an overwhelming majority in the first primary.

A GOOD MAN DIES

No church has a right to assert or think that it has a monopoly on virtue and nobility, and the followers of one creed have no right to point the finger of scorn at the followers of another creed. The right to worship God as one chooses is one of the fundamental rights accorded all men when the foundations of this country were laid by our forefathers, who sought refuge in this country for the very reason that they were persecuted because of their religious beliefs. Protestants may look askance at Catholics and the latter may do the same as to Protestants, but no matter what creed it may follow a noble character always shines irrepressibly and commands the respect and the admiration, if not the reverence, of all broad-minded men of whatever creed.

This is by way of calling attention to the profound impression made by Bishop Northrop and the poignant grief, on the part of Protestants as well as Catholics, caused by his death, which occurred in Charleston last Wednesday. A beautiful estimate of the character of the beloved Bishop is given in the following editorial from the Charleston Evening Post:

Fifty-one years a priest, thirty-four years a bishop; sacrificing at God's altar; pastoring God's people; in the fullness of years and the fruit of labor, Bishop Henry Plunkney Northrop has been called to his reward. A native of Charleston, almost the whole of his life's work has been done in this community. His early priesthood only was in other parts, and within a year of his consecration, upon appointment by Pope Leo XIII, he became bishop of Charleston in succession to P. N. Lynch. The record of his episcopate is full of achievement and progress. He has seen the church extend in vigor and good works parishes planted, churches built, institutions established, and religion and charity spread. The restoration of St. John's cathedral which had been destroyed in the fire of 1861 was accomplished under his rule and the beautiful edifice was consecrated upon the twenty-fifth anniversary of his taking the mitre. In a diocese burdened with the inheritance of war's destruction, its people struggling to maintain themselves, the achievements of his pastorate have been remarkable and his name will shine among the prelates of his church.

But it is as a friend and a pastor that he will be chiefly remembered and mourned. A highly educated, finely cultured and charming man he was, broad in his understanding, deep in his sympathies, kindly of thought, warm of heart, sweet and generous of nature. His people were his constant care and he was with them ever in their joys and their sorrows and many a tear for the passing of the good bishop will be shed among his bereaved flock; but not only in the intimate circles of his spiritual ministrations will he be missed and mourned, for he was to a citizen esteemed and admired in the community to which he was native and in whose welfare he labored through the years of his high service.

THE WOMAN'S PARTY

There have been four national political conventions in Chicago at the same time. Two of them have been women's conventions. And the women have not received the attention they deserve. Like the men, they have been divided on a big issue. Their division has given birth to a new party, the "Woman's Party." It has a simple platform, with a single plank. It seeks to win the vote for all American women by federal amendment. It is the outgrowth of the Congressional Union for Woman's Suffrage. It holds a club over parties and officeholders. It aims to compel congress to submit a constitutional suffrage amendment to the state for their approval.

Opposed to this movement is the older organization, the National American Suffrage Association, which has won most of the suffrage victories of the past, and which wants to continue its policy of proceeding state by state instead of making suffrage a national issue. Thus far, the sentiment of the nation generally has indorsed the view that suffrage is, in fact, a state issue, and that no attempt should be made to force it on any unwilling State. And even aside from the principle involved, it seems to many disinterested observers a waste of energy for women to pound away at the federal amendment propaganda. It seems strange that they should hope to win the necessary three-fourth of the states for the amendment if they are unable to win those states separately. It seems much more practical that they should concentrate their energies on individual states that offer hope of success.

yer around and offer them a liberal sum for damages? It did not. It had them hauled into court, as soon as they were able to be up and around, on a charge of trespassing. And the unfeeling magistrate took the side of the railroad, and imposed a heavy fine for their heedlessness. That case is the climax of a defensive campaign the Long Island railroad has been waging against automobilists who persist in disregarding rules and warnings at grade crossings. It has grown weary of autos catapulting into its trains, to the injury of its rolling stock and the annoyance of its officials and passengers. The worm has turned. It might be a good thing for everybody concerned if every railroad which modestly does its part to make grade crossings safe would adopt the same policy. Why should crossing safety be a one-sided matter.

There have been four national political conventions in Chicago at the same time. Two of them have been women's conventions. And the women have not received the attention they deserve. Like the men, they have been divided on a big issue. Their division has given birth to a new party, the "Woman's Party." It has a simple platform, with a single plank. In the recent Iowa election, for example, the women nearly won. Presumably the efforts of the "Woman's Party" workers, applied to that campaign, would have turned the tide. It may be so in other states. If the women could only get together, and continue along the lines that have succeeded so notably in the past, they would soon have the vote in all the states that are anywhere near ready for it. And they would have it without any sex antagonism, or the stirrings up of dangerous political entities.

STATE NEWS

Beahan Factiousless. Greenville, June 10.—In connection with his formal announcement as candidate for the state senate from Greenville, count E. A. Beahan said last night that there were affoot certain rumors that he was in the race at the behest of a faction. He emphatically denied this, declaring that he threw his hat in the ring on his own volition and not as a representative of any political element. "I am making the race on my own initiative," he said, "and repudiate any such insinuations. I am not aligned with any faction in this race, and am seeking the office because of the honor and the opportunity it will give me to serve all the people. I will not be guided or influenced by any faction and it will be my earnest endeavor at all times, he said, "to be a representative of the county as a whole."

Mr. Beahan is serving his second term as collector of this circuit.

A $25,000 Loan. Spartanburg, June 10.—County officials stated yesterday that the second installment of the annual loan made by the county of Spartanburg is now available for the payment of claims. This installment amounts to $25,000, which is obtained through W. S. Glenn for a New York concern at 3 per cent. The first installment, which amounted to $25,000 was obtained in March at 4 per cent interest, which was considered to be an extremely low rate of interest.

The county has now reached the limit of its borrowing capacity until September, when another loan may be obtained.

today Harley Gosnell, for whom he had been looking for two years, the charge being assault and battery with intent to kill. Sheriff Rector said last night that Gosnell shot of a man's leg in Asheville. The arrest was made near Inman. Gosnell told the sheriff that he was willing to return to Asheville without the formality of a requisition. Sheriff Rector said it was his intention to take Gosnell to Asheville Sunday morning.

Office Denied Women. Columbia, June 10.—The supreme court of North Carolina has just rendered a decision in which the right of women to hold the office of deputy clerk of the supreme court is denied. This decision may invalidate the titles to considerable property. The case in question concerned a mortgage which figured in a controversy, the papers of which had been acknowledged before a woman deputy clerk. This discrimination against North Carolina women must appear silly to the enfranchised women of states like California, Oregon, Kansas and the other advanced states in which women are regarded as equals and not inferiors of men.

Funeral Mr. Dair. Laurens, June 10.—The funeral and burial services for the late P. Ashmore Dair, who was stricken suddenly late Tuesday afternoon at his place of business, were held Wednesday afternoon. The exercises were conducted by the Rev. W. B. Thayer, of Sumter, and the Rev. C. A. Baker, temporary pastor of the Baptist church here, and during his residence here of five years there existed a strong friendship between Mr. Dair and his pastor. The services yesterday were attended by a large concourse of people of the city and surrounding country, and out of respect to the memory of their fellow merchant the stores of the city were closed during the funeral hour.

$10,000 Bond Issue. Spartanburg, June 10.—The trustees of the Cedar Springs, Thompson and Fernwood consolidated school districts have placed their $10,000 bond issue of five per cent through the Bank of Spartanburg. It is understood that this is one of the best series of school district bonds ever secured in this county and the trustees are gratified over their success. The proceeds from the bond issue will be used in the erection of a modern and commodious school building to serve the needs of the consolidated district. The site upon which the structure will be placed has not been selected, though a committee to decide this matter has been appointed.

SOME SINGULAR STORIES

Truth Victorious. (From The Houston Post.) A Boston man says he got home at 2 a. m., and told his wife he had been out drinking with an old friend from Providence and she floored him with a rolling pin, knocking him insensible so that he could not get up for 10 minutes. But he got up and it shows that truth crushed to earth can rise again. If the blow is not vital.

A COMER ON TICKETS

Mack, Taggart and Sullivan Get Large Blobs. (St. Louis Dispatch.)

New York, Illinois and Indiana control the admission ticket situation for the democratic National convention, which opens here a week from today. These three states, controlled by Norman B. Mack of New York, Tom Taggart of Indiana and Roger Sullivan of Illinois, have each received 500 tickets in addition to the tickets to be given the delegates. Each delegate is to get one ticket in addition to his own. About the Total Jefferson, the headquarters of the national committee, a continuous protest against "Norman, Tom and Roger" controlling the ticket distribution is heard. A personal lieutenant of Roger Sullivan has the custody of the tickets, which were delivered today. The tickets are locked in a steel safe, and in addition to the Sullivan lieutenant, a policeman is stationed at the door of the room containing the safe. Headquarters for the Sullivan boom for the vice presidential nomination will be opened Friday in the Bismarck building, across the street from Hotel Jefferson. New York state committee headquarters will also be opened in the same building. Both are on the ground floor. Only a saloon separates them. Chairman William F. McCombs accompanied by other members of the democratic national committee, left for Chicago tonight. They will be the guests of Chairman Hill of the republican national committee and will occupy platform seats at the republican convention in return for this courtesy. Chairman McCombs has offered Mr. Hill a seat at the democratic convention.

In addition to the fact that the Business Men's League of A. L. Lewis has received more than 500 tickets, he has caused the earnest democrats of Kansas, Arkansas and other states to change over the republican are making tickets which should be awarded to Republicans.
