OFFICIAL PAPER OF LEWIS AND CLARKE COUNTY.

The INDEPENDENT has a larger daily circulation than any newspaper between St. Paul and Portland and a larger circulation than any other two daily papers published in Montana. It has no press room secrets; its subscription books are open to inspection, and it is always ready to prove that its circulation is as represented.

Entered at the Postoffice at Helena as second-class matter.

THE Inter Mountain is forced to admit that the nominees of the democratic party for members to the constitutional convention for Silver Bow county are able and conscientious gentlemen, and yet it predicts their defeat, which indicates a low estimate of the intelligence of the voters of the county.

REAL ESTATE boomers of Seattle have laid out a new town opposite that city and named it, in honor of the secretary af the navy who has ordered the location of a new navy yard at Seattle, Tracyton. The name lacks euphony, but, if the boomers can sell town lots there at an advance of 500 per cent., that consideration will not figure.

AN unconfirmed rumor was in circulation a week or two ago that broad or high hats would be strictly interdicted at the two performances in Helena, this week, of the comic opera "Erminie." In the interest of that good friendship which should prevail between neighbors and acquaintances, some agreement must be reached upon the hat question before the evening of the 9th.

THE St. Louis Globe-Democrat, in an unwonted fit of candor, the other day, said that "office peddling has been a regular business within the lines of the republican party in Missouri for many years." The only criticism that can be made upon this admission of a republican organ is that it should not have been qualified so as to limit its application to the state of Missouri. The same practice prevails in the party generally, both as to state and national offices.

SMUGGLING means more to Florida and the south generally than the loss of so much revenue to the government, because most of the goods smuggled into that state come from ports where the yellow fever is in existence nearly the year round. It is therefore as much to protect this country against a fatal epidemic as to enforce the collection of duties upon foreign imports that an additional revenue cutter has been ordered to the Florida coast.

DR. MCGILLICUDDY, the former agent of the Sioux at Pine Ridge, is an applicant for reappointment. A strong point in his favor is the opposition of Red Cloud and other of the Indians; but on the other hand the trouble in which the doctor constantly was during his former incumbency should suggest to the administration the advisability of putting someone else in the office now, if the present agent must be removed.

THE proceeds of a recent pugilistic exhibition at Spokane Falls, which was a rank farce, have been turned over to the sisters of charity who manage the Sacred Heart hospital at that city. The donation was made because the managers of the affair could not in justice to their own consciences keep the money obtained by so palpable an imposition. The exhibition must have been very "rocky" when the men interested couldn't pocket the proceeds. It is fortunate that the beneficiaries of the fizzle will make no worse use of the money than will those in charge of the hospital.

THE success which has attended the enlargement of the INDEPENDENT has been very marked, showing that both readers and advertisers fully appreciate the fact that this is the best newspaper and the most valuable advertising medium in the territory. The INDEPENDENT is in every respect a first-class journal, which position it has attained through the liberal expenditure of money even at times when there was no commensurate return. Subscriptions are coming daily through the mails and from the city at a rapid rate, and the circulation of the INDEPENDENT leads that of all competitors two to one. Perhaps when the managers of other papers make as good journals as this is, their reward will be as great.

THEY WON'T MOURN.

Among the mourners for Judge Durham, who was recently allowed to resign from the office of comptroller of the treasury because he refused to audit the claim of "Little Johnny" Davenport for $3,000 for extraordinary election expenses, will not be found a party of United States senators who went to New York to count the cash when the United States sub-treasury of that city was turned over to Judge McCue, under Cleveland's administration. The ride from Washington to New York occupies about five hours. When the accounts of the committee came before Judge Durham to be audited they contained, in addition to the regular mileage, an item for Pullman car accommodations for each of the travelers. Judge Durham struck out the item, holding that it was not included in necessary expenses of the trip. The committee appealed to Secretary Fairchild, but that official coincided with the view of the comptroller, and to this day the claim has not been allowed. But as the present administration is aiming to disperse the treasury surplus it might be worth while for the junketers to again prefer their claim. In this case the amount involved isn't large, but the principle is worth fighting for, and senators who desire Uncle Sam to defray their parlor car charges and wine bills should not miss the opportunity that now offers to get a favorable ruling.

FOR THE CONVENTION.

The republicans of the constitutional convention districts embraced in whole or in part in Lewis and Clarke county nominated their candidates for delegates on yesterday. The list includes Messrs. W. C. Gillette and A. J. Burns, twelfth district; W. A. Chessman and B. Platt Carpenter, thirteenth district; L. H. Hershfield and Cornelius Hedges, fourteenth district, and A. J. Craven and Milton Cauby, fifteenth district. Several of the gentlemen would make efficient members of a body such as they are aspiring to reach, and others of them can very easily be improved upon by the democratic conventions which are to meet on Tuesday. The list of delegates to the district conventions chosen at the democratic primaries last evening shows the names of representative business and professional men of the county, and guarantees that the nominations for delegates to the constitutional convention will be made judiciously. Too much care cannot be taken in this respect, for the good both of the county and the future state of Montana.

VIRGINIA WEADE'S LESSON.

An Old Dominion Maiden Instructs Her Lover in the Art of Wooing.

Chicago Tribune: The high-spirited girl drew her snake-like form to its ultimate celsitude and her eye darted bifurcated lightning at the feebly presumptuous youth who now quailed before her.

"Mr. Dupp," she sibilated sridulously as she rolled a cigarette deftly with a velvety steel yet caressing touch, drew a match with a grand sweeping motion across the sole of her high-arched shoe, lighted the fragrant herbaceous cylinder and inhaled the smoke with a free, Old Dominionesque pose of patrician ease, "You make me weary!"

Orville R. Dupp blew his nose apologetically.

"Miss Weade," he ejaculated, with a snuffling twang," upon my soul I don't catch on!"

"Young man," she exclaimed, with a lurid fulguration from her scintillant eyes gleaming through the narcotic nimbus that floated about her, "don't you know how to woo a daughter of Accomack?"

"I don't seem to—to get there, exactly," he replied, with a vague dubitation.

Flinging the half consumed cigarette into the hand-painted coal-scuttle the imperious girl fixed her burning eyes on the cowering youth with an intensity that made his bones ache.

"Virginia Weade," he almost shrieked, "what are you about to do?"

With a sinuous motion she glode towards the paralyzed young man and laid her hand on his shoulder with a constringent clutch. His flesh crinkled at the contact, his hair rose up, and he stood motionless and pigeon-toed, gasping for breath.

"I am about to show you how to storm the heart of a high souled daughter of the bluest strain of Old Virginia gore!" She fairly hissed into his ear, every inflection of her voice piercing his throbbing brain as if launched from a catapult.

"You humbly asked me if I would consent to listen to the appealing cry of a heart that was laid trembling at my feet," she continued. "Is that the way to conquer a woman of flesh and blood? Immortal Alexander, no! When you seek to plant your flag in triumph on the citadel of her affections use the heaviest, the deadliest of love's artillery!"

With jaw drooping he gazed at her, speechless, fascinated, spellboung. Slowly she wound her arms about his unresisting form and drew him to her. With a firm, compelling, nay, masterful constriction she pressed his head down on her shoulder.

"Ha! Soul of my soul! You are mine! Recoil not!"

With a low, triumphant laugh that echoed and thrilled along the pulses of his frame to the remotest filament of his being and held him in its thrall with a sweetness that trembled on the borderland of pain, while flames of liquid fire danced before his enchanted vision, she bowed her head, and her lips, redolent with the searching, indescribable farewell of a home-made cigarette, touched his.

A frightful shriek burst from his lips. With a frantic effort he broke from her embrace, rushed from the house and flew like a madman down the crowded thoroughfare. He was hatless, dishevelled and wild, but thankful. He had escaped with his life.—From advance sheets of Ramalie Eaves' next novel.

"Uneasy Lies," Etc.

No wonder King Milan wanted to get out of Belgrade. He was as much a martyr to dread of assassination as the czar of Russia. It is told that he slept in a room with double doors, iron-cased, which he locked himself and bolted from the inside. A powerful mastiff slept at the foot of his bed, and he kept a loaded revolver on the table. There was no chimney place in the room, lest dynamite should be dropped down it; and no coal was burned in any room which he occupied, because he once saw a murderous nihilistic engine which looked outwardly like a lump of coal. He was so afraid of poison that he always had the wine he drank uncorked before him. His coffee was always made in his presence with a spirit of wine apparatus, and he would never, when eating alone, touch a made dish, but only plain toast or a boiled egg. Suspicious of bread, he ate brown-bread biscuits of English make, of which there are always a tinfull in his study.

A Curiosity of the Times.

Boston Herald: Perhaps the following, which has apeared in several successive issues of the New York Tribune as an advertisement, may be regarded as a curiosity of the times:

I DESIRE to meet party able to secure Federal appointment for competent person; with such a liberal arrangement will be made; communications strictly confidential. Address "J. S.," postoffice box 2,838 New York.

Probably the Tribune advised him that its paper was not a good organ for such appeals to the public; but some advisers are incorrigible.

A WARNING TO BEER-DRINKERS.

The Popular Beverage Now Manufactured is Unhealthful.

Scientific American: Lager beer, from its name, implies a beer that has been kept for a certain period. A year or six months at least, is the time given by the authorities as that which should elapse before such beer is tapped. The German and Austrian governments impose both fine and imprisonment for any infraction of this rule, because of the deleterious effects of such drink before such lager or keeping shall have expired. There is not any such law here, and, as everybody knows who has had the time and inclination to investigate the subject, many of our brewers have greatly curtailed this time of keeping and constantly seek for expedients and process for cutting it down still more, so eager is the market, so uncritical the consumer. Indeed, the American beer drinker has little regard for his liver and kidneys, or he would have stoutly protested long ago. He takes his beer unsuspectingly and without inquiry, till a time comes when, the liver being affected or the kidneys, or both, nature protests and the beverage once so pleasing to his lips is like so much acid. A chemist recently investigating the matter says:

"Brewers are using materials other than malted barley, such as corn and oats, etc., mixed with barley and hops, by which they accelerate its manufacture, making a sweetish, pleasing, heavy beverage, but alcoholic, and people using this kind of beer in large daily quantities, with the idea that it is inocuous, has brought on a marked increase of renal complaints."

This statement was shown to a medical inspector of the board of health of this city. He could not say if these particular ingredients were used, but the general charge, he said, was undoubtedly true, neither colored as to the intent of the brewers nor exaggerated as to the effect on the health of the consumer. The health department, he said, had not sufficient force to look into this matter just now, so full were its hands with the routine inspection.

KNAPPE'S COMPLAINT.

Germany's Former Consul at Samoa Tells of American Aggressions.

BERLIN, May 4.—The white book on Samoan affairs contains a refutation by Dr. Knappe, the late German consul to Samoa, of reports published by American newspapers regarding the violation of American property during German naval operations in that country.

Dr. Knappe complains that toy flags and handkerchiefs on which are imprinted the American colors and a portrait of the president of the United States had been hoisted promiscuously over native houses since the outbreak of the civil war in Samoa. He also says American and British flags were hoisted over plots of land, pledged by the "rebels" in lieu of cash in payment for arms and ammunition. The commander of the British cruiser at Apia, he says, declined to support the claims to the land thus pledged.

The Samoan conference sat to-day from 5 until 5:30 o'clock. The land report was the subject under consideration.

Curious Mental Phenomena.

Pall Mall Gazette: Under the above heading the current number of the Revue Rose publishes an interesting summary of an account recently communicated to the Societe de Biologie by M. Fere, and in which are embodied some of his experiences of the effect of ether on persons at the point of death. It is a well-known fact that the dying are often able to see the principal facts of their lives, which otherwise have been forgotten for many years, clearly and accurately before them. The reason for this clairvoyance M. Fere ascribes to a sudden modification of the cerebral circulation, which can also be brought about by artificial means. Thus he tells of a case of a patient who was dying of consumption. He had already lost consciousness, when, having been revived by two successive injections of one gramme of ether, the dying man slowly raised his head and rapidly pronounced a string of words, which no one near him was able to understand, as they were Flemish. After some movements indicating impatience, he made a sign that he wished to write. A pencil and paper were then handed to him, and he wrote rapidly three or four lines, also in Flemish. This man, who was a native of Antwerp, had lived at Paris for many years and never wrote or spoke anything but French; but when dying he seemed to be unable to recollect that language. Afterwards it was found that his pencil note was about a debt of 15 f. which he had borrowed from somebody at Brussels in 1868, and which had never been paid.

In another case the patient was dying of lung disease. He had fainted several times and no longer replied to any questions put to him; his pulse was almost gone, but after an injection of ether he turned his head towards his wife, saying rapidly: "You will not find that pin, for all the floor has been remade," which was an allusion to an incident of eighteen years ago. After uttering these words breathing ceased.

We have too many long wraps, in fact the largest and best assortment by far to be found in the city—all new and made to our order this spring. During this week a reduction of 25 per cent. will be made from former prices. Now is the time to secure a stylish street garment cheaper than same could be had in New York. Call early at

RALEIGH & CLARKE'S.

The Crown of Thorns.

New York Herald: I know the masters of painting from Guido, in his wonderful "Ecce Homo," down to the present time, have depicted the crown that rested upon the head of our crucified Savior as a twisted branch of bare thorns, and that is, so far as I know, universally accepted as the true crown.

Some years ago an incident that occurred in the Holy Land caused me to think that this popular idea may be a mistake. A party of us, who were journeying toward Jerusalem at this season of the year, which is identical with the passion and death of the Master, had stopped to rest and lunch just after entering the hill country, some miles beyond Ramleh, when a lady of the party, who was gathering the beautiful flowers that covered the landscape on all sides, wreathed an exquisite spray and holding it up exclaimed, "The Crown of Thorns!"

Our party were delighted with the wreath, and upon examining it we found that long sharp thorns were concealed by the lovely pink flowers. We were convinced that this was the true crown, and as we advanced toward Jerusalem we saw that the whole country, even to the walls of the city, was covered with this flowering thorn.

The plant and flowers are very similar to what we commonly call the flowering almond, with the addition of the thorn. The bloom is very thick, so that by merely entwining a branch a wreath is made, while the long, sharp thorns set out at right angles about an inch apart make it a very painful crown to wear upon the human brow.

When we remember that the soldiers who dressed our Savior with the purple robe and crown did it as a mockery, it is reasonable to believe that they chose this plant, which was so accessible, and would make a beautiful appearance, while at the same time wounding his holy brow.

The treatment of many thousands of cases of those chronic weaknesses and distressing ailments peculiar to females, at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has afforded a vast experience in nicely adapting and thoroughly testing remedies for the cure of woman's peculiar maladies.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the outgrowth, or result, of this great and valuable experience. Thousands of testimonials, received from patients and from physicians who have tested it in the more aggravated and obstinate cases which had baffled their skill, prove it to be the most wonderful remedy ever devised for the relief and cure of suffering women. It is not recommended as a "cure-all," but as a most perfect Specific for woman's peculiar ailments.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic, it imparts strength to the whole system, and to the womb and its appendages in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine, "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteria, spasms and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a legitimate medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system. For morning sickness, or nausea, from whatever cause arising, weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia and kindred symptoms, its use, in small doses, will prove very beneficial.

"Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhea, excessive flowing, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus, or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness in ovaries, accompanied with "internal heat."

As a regulator and promoter of functional action, at that critical period of change from girlhood to womanhood, "Favorite Prescription" is a perfectly safe remedial agent, and can produce only good results. It is equally efficacious and valuable in its effects when taken for those disorders and derangements incident to that later and most critical period, known as "The Change of Life."

"Favorite Prescription," when taken in connection with the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and small laxative doses of Dr. Pierce's Purgative Pellets (Little Liver Pills), cures Liver, Kidney and Bladder diseases. Their combined use also removes blood taints, and abolishes cancerous and scrofulous humors from the system.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

Large bottles (100 doses) $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.
