KOREAN BANDIT TAKEN IN FUSILLADE OF BULLETS

Yee Yo Keuk, Desperate Robber, Puts Up Hard Fight When At Bay

JAPANESE MERCHANTS WILL PAY REWARD TO MEN WHO CAUGHT YEE

The Japanese merchants who offered a reward of $300 for the capture of Yee Yo Keuk last night decided to split the money among the officers making the capture of the bandit. Chief McDuffie will get $150 and the other officers will take the balance share and share alike. Chief McDuffie stated last night that he would accept the reward.

ALTHOUGH wounded in the neck and leg and apparently in great pain, Yee Yo Keuk, Korean bandit, captured at Punchbowl and Beretania streets yesterday morning by detectives and policemen, was under close guard at the Queen's hospital last night. Dr. J. M. Kuhns, attending physician, believed he was not injured so seriously as he pretended, and since he had escaped twice from the city jail no chances were to be taken on a third escape.

Besides charges of assault and robbery the Korean probably will face one of murder, for he is suspected by detectives of having slain Chee Wong Yer, a fellow countryman, at Beretania and King streets, a short time before he was captured.

Korean Dead in Bed

Chee was found dead in his bed, with a revolver bullet in his brain. He said that Yee threatened to kill him because he laid information that resulted in Yee's arrest last winter.

To Detective Sergeant John D. Kellett, Yee said last night some of his possessions could be found under the Lutheran church. Search showed a bicycle Yee presumably had used to make his way about the city to and from robberies. A bag of trinkets and skeleton keys, also used in his robberies, it is believed, was found under the building, but, because of the night, Sheriff Rose directed that digging for money, probably buried, be postponed until this morning. Search will be made today.

Climax of Long Planning

Arrest of Yee was the climax of long planning. For a week The Advertiser had known that Chun Duck Soon was to be used to betray Yee; that he had been turned over to Detectives by High Sheriff Jarrett, who had him in charge at the territorial penitentiary, where he was serving a sentence; but, at the earnest solicitation of Chief of Detectives Arthur McDuffie, there was no publication of this as he asserted that premature publicity would make useless work of four months. The Advertiser was aware that the capture was to be made Wednesday night, but, again, there was no publication of this news, as it was not wished to militate against work of the police, and Yee was caught about daybreak yesterday.

Bandit and Chief in Hospital

With Yee at the hospital lies Chief McDuffie, shot in the leg by the bandit as he was fleeing from his hiding place. McDuffie shot Yee in the neck; Captain of Police Charles H. Baker brought him down finally with a bullet in the leg.

Chun Duck Soon, who formerly was as eminent a criminal as Yee, until he was sent to prison for burglary, offered to betray Yee to detectives. He accompanied them Wednesday night to Beretania and Punchbowl streets.

Sheriff Charles H. Rose warned the public not to be too confident that the end of burglaries has been reached now that Yee is arrested, as he expects to have evidence within the next week showing that the most of the crimes charged up to Yee were committed by a gang of young men who have been taking advantage of the notoriety gained by Yee to cast the blame of their depredations upon him.

Where Captive Took Place.

At the corner of Beretania and Punchbowl streets there is the Villa rooming house. Back of it, facing Punchbowl street, is the cottage of Otto Berndt. Ewa of the Villa house is the servants' quarters of the Berndt home, where lives Chin See Soo, a Korean employed by Mr. Berndt. This shack is cut off from Beretania street by brush and a fence; there is a fence between it and the Villa, but there is an exit between the Villa and the Berndt cottage.

Near the rear of the Villa, separated from it by this fence, is a chicken coop of high board slats. To this place there went Wednesday night Chun Duck Soon, the informer; Captain McDuffie, Captain Baker, Policeman A. H. Gunderson and Detectives M. A. Swift and F. V. Belmont. They left the police station about nine o'clock.

Chun Locates Outlaw.

Chun had given the information that Yee was hiding in the shack occupied by Chin See Soo.

McDuffie, Gunderson and Baker hid in the chicken coop, from which they could see the door to the shack, through which Yee would have to pass. Swift and Belmont went to the rear of the shack and lay along a fence, whence they could see a window cut in the wall of the house as an entrance and exit for Yee. This way led through the grounds of the German Lutheran church.

The policemen and detectives waited.

Informer Spoils Plan.

The informer nearly spoiled the plan. He wished to sneeze, and, when a man wishes to sneeze, he will sneeze. He ran, sneezing, toward the Berndt home, so as to be away from the shack, and Berndt, hearing him, came outside. He was quieted by explanation as to who the intruders were, and, after being requested to say nothing whatever of their presence, went back into the house.

He laughed at the suggestion that his servant was harboring the outlaw.

Night dragged on.

"We thought at the time that it was Chin See Soo, the servant," said McDuffie, "but we discovered, after catching Yee, that it was he."

Tried to Avoid Fight.

We decided that, if things were quiet and we were positive that Yee was in the house, we would rush it at daybreak. We pondered this, and then decided that we would have Berndt call out his servant, to whom we would propose that he have Yee surrender, as we did not wish him killed or an officer hurt or killed.

"At five o'clock we called Berndt and asked him to summon his servant. Berndt did so, on the pretence that he wanted a dog Chin was keeping."

McDuffie was standing at the Beretania street entrance to the grounds, and Chin was taken to him. The detective, through Chun, directed him to return and say to Yee that, if he would leave the shack with his hands up, he would be arrested without trouble; if he did not, he would be shot on sight.

McDuffie And Gunderson Shot.

While McDuffie was in conversation with Chin, Swift, in the rear of the shack, became uneasy and played his flashlight into the room through the makeshift window. The rays fell upon Yee, half-concealed.

As soon as Yee saw Swift he fired; Swift shot; Yee rushed for the door and into the yard. Baker and Gunderson, hearing the fire, came to the door, from which the Korean sprung, shooting as he ran.

Baker ducked to escape the bullets, but one passed through his coat and struck Gunderson in the thumb of the right hand. Running past the chicken coop and through the side gate into Punchbowl street, Yee saw McDuffie, and, still running, fired once more. McDuffie was struck in the left leg above the knee.

Yee Brought To Ground

Nevertheless he replied. His first shot did not strike; the second did, in Yee's neck as he gained the sidewalk on the Waikiki side of Punchbowl street. He fell to the sidewalk.

There was a revolver in each hand. As he fell one of them dropped from his grasp, but he rose, pulled another from his pocket and continued firing, running the while waikiki on Beretania street.

Policemen and detectives followed. Captain Baker was on his heels and fired, and a bullet hit in the right leg. At this Yee fell for the second and last time. He had been captured. It was found that two bullets had struck him in the right leg and one in the neck. The wound in the neck is slight.

McDuffie and Yee were taken to the hospital at once. The bullet is lodged in McDuffie's leg. He does not know when he will be able to leave the hospital. The wound is not serious.

Bandit's Condition Improves

Yee Yo Keuk's condition was rapidly improving up to last night. Doctor Kuhns, who attended Keuk, gave orders to the guards that a close watch should be kept, for the reason that the showing of pain by him was feigned and the man was not injured—so much as he would have the guards believe. Yee was asked whether he would stay in prison this time.

"If I go in calaboose, bimeby I get away; if not get away, then I make mucke myself; I no care to live now. Before I caught I like to go other side of island, but no can go; then I get hungry, want kau kau, I steal."

When the picture of Shin See Soo, the man who harbored him in his room, was shown to him, Keuk said:

Yee Has Outlaw Pal

"He no help me; he alle same give me kau kau. Every time I go steal, only one man go; that me; no one else."

"But Yee, who cut the hole in the back of the house for you to enter and depart?"

"I no savvy hole. Yesterday I go look this house, see my friend; then this morning I go again; when I in house somebody he call Chin; he go out; then somebody he shoot at me from window; I no shoot first. I run, then shoot. I very sure I no fire the first time, but when I get away from house I shoot lots times. McDuffie he stand by gate; I shoot him."

When asked whether or not Soo Duck Choon was a friend of his, Keuk screwed up his face and said:

"No. Him my enemy; we no friends."

"Do you know who killed Chee Won Yer?" he was asked.

"I no know; I no kill him. You ask him; he will say that Keuk he no kill him!"

Keuk outwardly was showing great pain.

Murder Charged To Yee

That Chee Wen Yer met death at the hands of Yee Yo Keuk, was the statement made to The Advertiser yesterday by Chief of Detectives McDuffie.

The shot which killed the Korean evidently was fired through a window, when the man was sleeping. The bullet ranged downward through the brain and lodged in the back of the head. Close to the bed on which the Korean was found dead is a small window which was open when the detectives arrived at the scene of the murder. A twenty-two calibre revolver was found in the room, and all bullets were intact in the gun and the chamber filled when found. Outside the window a thirty-eight calibre revolver was found, with one of the chambers empty.

When the bullet was extracted from the dead man's head, it was found to be of 38 calibre. The bullets that were found in the room of Yee Yo Keuk were also thirty-eight calibre, and when the bullets were compared it was found that they were evidently from the same box.

Stole Away To Kill Chee

The theory advanced by the police is that Yee Yo Keuk, seeking revenge, left the shack guarded by the detectives, committed the murder, threw the revolver away to destroy the evidence and returned to his lair. He was not seen on his return, however. It is said that Yee Yo Keuk had a grudge against the dead man because when the Korean made his escape from the city jail last April, Chee Won Yer gave the police certain information that was instrumental in the recapture of the bandit. A Korean who collects the rent from the tenants in the lodging house said that he heard Yee Yo Keuk threaten the life of Chee.

From the fact the Yee Yo Keuk is said to have threatened the life of the Korean, and previous to his capture in May had attempted to kill a Japanese, who he believed was informing the police as to his whereabouts, and also the threatening of Won, the Korean detective if he aided in his capture, the sheriff's office believes that the crime of yesterday was comitted by Yee Yo Keuk.

When interviewed on the crime yesterday Yee Yo Keuk simply said:

"Chee Won Yer is my enemy, but I no kill him; more better I did."

McDuffie said, that, to his knowledge Chee was not assisting Chun in running down Yee, and that he believed an older grudge caused the murder.

Chun Trailed Like Indian

Officers said that Chun Duck Soon the informer, had the instincts and gifts of an Indian in trailing Yee Yo Keuk. He had been after Yee at least three times, running him down and Tuesday night Yee passed so closely to where Chun was hiding that he might have been touched by the outstretched hand. The detectives were not near at the time and the opportunity to take Yee was lost. On another occasion McDuffie entered a place pointed out to him as the Korean's refuge and found a bed still warm. This time he was accompanied by two Koreans, he said, but the identity of the other, one having been Chun, is not known.

Chun Duck Soon was serving a prison sentence of one year for burglary. He told the police that he knew where Yee spent nights, and, if they would help him obtain his pardon or get him transferred to the city jail he would aid them in capturing Yee Ko Keuk. He feared to go back to the territorial prison, where he was a trusty, lest friends of Yee attack him.

Grudge Prompts Betrayal

Yee was instrumental in having Chun returned to Honolulu from Maui to serve time for burglaries, because Chun had misappropriated moneys of Yee. That was one grudge he had to satisfy.

About a week or ten days ago Chun was removed from the prison to the city jail and he began to assist the police.

Yee escaped from the city jail last April, while awaiting trial for burglary and assault on Nakamura, a Japanese. He was captured through treachery of a friend, who gave him a drug in drink. After being drugged Yee fled from the River street resort where he was drinking and shot a Japanese, but was captured. He escaped from the city jail again in May while awaiting trial. He merely left the table where he was eating, climbed the wall and went away from there. While he was at liberty scores of burglaries, principally among the Japanese, were reported, most of them being laid at his door.

Bandit Seen by Others

Miss Hilda, who resides at the Villa, said that she had seen Yee Yo Keuk for three weeks about the premises.

"I did not have any idea that he was quartering with our servant, and about a week ago I told him that if he wanted to see Chun he must come to the front of the house and not be prowling around the rear. He was very polite about it and assured me that the occurrence would not be duplicated. I recognized him immediately after seeing him and the picture as being Yee Yo Keuk," she said.

Chin said he did not know his visitor was a bandit.

A fifty-dollar reward offered by Sheriff Rose will go to Soon. The Japanese reward of $300 was not for a policeman, but Soon has applied for it. A pardon for Chun will be asked.

STARTS NEW YEAR EMPEROR OF CHINA

(Special Cable to Hawaii Shinpo)

TOKIO, December 9.—According to a Peking despatch Yuan Shih kai has announced that he will become Emperor of China on January 1, 1916. The change in the date is said to be due to the recent action taken by the revolutionists and the successful campaign of the monarchy against them.

Another Peking despatch states that the Manchus are indignant over the Yuan Shih kai plan, and request that the dethroned emperor be placed on the throne. The Manchus have always favored the crowning of the twelve year-old boy who was dethroned, and public opinion in Manchuria is said to favor a revolt should Yuan Shih kai attempt to take the throne.

WASHINGTON SETS MAXIMUM PRICE FOR IRWIN SITE

Treasury Department Will Pay $15,000 Above Assessed Valuation of Property

THIS WOULD MAKE OFFER SOMETHING LIKE $180,000

Which Is About $50,000 Lower Than Irwin Interests Demand For Holding

(Special Marconigram to The Advertiser.)

WASHINGTON, December 9.—Treasury department would pay for Irwin site for the federal building in Honolulu, $15,000 above the assessed valuation of the property. Figures on the proposals to sell are not available here as yet.—WALKER.

This radiogram was received yesterday afternoon from Ernest G. Walker, Washington correspondent of The Advertiser, and when communicated last night to Former Governor Walter F. Frear, one of the attorneys for the Irwin interests, he said that the assessed valuation of the property was about $165,000. On this estimate the United States government is willing to pay $180,000 for the Irwin site. When requested to name the price asked for the property by his clients, Mr. Frear replied that he was not in a position just then to discuss that phase of the negotiations.

Last Price Is $230,000

Governor Pinkham was approached for information as to the price the Irwin interests had placed on the property and said that according to his best information the last figure demanded of the government for the property was $230,000, and then discussing the general proposition to build the federal building on the Irwin site the Governor said:

"After the dinner given by the Governor to Secretary Newton, he informed the Governor that he would not pay more for the site in behalf of the government than he would if purchasing it for his own private property; that he was willing to pay a moderate advance over the assessed valuation, that the people might have the advantage of a civic center.

"The Governor communicated this fact to the attorneys of the Irwin site. So far as the Governor's knowledge goes the price was dropped to $230,000. The Governor has several times inquired of the Irwin attorneys without receiving any definite information. Today he requested copies of all the correspondence with Secretary Newton up to the present time.

Anxious For Civic Center

"The Governor is intensely interested in Honolulu having a civic center and placing itself in line with all progressive cities. He has gone so far as to order the judiciary grounds laid out and improved. He has also secured the assessed valuation of the garage belonging to Castle & Cooke and the land of the Atherton Estate, hoping thereby that Kawaiahao church and Lunalilo's tomb might make one end of the civic center square; the library of Hawaii and the capitol to form the makai side of the square; that the gore site might be used for a city hall and that the federal building on the Irwin site and the judiciary building and other property Waikiki would make the makai side of the civic center.

"The Territory has today more funds than cities which are guided by a civic pride and ambition. If our wealthy men had half the ambition for the reputation and welfare of their city as obtains elsewhere, they would under no circumstances miss the opportunity of embellishing their city, even if they had to contribute something toward the purchase of the site."

NUDAN INVESTIGATION STILL IS UNDER WAY

The work of investigating the status of General Wudan as a desirable resident of the United States is going along merrily at the federal immigration station before the inspector in charge. Yesterday witnesses testified that Wudan had spoken against the government of Yuan Shih kai in an address made early in the year at a gathering of his countrymen. He had not threatened to kill nor advised the decapitation of the president of the Chinese republic, but had advised the overthrow of the government.

DEMANDS ACCEDED TO

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

WASHINGTON, December 9. Ambassador Walter Hines Page has advised the state department, from London, that Great Britain has acceded to the demands made in the American protest against requisitioning the ships of the American Transatlantic Company. The steamers Hocking and Genesee, he explains, are not requisitioned, but are held pending a decision in the prize court as to whether they are liable to commandeering.

ENGLISH LABOR UNITES

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

LONDON, December 9.—The largest labor organization in the history of England has been formed for the purpose of organizing offensive and defensive action in matters of wages, conditions of work and other subjects affecting labor at this time. Two million men are represented in the organization.

HARBOR BOARD HANDLES MUCH ROUTINE BUSINESS

Considerable routine work, including reading of correspondence and bills and ordering the latter paid was handled by the harbor board at its meeting held in the Capitol last night. The bills, which were ordered paid, amounted to $2575.97.

J. A. Kaimana, wharfinger at Mahukona, Hawaii, was "instructed to light the lamps at nine (9) o'clock on all steamer nights." Kaikano Alika was appointed wharfinger at Keauhou, Kona, Hawaii, at a salary of five dollars a month, his commission beginning on January 1, 1916, and expiring on June 30, 1917. E. C. Merrill was instructed to make repairs, not to exceed thirty-five dollars, on the wharf at Waimea, Kauai.

The board wishes legal advice and wants it when sitting at regular and special meetings and Attorney General Stainback was requested to have some one of his office at all the meetings of the board. Clerk Frank Poor apprised the board of the fact that the time limit of its contract with J. C. Foss Jr., for the construction of the Kahio wharf road, Hilo, expired last Wednesday.

All the members were present at the meeting, with the exception of Commissioner Wakefield, who got his dates mixed. The members will leave in the Manna Kea tomorrow afternoon for Hilo on official business.
