DES MOINES, - - - - IOWA.

MARCH, FRIDAY 24.

Address of Hon. Geo. H. White

BEFORE THE JUNIOR AND SENIOR CLASSES OF HOWARD UNIVERSITY—WASHINGTON, D. C.

"It is not my purpose in the outset" Mr. White said, "to attempt to lecture or attempt to enlighten the students upon the curriculum laid down in their course of study, as Blackstone, Chitty, Coke, Cruise, Gilbert, Greenleaf, and Williams, and such able commentators of the law will give you the ground work in the great rudimentary principle of legal jurisprudence, which is peculiarly within the province of the able corps of instructors of this department to impart to you. It is my intention to give you some practical ideas of the course to be pursued after leaving the university. It is true that the City of Washington has many enticements and fascinations, but the student of law should not allow himself to be charmed and allured by the beauties of the city, and attractions of social life, nor bury your talents in departmental life. The offer may be tempting to enter some Govérment Department, but my advice to you is to refuse to accept any position in the Government sevice that will thereafter cause you to forget that ever possessed a knowledge of the law. I believe it is the duty of every student to take his diploma and at once seak a field in which to locate; go out into the busy world to battle with mankind for a livelihood in the practice of your chosen profession. The South land offers many opportunities for the young man of to-day—the harvest is ripening and the laborers are few. It is there where the lawyer can work out his future destiny. The people of that section of this country need your talents, your services and your ability, and by application to your profession, I firmly believe you can climb tha ladder of fame, honor, and distinction, and be a credit to the community in which you locate, and an honor" to the race to which you belong. Having chosen the profession of law, stick to it with all the tenacity of your soul, for a jack of all trades never succeeds at any thing.

Be moulders of public sentiment, have a mind of your own; be original thinkers with opinions of your own, and when a conclusion is once logically and intelligently formed, have the courage of your convistions to mantain them until they are dislodged by others. Avoid the habit of plagarism, or attempting to adjust one's self to the thoughts and theories of everybody else, if you desire to succeed. I desire to lay special emphasis upon the stability of a lawyer. In medicine the doctor has no one to dispute the ipse dixit that he advances in the diagnosis or the nature of his patient illness, and if an error is committed it is buried under six feet of earth. What is true of the doctor is also true of the theologian. He advances his own orthodoxy about which there is no dispute as it is accepted by his hearers as the fact. Not so with the lawyer, however, for every inch of ground that the practicioner goes over is hotly contested by those learned in the law, and which requires the neccessity of being thoughly prepared, and when you have once settled upon a principle of law, and after matured deliberation you conclude you are right, cling to it until it is declared unsound. In the first place a foundation must be laid in the principles of the law, and it requires a diligent and constant application to the study of the profession after you leave your Alma Mater. Your studies are not ended after you leave the school room; you have only laid the pedestal upon which you must erect your future life. therefore you must apply yourself studiously to your books, begin anew the study of your profession. In the school room, or in the department of law the instruction that you have obtained is only a starting point, and a great superstructure must afterwards be erect[illegible] individual for himself; [illegible] worth he must demonstrate for himself; to the world his capabilities.

What the world needs to-day is efficient young men women, men and women who have an object in view, a purpose to accomplish. While I do not accept the one theory of industrial education as advanced by Booker T. Washington, as the panacea of all our ills, and the acme of all of our achievements nevertheless I believe he is doing a great work and is filling a long felt want. Professional men and women along different lines is what we need to day. Like the commodities in the market, which is regulated by the inexorable law of supply and demand, just so will your services be utilized wherever you may go, especially among our people in the South land, and while it may not be pleasant for you young men to tear yourself away from the beauties, pleasures, and allurements in and about Washington, my advice is to go away, which, in the end, means a far greater degree of success, and grandier achievements will come to grow rusty and dormant from non-use. Some may argue that it is necessary to get some capital, but the trouble is they never get the capital, they never leave the city, but instead become so deeply involved that they cannot get away. When I graduated here I was offered a position as messenger in one of the Department, but I refused to accept, why, because I knew it was far better to go out into life and carve out my own destiny without the aid or assistance of Uncle Sam. Some of my classmates accepted and are here today, still paying rent and cannot get away if they wanted to.

The lawyers in every community are the leading lights, the molders of public sentsments. This is true in the comon councils of the cities, and also abundently true in the management of state affairs. In the State Lagislatures, and in the national Congress the lawyers are in the majority, and are the moulders and shapers of all legislation. While a laymon may draft bills, as a rule they are scrutinized and modified to comform to the rulings of the courts by those learned in the law, and in that way lawyers have in all ages been the moulders of public sentiment and the lights in all committices; hence the necessity of those looking forward to the practice of their profession being well grounded, thoroughly prepared in all that goes to make up a useful, intelligent, and industrious citizen.

A lawyer in order to succeed permenently must be an honest and honorable man; must deal fairly and squarely with his clients. Shysterism and sharp practices may cause one to win for a short while; but it will only be a temporary success. While the average man thoughout the country looks upon lawyers as liars, and it has almost become a common belief that they are unscrupulous and untrustworthy, and that torment has a greater proportion of that profession, still I never found anything in the profession that prevented a successful lawyer from being an honest, dignified truthful, Christain gentleman.

You cannot afford when taking up the practice or the law to be content with a mediocre position. The ground floor of every calling is filled with the riffraff and rabble. but there is plenty of room at the top. Aim high and be content with nothing less then climbing high. The greatest legal lights in this country to-day have more business than they can possibly transact, and frequently transfer their business of minor character to less fortunate practitioner, or refuse to accept it at all.

Be courageous, be manly, be honest, undaunted in the, flinching from the wrong, moulders of public sentiment, doers of good and honoring the profession.

NEWTON NOTES.

Misses Hattie Mayes and Lulu Fine attended a Masonic ball in Marshalltown Monday evening.

Rev. Ford was in Colfax Sunday.

Mr. John Mathews of Sioux City is in the city on business.

Quite a number of our young people attended the Masquerade ball in Colfax Monday, they report a splendid time.

Geo. Lucas of Ewart is the guest of his cousin Mrs. Fred Green.

Several of our young men are preparing to give a grand calk walk and ball in the near future.

[illegible] evening Misses Eldora and apolis, the evening was spent in music and conversation, supper was served at ten o'clock.

Mrs. John Anderson has been quite ill but is improving.

Thursday evening a surprise was given J. C. Whitsett and family by a number of their friends who on their departure left as a kind memento a set of silver fruit knives. On Friday evening a second surprise was tendered Mr. Whitsett and family by the Pastor and members of the Congregational church. The Pastor in a few well chosen remarks presented them, as a token of the high esteem in which the family is held, a set of silver knives and forks also a set of solid silver teaspoons.

Messrs. John Mathews and Fred Green made a business trip to Grinnell Monday.

A VOICE FROM THE WEST.

A great deal has been said and written in regard to the coming General Conference, and the fitness of various men for the high office of Bishop. As to the number to be elected, in my judgement we do not need more than four more, neither should we have less than four. And as to timber from which to call out men for Bishops; there is not a church in existence with the same membership that has a greater amount of material then the great A. M. E. Church. I shall not attempt to try to disqualify any brother, for I believe that the prize is due to the man who can by merit place his feet up on the top round of the golden ladder.

We have many men in the west who would fill the Bishop's chair with dignity. But dignity is not all that is required. There are several other qualities very essential, And we in the west see in Rev, T. W. Henderson, our present business manager, those peculiar qualifications.

1. We want Bishops who can and who will travel as per Discip line. Dr. Henderson can and will do it if elected.

2. We want a Bishop who can do some good spiritually when he does travel, and Dr. Henderson is known thoughout the connection as one gifted [illegible] tattooed Tom, his is gifted [illegible] that the brig had the Bight being one of the best [illegible] of London.

the church both spiritually and temporally than T. W. Henderson

4. We want Bishops that can be approached by the most timid and reserved person, and not be like a snapping turtle. Rev, Henderson is approachable and possesses a great loving heart that feels his brother's care.

5. We want Bishops who will be satisfied when they are honored with the proper homage due them in their present position and after that would prefer that men should worship God rather then themselves. It can be truthfully said that the gentleman of my choice is a humble servant of God and would be satisfied when given the respect due him.

6. We want Bishops whose souls are filled with the fire of the Holy Ghost and let flame touch flame that all the dross of sin may be burned out, that the hearts of men and women may be fitted for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. Any one who acquainted with Dr. Henderson knows that he is greatly gifted with that qualification,

The labors of Dr. Henderson are well known in Indiana, Ill. Missouri, and in Kansas, in which latter State he was so popular that he would undoubtedly have been elected Lieutenant Governor had it not been for the treachery of one of our race.

And another way in which Rev. Henderson is peculiary fitted for the office is that he is a good judge of men and can read them in their peculiar make up, which is a decided advantage one has over another. It has been said by some that the A. M. E. church knows no North, no South, no East, no West. But it is noticeable that the most of the Bishops have been taken from the southern ranks. I do not object to that because the bulk of our membership is in the southland. But being a southerner myself, I know the southern ministry are too chivalrous to want and demand everything, but will be fair with their fellow man as with their God.

History of the Spanish War

By Dr. ALBERT SHAW,

Editor of the REVIEW OF REVIEWS,

AND A LONG LIST OF NOTABLE CONTRIBUTORS.

Over 1,200 Pages and 500 Valuable Illustrations.

Three Beautiful Volumes in Half Morocco.

See special offer at bottom of this advertisement.

This Magnificent Edition for only ONE DOLLAR DOWN.

To the readers of this paper we make the following proposition to become members of the Review of Reviews History Club, and obtain the three volumes of

Our War in Two Hemispheres,

By ALBERT SHAW,

Editor of the "American Monthly Review of Reviews" and author of "Municipal Government in Great Britain," etc., and a number of prominent contributors.

EVERY American teacher possessing a library, and many that do not possess one, will be interested in the announcement of the history of the late war with Spain, now published by the REVIEW OF REVIEWS COMPANY. Much of the narrative was written by Dr. Albert Shaw during the actual fighting of the summer. This has been revised and amplified by him in the light of the official reports and documents, which have only become available after hostilities ceased. A free quotation from the critical Congressional debates and other public utterances at crucial periods aids in making this work what it is, the standard reference history of this decisive and successful struggle. But it is much more than a lively and comprehensive narrative. It goes back to the years of struggle in Cuba which prepared the way for the war; it discusses energetically all problems which confronted the United States after the war as to the Philippines, Cuba, and Porto Rico; and as a whole it forms a broadly conceived picture of the year which has seen America brought face to face with new world duties.

The important special and technical matters of the war period, generally dismissed by the historian with only slight and often insufficient discussion, are fully and authentically dealt with in contributed chapters, written by men who had unusual opportunities for studying their subjects. Thus, the lessons which the war has for us as to the relative efficiency of rifles and machine guns are in a carefully written chapter by Lieut. John H. Parker, of the United States army; the military movements of the Santiago and Porto Rican campaigns are analysed by the editor of the Army and Navy Journal; the battle with Cervera is described by the novelist, Winston Churchill, who is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy; the actual condition of Cuba before the war and the facts which caused the war are described by eye-witnesses, Murat Halstead and Stephen Bonsal.

The illustration of the book is especially valuable in the hundreds of portraits, pictures of the navies, photographed scenes of the war, and the entertaining cartoons reproduced from the Spanish, French, German, and English papers, as well as from the American.

How to obtain the handsome edition by a payment of only ONE DOLLAR DOWN.

The three beautifully bound large octavo volumes and a year's subscription to the AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS can be obtained by any of the readers of this paper by joining the Review of Reviews Club and paying one dollar. The volumes will be sent as soon as ready to those who remit the sum, and the purchase will be completed by the payment of one dollar per month for twelve months. The first volume will be ready early in December. The subscription to the magazine which goes with the offer can be dated from any month.
