CASEMENT TELLS OF HIS AMBITION FOR NATIVE LAND

Issued Statement Before Leaving Berlin, Defending Men of His Irish Brigade

PREDICTED VICTORY FOR TEUTON POWERS IN WAR

Wanted Emmerald Isle To Strike One Blow For Her Own 'Liberation'

17 an open letter to the Irish press, in which he advised Irishmen to remain neutral, while he would see to it that the country did not suffer the fate of Belgium. He went from here to Christania in October.

Sir Roger Turns Traitor

The very next month news came like a thunderclap to London that Sir Roger had become a traitor to his country, having gone to Berlin and conferred with the Imperial authorities with a view, it was said, to opening negotiations between the German government and the anti-English party in Ireland.

It was stated, according to one story, that he went to gain, and actually gained, assurances from Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg that under no circumstances would the Germans make a hostile invasion of Ireland—turn it into a Belgium.

Another report was that he obtained a promise that should the German troops land in Ireland all native institutions would be respected. Sir Roger's followers in Ireland were, according to this report, to give every aid to the Germans.

Doyle Thought Him Crazy

His friends with one accord declared that the reports were exaggerated, or that Sir Roger was not responsible for his actions. His very manner of approaching the German government they held, revealed an abnormal mind. His friends recalled his long career in the consular service, principally near the equator (consul at Lorenzo Marques 1895, at Gaboon and Congo Free state, 1898-1905; at Haiti and Santo Domingo, 1908, and consul-general at Rio de Janeiro, 1900-13), and were sure that the tropical sun had destroyed his moral conception. Sir Arthur Conan Dolye took this view, and sent an open letter to the British press, saying:

"That he should, in the full possession of his senses, act a traitor to the nation which had employed and honored him is inconceivable to any one who knew him. He had, it is true, a strong prepossession in favor of Germany before the war, but this was due to his belief that she was destined to challenge the Monroe Doctrine, which Sir Roger casement bitterly resented at being the ultimate cause of all that Putumayo barbarism which he had officially to investigate.

CASEMENT HOPED TO FREE IRELAND

(By FRANZ HUGO KREBS)

BERLIN, March 18.—Day before yesterday, hearing that Sir Rogers Casement was in Berlin, I called to see him at his hotel. The interview I had with him last February in Munich has evidently fallen into the hands of the British, as I requested that a wireless be sent me as soon as it was received, and I have not heard of its arrival in New York. Sir Roger sent down word that he was confined to his bed and could not see any one, but perhaps he would be able to see me the next day. I telephoned to Sir Roger's physician and found out that he had a slight attack of the African fever, contracted years ago on the Congo while he was collecting the evidence of Belgian atrocities, which evidence was later submitted to the British Parliament and led to action on its part, stopping forever the barbarous rule of King Leopold.

Hoping to cheer the invalid, I bought a small pot of "Kleeblattchen," which is the nearest approach to a shamrock that can be found in Berlin. I left instructions to have it delivered to Sir Roger the next morning, and at 11 o'clock on St. Patrick's day I received the following note delivered by messenger and written on the official paper of the Irish Brigade:

His Mind Full of the Old Land

"Your charming substitute for the real shamrock—the nearest to the dear little weed this country can offer—reached me on St. Patrick's day in the morning—9:30 a. m.—with my mind very full indeed of the old land. I hope to see you today to thank you in person; perhaps you will come here at 5 o'clock and take tea with me?

"Yours,

"ROGER CASEMENT."

At 5 o'clock on the minute I sent my card up to Sir Roger and received word to come up. Opening the door in answer to faint "Come in" I found Sir Roger lying on the bed, partly dressed, propped up by pillows.

On the whole, Sir Roger looked much better than when I last saw him, and it is evident that his rest in Munich has benefited him greatly. The tonic that will put him into apple pie order in no time is for the Irish Brigade to receive final orders to take the field. Sir Roger is like a blooded horse confined in a stall and not given a proper amount of exercise. His one thought is of his native land, and inaction when its future is in the balance is to Sir Roger mentally intolerable.

I asked Sir Roger to give me a signed statement, but the fever had left him too weak to sit up and write, so he dictated to me the accompanying statement, which I wrote down as it fell from his lips and then sent to be typed, after which Sir Roger read and signed it:

Sir Roger's Statement

"Berlin, March 17, 1916.

"On this day, celebrated by Irishmen the world over, it is glorious to realize that that every hour brings us appreciably nearer the time when Ireland will at last be free. The British Empire is tottering to its fall, and of all the territory that has been stolen for it in centuries of theft and imperial larceny, and of all peoples that have been brought under its oppressive sway, whites or blacks, the world over, no land and no people have suffered so severely as Ireland and the Irish.

"Under Cossack rule the population of what was, until recently, Russian Poland, increased, while the population of Ireland under British rule decreased. To the Malay, Hindoo or any of its unwilling subjects other than the Irish, provided they pay tribute and obey the laws imposed on them, the British accord more or less the opportunity to live their own lives. For centuries, however, Great Britain's statesmen have followed the policy of trying to depopulate Ireland; they realized that to lose Ireland, owing to its strategic geographic position, would mean the loss of Great Britain's command of the seas.

"So! a race conspicuously loyal so its ideals was doomed as far as possible to extermination, then to starvation, deprivation of religious liberty, taxation, compared to which the Hindoo, Malay and Burman is untaxed, oppression in every conceivable form. Under these wrongs the spirit of the Irish people remained unbroken; deprived of their language, their universities—in which flourished before the dawn of Christianity in England art and science, poetry and song—were blotted out of existence, but their spirit was unconquerable; it lives today stronger than ever in the hearts, souls and in every fibre of Ireland's son and daughters—scattered as they are to the four corners of the earth.

Sees Freedom For Ireland in This War

"This war will result in bringing about the freedom of the little green isle, and, by the blessing of God, that freedom for which so many Irishmen have sacrificed their lives and their all will not be given to us by the Central empires gallantly resisting the onslaught of the British forces and those who have joined Great Britain in trying to destroy its greatest commercial rival, without at least Ireland being represented on the firing line and Irishmen shooting as their forefathers did—not with the 'redcoats,' but at them.

"In spite of Great Britain's control of the seas, the black shame will never be on the Irish race that it was freed as the result of a world war, without striking one blow against its eternal oppressor. Today my prayer is not the one that millions of Irishmen have breathed 'in the long night of the tyrant's sin,' many of them on the scaffold or when in extremis in the hulks or in a convict settlement—for love of their native land. My prayer is not: 'God save Ireland,' but God bless the Irish Republic soon to be born, a worthy and loyal friend to the greater republic across the sea that has been a haven of rest to so many of Erin's persecuted sons and daughters.

"ROGER CASEMENT."

He Talks of America

We talked about many things beside Ireland—about the United States about New York and Boston, and Sir Roger dwelt with pride on the achievements of those of Irish blood and descent in America. Sir Roger said:

"It is interesting for me to realize that today thousands upon thousands of men of Irish birth or descent are marching behind American flags and the flag of Erin, typifying their devotion to the United States and affection for the land of their birth or the land from which their parents or ancestors came. It is almost most interesting that these processions will be reviewed in many cities by executives and other duly elected representatives, of their fellow-American citizens of Irish blood. In this connection I am particularly mindful of Mayor Mitchell of New York and Mayor Curley of Boston.

"It must be a cause of heart-rending pride for Mayor Mitchell of New York to realize that his grandfather was dragged from Dublin, fettered hand and foot, by his British guards and transported to Tasmania—a convict—not any overt act committed by him, but for the mere expression of his opinion. I say 'heart-rending pride' because his grandfather's manly courage and endurance under unjustifiable persecution has unquestionably been a great asset to his grandson, added to his many amiable qualities, in obtaining the friendship and support of those to whom courage and high-mindedness are absolute prerequisites in order to obtain their confidence."

I asked Sir Roger about the Irish Brigade and showed him clippings from American newspapers purporting to give accounts of its personnel and the methods by which it was recruited. Sir Roger said:

About the Irish Brigade

"Personally I do not care to answer the misrepresentations and deliberate falsehoods of the British press agents. They are paid for inventing them and will doubtless continue their labors as long as their pay is forthcoming. However, in justice to the men of the Irish Brigade I am willing to nail a few inventions to the barn door for the American public's inspection:

"1. Every member of the Irish Brigade is of Irish birth.

"2. Not one member of the Irish Brigade took the King's shilling after this war began.

"3. The German Government simply arms, equips and rations the men; it does not pay them one cent. The only money they receive comes from Irishmen. The pay of the men is 11 marks a month.

"The Irish Brigade is to fight solely in the cause of Ireland, and under no circumstances is it to be employed for any German end.

"We are to fight under our own flag and we wear a distinctive uniform.

"In spite of the fact that the troops of the Allies have received orders to hang us if captured, I have issued orders to the men that all prisoners taken by them are to be treated with the utmost consideration.

"The officers—commissioned and non-commissioned—of the Irish Brigade are all of Irish birth."

The men of the Irish Brigade have many of them travelled the world over, but they have only one earthly hope, and that is to see or rather help to make Ireland free. Sir Roger and the men of the Irish Brigade are the most altruistic figures in this waged for business war—technically traitors, each man fighting with a noose around his neck; actually heroes, ready and even anxious to die for the land they love.

WATERFRONT UNIONS THREATEN WALKOUT

They Insist On Police Disarming Strikebreakers and Guards On Wharfs

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.— The strike of the longshoremen continues to grow more meneeing. The waterfront workers' federation announced last night that unless the police immediately disarm the guards and the strikebreakers, the members will walk out of their jobs, still further tying up the shipping business of the West Coast.

The federation includes the teamsters' union and the sailors' union, and is one of the most powerful organizations in the labor circles of the Pacific Coast. Governor Johnson already has been asked to order the disarming of the strike-brakers and the guards employed by the shipowners, but so far has taken no step in reply.

The local situation took a serious turn for a time yesterday, when the strikers attempted to interfere with the loading of the United States supply ship Mars. The commandant of the Mare Island navy yard immediately wired to the local police asking them to telegraph to Governor Johnson to call out the state troops, if necessary, to protect the men at work on the Mars.

Chief White assigned a heavy guard of policemen to the task of caring for the Mars, and shortly after the leaders of the union announced that the interference with the Mars was a mistake, and that the unions had no intention of interrupting work on the Mars or any other war department or naval vessel.

In Seattle the fight has been carried to the courts, and Judge Cushman yesterday issued an injunction against the union stevedores forbidding them interfering with the strikebreakers who are loading vessels in Tacoma.

ITALIANS POUND AUSTRIANS HARD

ber of German prisoners in the raiding parties they have sent out on the northern end of the French lines. Gas clouds are used in this fighting most effectively. Berlin reports that the attacks were repulsed everywhere.

On the Italian fronts fresh developments of great interest marked the day. The Italians have been recapturing one after another the positions they lost to the Austrians in the Trentino, and have been pushing the Teutonic forces back all along that line, and yesterday they launched a great offensive in another sector of their front. From Monte San Michiel through San Martino, to Vermegliano, they compelled the Austrians to fall back after making a desperate resistance and losing heavily.

Vienna later reported that Austrian counter attacks succeeded in offsetting some of the gains made by the Italians.

URGENT DEFICIENCY BILL PASSED BY UPPER HOUSE

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

WASHINGTON, June 30—The senate yesterday passed the urgent deficiency appropriation bill, appropriating $27,536,000 to meet the emergency expenses of the government in moving the militia troops to the border to reinforce the regular troops under the command of General Funston. The measure has passed the house of representatives.

TOYO KISEN KAISHA TO INCREASE CAPITAL STOCK

(Special Cablegram to Nippu Jiji.)

TOKIO, June 30.—Officers and shareholders of the Toyo Kisen Kaisha, at the annual meeting of the company in this city, yesterday, decided to increase the capital stock of the corporation from $6,500,000 to $10,000,000. This company last January declared a cash dividend of ninety per cent on its capital stock.

REPUBLIC OF CHINA MAY MAKE SHANGHAI CAPITAL

(Special Cablegram to Liberty News.)

SHANGHAI, June 29—Li Yuan Hung, president of China, has recalled the old Parliament and ordered the members to report at Shanghai for a meeting. This announcement means that Shanghai or Nanking will be favored as the new capital of China.

FRANK MORAN LOSES FIGHT WITH DILLON

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

NEW YORK, June 30.—Jack Dillon outfought and outpointed Frank Moran in their ten-round go last night. For nine of the ten rounds Dillon outclassed the heavy boxer opposed to him, cutting Moran's eye and bringing the blood from his nose. Moran, who weighed in at 204 pounds, seemed too fat and unable to match the speedy Dillon, who weighed but 169.

GREATER PILIKIA FOR THE ISLANDS IN SHIPPING LINE

Matson Suspends Sailings From Sound and Oceanic Vessel Has Little Space

Letters were sent out yesterday by Castle & Cooke, Matson agents, to Honolulu business firms notifying them that advices had been received from the Matson line, that, "On account of the labor conditions now existing at Seattle and Tacoma, the Puget Sound service which has been maintained by the company with the S. S. Hilonian and the S. S. Hyades has been withdrawn until further notice."

This is confirmation of statements published in The Advertiser that the Matson company might suspend the Sound service, although, when this was published, the reason was not clear, whether on account of the strike or because of the possibility of vessels being taken over by the government in the event of war with Mexico.

Hard On Pineapple Packers

This suspension certainly will be hard on the pineapple packers, who rely on the Matson vessels for the transportation of their shooks for cases—the Matson being the sole sound line since the American-Hawaiian suspension. It also will be hard on feed and grain companies, although they probably will divert to San Francisco, receiving their goods from that port. If there is quick settlement of the strike there will be little pilikia.

The Islands now have no connection with any Coast port except San Francisco. The Matson steamer Hilonian, due tomorrow from the Sound, will be the last vessel for an indefinite period.

Sonoma Cannot Take Pines

There also is unfavorable news as to Oceanic vessels. The Sonoma, due Tuesday from Sydney and Pago Pago for San Francisco, had space for only 110 tons when she departed from Sydney, and, after sailing from Pago Pago, had space for only sixty tons, probably having taken on much copra there. She can take no bananas, sugar or canned pines. This is quite a full cargo, and seems to mean that, as officers of the Sierra predicted, the new clip of wool has begun moving immediately after the old ceased, almost without intermission. However, wool filled Oceanic vessels throughout 1915. It had been hoped and believed that there would be more space for Island produce this year than last.

Advices to Castle & Cooke, agents, said that the Matson steamer Wilhelmina, from San Francisco at five-forty o'clock Wednesday afternoon, had 2503 tons of cargo for Honolulu and 293 for Hilo, a total of only 2796 tons. She had been bringing between 6000 and 7000 a voyage recently, so that there is a loss of between 3000 and 4000 tons. The small cargo indicates that pilikia was being experienced in loading the vessels by strike-breakers at San Francisco. The Wilhelmina will arrive Tuesday morning. Whether the Manoa will depart on time next Tuesday afternoon is not known.

WASHINGTON TAKES UP CASE OF DAVIS

A new light was thrown on the Foster L. Davis case yesterday, explanatory of the quickness with which an appeal to the United States supreme court was taken after Judge Morrow sustained the demurrer put in by the defendant, when District Attorney Huber said that the attorney-general's department in Washington had ordered the case "brought up."

Moreover, the district attorney said the indictment which Judge Morrow found defective had been passed upon by three members of the attorney general's staff and had received their approval.

"In cases of this kind an indictment is always submitted to the department and passed on there. If it does not believe it is good, it advises you to drop it and present a corrected one to the grand jury. The Davis indictment was sent to Washington and carefully gone over there long before Judge Morrow came. One of the men who passed on it is supposed to be an authority on indictments and has written a standard work on that subject.

"Naturally enough, when Judge Morrow sustained the demurrer, the department ordered that the case be brought to the Supreme Court on appeal, which I have done.

"Davis was the clerk of the United States district court here, and the charge against him is the misuse of funds intrusted to him as such clerk. The department is interested in cases of this kind concerning a federal employe, which accounts for the promptness with which it ordered an appeal taken after Judge Morrow's decision."

JUDICIAL BUSINESS GROWS

Judge Whitney's report of the business in his court for the current fiscal year will be submited to Governor Pinkham this morning. The report shows a general increase in legal matters which have come before this division of the circuit court.

EMBEZZLEMENT IS CHARGED

Charged with embezzling about $600, Chang Moo was arraigned in police court yesterday and entered a plea of not guilty. His case was set for trial for July 3. He was brought to Honolulu from Kauai yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Plemer.
