MURDERER DENIES POLICE CONNIVANCE

Alfredo Cocchi Who Killed Ruth Cruger Tells Why He Committed the Crime

(Associated Press By U. S. Naval Communication Service)

BOLOGNA, Italy, July 24—Alfredo Cocchi, the Italian motorcycle dealer of New York, who assaulted Ruth Cruger, an eighteen-year-old girl who had entered his shop to have her skates sharpened, and who murdered the girl later, has made a complete statement to Joseph W. Grift, a New York police agent.

It has been charged in New York that Cocchi was a professional white slaver, operating in New York under police protection, and that he was allowed to make his escape when the police were ostensibly searching for the lost girl, whose body was found recently, buried under the furnace in the basement of the Cocchi shop.

The statement of the murderer denies, however, that the murder of the girl or his subsequent escape were connived at in any way by the New York police. On the contrary, says Cocchi, the murder was carried out because of his fear of the police. After he had criminally assaulted the young girl, he says, he was afraid she would tell the authorities if allowed to go. He therefore murdered her to save himself, and buried the body.

The girl fought so bitterly when he approached her that he felt that she was not one who would submit to the assault rather than disclose the facts, said Cocchi.

Under Italian law, Cocchi cannot be extradited, but must be tried for his crime in an Italian court. It was with considerable difficulty that Ambassador Page secured permission for the agent of the New York police force to talk with Cocchi, to secure the statement necessary, in view of the investigation into police conditions in New York the Cruger case has brought about.

AWFUL SLAUGHTER DISCOURAGES HUNS

counter fire of the poilus supported by the artillery, and the attacking hoches suffered enormously in their efforts to take the French posts.

Such is the gist of the official communique issued last night from the French war office. It adds that the Germans also attacked in the vicinity of Craonne and about Hurtebise Farm, but attacked in vain. Northwest of Mont Cornillet they sent out infantry waves, following a heavy artillery preparation, but were completely repulsed.

The Nancy region was shelled viciously by the German long range guns, but with little effect other than to destroy still more property in the sadly battered city.

Despatches from the Balkans announced that there had been spirited artillery bombardments northwest of Monastir, but no infantry movement of importance.

Berlin Admits Slav Stand

Berlin issued a formal admission that the Russian attacks in the terrain southwest of Dvinsk, where the Germans have been attempting to win back ground lost in the recent Russ drive, had been more or less successful, despite the effect of the pro-German treason of the reactionaries in Petrograd. "The Russians succeeded in reaching our advanced positions," said the German account, "but were repulsed in all places except one or two."

Earlier in the day a despatch from Berlin claimed that the Germans had retaken all of the positions lost to the Slavs south of Smorgon, and asserted that Slav attacks on a wide front had been checked. Other statements insisted that Teutonic advances had succeeded in crossing the Rabatyn-Ostroff railroad, and were moving forward on both sides of the Dneister River.

Conditions Are Chaotic

Petrograd admits that chaotic conditions on the Serett, Stripa and Zlota Lipa River fronts were responsible for a further advance of Hungarians, who occupied several villages. According to a telegram from the provisional commissioner at this front to Premier Kerensky, "the situation demands extreme measures. Commanders have been ordered to shoot deserters. Most of the units are disorganized and no longer listen to the exhortations of their leaders and comrades, replying in several instances with threats and shots. Cases are on record where orders given to proceed in haste to aid of sorely pressed comrades have been debated for hours before action was taken.

"Troops have abandoned their trenches at the first shots from the enemy, and deserters have shamelessly passed to the rear in long files. Frequently entire units have deserted their posts."

"In the southern Carpathians," adds the communique of the German general staff, "the Russians are in full retreat."

London reports that the commander of the British forces operating in German East Africa has announced a decisive victory over the broken Hun forces in that theater of the great war. The Germans attempted to make a stand, but had been unable to meet the British attacks, and had broken and fled.

MEATLESS DAYS TEND TO DECREASE MARRIAGES

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, July 12—Meatless days have had the effect of suppressing marriages as well as the consumption of beef, veal, mutton, pork, and fowl, on Mondays and Tuesdays in Paris. Tuesday was a particularly lively day in the marriage salons of the twenty mayors' offices in Paris; now they are deserted. The reason is supposed to be that meatless wedding feasts are not acceptable.

(Associated Press By U. S. Naval Communication Service)

Finally the court ordered them locked up for the night and went home leaving no directions to be called in case of an agreement being reached.

It is reported that the talesmen stand ten for acquittal and two for conviction and that they determined to debate and ballot no further last night but to resume deliberations at half past nine this morning.

It opened up fire when attacked by the submarine and gave the submersible more than shot for shot, firing thirty-five in all. A little wreckage and some oil told the story of final destruction by the American gunners.

ENGLAND'S DEMAND AIDS SUGAR PRICES

United Kingdom Repairs Losses By Submarines By Purchases of Further Supplies

Sales of sugar in New York for the week ending July 5 are reported by Willet & Gray of 82 Wall Street, New York to have been 88,000 bags of Porto Rico, mostly July delivery; 113,000 bags of Cubas, mostly late July and August delivery; 12,000 tons Guatemala and Columbias afloat; 2000 tons San Domingo, July; 2700 Perus, July, and 1000 tons St. Croix, July. Receipts are reported 31,755 tons, exports 60,461 stock 698,233 and stocks United States and Cuba together 1,004,877 as compared with 917,400 for the same period last year.

Raw Market Strong

The market last week was strong at 5⅝ cents c. & f. (6.40 cents), and during the greater part of the week the strong tone was maintained. It was only during the end of the week that the market became easier.

The market has been chiefly affected by the demand from England for Cubas partly to replace sugars sunk by submarines. This European business, which was chiefly done at five cents f. o. b. Cuba, amounted close to 100,000 tons.

There has also been a demand for refined from European countries, which caused refiners to purchase freely in competition with the United Kingdom and prices advanced until 5½ cents c. & f. (6.52 cents) was reached for sugars in store and for August shipment. At this point the market hesitated and then became easier, with sales at 5 7-16 cents c. & f. (6.46 cents). As we go to press there are sales of late July at 5 5-16cents c. & f. (6.33 cents), a decline of 3-16 cents from the high point.

Porto Ricos sold at 6.27 cents and later at 6.20 cents.

Full-duty sugars were fairly active with last sales at 5¼ cents c. i. f.

Atlantic ports statistics are as follows: Receipts 43,968 tons, meltings 63,000 tons, stocks 283,686 tons.

Refined Situation Unchanged

There has been no change in the situation during the week. American are accepting a limited amount of business daily at 7.50c basis. Howell and Arbuckle continue withdrawn and Federal and Warner quote 8.00 cents. At this level, however, the demand is very light, but at the 7.50 cents basis there is a good business in hand. Federal and Warner can ship promptly; other refiners are delayed.

At the close there is a somewhat easier tone to the market, especially as regards soft sugars.

Some 7000 to 10,000 tons of granulated for export have been sold during the week. Present quotation is on the basis of 7.25 cents net cash, in bond.

Cuban Production Is Larger

The entire Island figures for the week are: Receipts, 34,755 tons; exports, 35,233 tons to United States Atlantic ports, 6716 tons to New Orleans and 10,515 tons to Europe, a total of 60,464 tons; stock, 698,233 tons. The weekly production is larger than that of the corresponding weeks of the two preceding years. In this way the total production to date continues to approach that of last year, as is shown by the following figures: 2,749,291 tons against 2,859,700 tons to corresponding date last year and as against 2,335,711 tons in 1915. We estimate that there are 500,000 tons of sugar unsold in Cuba, considering that the crop will reach 3,000,000 tons. Rains continue in the Island.

VEGETABLES NOW RAISED WHERE OPERA RULED

(By The Associated Press)

AMSTERDAM, July 12—Bayreuth is becoming a military instead of a musical center and potato growing competitions are replacing music festivals, writes a German correspondent there. He says that the garrison lately has been increased, the streets swarm with field gray uniforms, and all street lighting has stopped. Vegetables are being raised in the opera gardens and even Siegfried Wagner has planted potatoes in the grounds of his historical villa Wahnfried. Frau Cosima Wagner, who is hale despite her eighty years, can be seen daily with Siegfried or her daughter Eva walking in the Hofgarten. She regularly visits the wounded in the new Palace Hospital.

COMMISSION OF DYES SELECTED FOR ENGLAND

This will be managed by Sir Evan Jones with the title of commissioner for dyes who will act in close consultation with the various dye-making and using interests to promote and develop the industry.

ENGELS COPPER CO. INCREASES OUTPUT

June This Year Sixty-one Per Cent Larger Than Last

Increase of sixty-one per cent in copper production for the month of June as compared with the same month in 1916 is shown in a monthly report on Engels Copper received yesterday morning. The output for the month was 517,518 pounds.

Gains all the way through with the exception of a slightly lower per centage of copper in concentrates is shown by Engels Copper for June. The concentrate percentage figures are 34.31 as against 35.61 and this is accounted for by the larger quantity of high grade ore shipped without having been first concentrated. Recovery jumps nearly six per cent, from 73.57 to 79.4. There were 12,519 tons of ore shipped as against 9758 in June, 1916 and 1,407,953 pounds of concentrates as compared with 915,441 in June a year ago.

Engels Copper Company has not been affected by the I. W. W. and labor troubles by which numbers of the minimum copper mines have been hamstrung, as June figures show. It had its labor troubles several months ago and no further ones are anticipated. A prosperous half year has closed and still further increases in output will be seen during the second six months of 1917 and the first six of 1918.

UNLISTED SECURITIES HOLD MOST INTEREST

Mineral Products Is Weak But Balance of Stocks Hold

Main interest in the local stock market continues to center more in the unlisted than listed shares, in other words the business is more speculative than for investment. Sales of listed stocks between boards yesterday were only 135 shares and at the session 25 shares of Hawaii Consolidated Railway A were dealt in. Bond sales were more important, $9000 Olaa 6s sold 98½ and $4700 of Hawaii Railway 5s at 90 and 89¾.

Weakness of Mineral Products stock was the feature of the unlisted market. It sold down to 20 cents and brokers gave as the reason that the report recently issued was not considered satisfactory. Engels Copper scored a recovery of 25 cents and other shares on the yellow sheet were practically unchanged, Madera and Montana Bingham being most traded in after Mineral Products.

JESSE DUKE HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Grand Jury Indicts Negro Accused of Procuring

Six true bills were returned in Judge Heen's division of the circuit court by the grand jury yesterday. The four men indicted will be arraigned at nine o'clock this morning, at which time they may enter their pleas. The indictments are as follows:

Jesse Duke, charged with procuring and pimping, it being claimed that on May 28 he induced, compelled and procured Mabel Correa, Mrs. Hurd and Adelaide to practise prostitution in the Olympia rooming house, King and South Streets, "to secure from them a portion of the gains earned by them." The joint was raided on Friday evening of last week by the police.

Ciraco Fernandez, charged with carnal abuse of a female child on July 13.

Manuel P. Moranha, charged with rape committed on June 3.

S. M. Smith, charged under three counts with forging the name of Theodore Baumann to checks drawn on the banking house of Bishop & Co., on July 7 for seventeen dollars and fifty cents, sixteen dollars and fifty cents and twelve dollars and seventy-five cents, respectively.

Among the witnesses summoned to appear before the grand jury yesterday were Dr. R. G. Ayer, Josephine Barranco, Clifford Spitzer, Alice Myers, Mabel Correa, J. P. Keppler, Adelaide Freitas, Maria Barranco, Mrs. Hurd, L. Ayau, Louisa Seabury, Mrs. Seabury and John Seabury.

W. R. Hobby, acting superintendent of public works, was called again yesterday before a committee of the territorial grand jury, in connection with the contract for moving of the Theo. H. Davies & Co., warehouse, it is believed. The warehouse is already on its new site and the grand jury, it appears, is still investigating.

FATHER OF JUDGE QUINN IS DEAD IN IOWA

News was received here yesterday of the death of Robert Quinn, father of Judge Clem K. Quinn of Hilo and T. J. Quinn of Honolulu. Mr. Quinn who was ninety years old, was a retired farmer of Elkade, Iowa, where he died.

MORE COMMISSIONS

On the day when he lacked but seventy-two hours of having served twenty-one years in Uncle Sam's army, Sergt. E. D. Arndt, first sergeant of the Headquarters Company, Second Infantry, received his commission as captain in the officers' reserve corps. It was dated July 2, 1917. At the same time Sergt. Robert Barr, A Company, Second Infantry, has also received his commission in the reserve corps. Both are assigned to the infantry.

GERMAN TORPEDO SUPPLY WEAKENING

Is Deteriorating In Speed and In Accuracy of Fire At Long Range

WASHINGTON, July 15—There is reason to believe that the German torpedo supply is weakening, says a statement issued at the Navy League headquarters today.

The increasing frequency with which press despatches report merchant ships as successfully dodging German torpedoes, says the statement, suggests to the technically trained mind that the German torpedo is deteriorating in speed and hence in accuracy of fire at long range.

At the outset, the statement continues, the Germans were extremely careful to conserve their torpedoes. Merchant ships were sunk by gunfire wherever possible. But the arming of merchant ships and the constant improvement in the Allies' system of defense against submarine attack has driven the submarines under water and they are now forced to use torpedoes in almost every attack. The increase in the number of submarines has further added to the strain upon the German stock of torpedoes.

Huns Are Slipping

An analysis of reports on submarine attacks now indicates that this unprecedented expenditure of torpedoes is beginning to tell upon the effectiveness of the U-boat warfare. The Germans are pressing their submarine campaign with all possible vigor and the number of attacks on merchant ships appears to be increasing. Also the zone of submarine operations is constantly widening. Yet this increased fury with which the U-boat warfare is being waged has failed to increase the number of merchant ships sunk. The Germans apparently are being forced to constantly greater efforts to maintain their average of sinkings and even so are slipping back slightly.

The explanation of this offered by certain naval experts is that the Germans are being so pressed for time in the construction of torpedoes that they can no longer maintain their speed and their accuracy of fire. It is estimated that the German torpedo has lost nearly ten knots in speed from the standard torpedo used at the outset of the war.

Take Six Months To Make

It takes normally six months to construct a torpedo and costs many thousand dollars. There is also a chance of Germany running short in some material essential in their manufacture. Whether or not this has occurred is not known but the conclusion has been reached that the individual German torpedo is losing in efficiency.

The U-boat warfare as now being waged, it is said, was undoubtedly not thought out and prepared for by Germany before the war. Therefore the stock of torpedoes was not sufficient for the purpose. The deficiency has been made up by increasing the output of torpedoes. But with the tremendous land operations she has essayed, Germany could not safely devote a maximum of labor or materials to the making of torpedoes. Had she done this it is not doubted she could have kept up the supply. But sacrifices in the torpedo supply were made to satisfy the folly of the Crown Prince at Verdun.

Naval experts are rightly continuing to stress the vital importance of attempting to destroy the power of the submarine by some new development in naval strategy. No degree of deterioration in the effectiveness of German torpedo attack would lessen these efforts at effective warfare against the submarines. Yet the interest of naval experts has been attracted by this recent record of performances of the German torpedoes. They are wondering whether Germany can stand much longer the strain of this staggering expenditure of torpedoes.
