MR. TOOLE AND THE LEAD DUTY.

In their last desperate effort to stop the stampede from Power to Toole, the republican organs have resorted to wholesale lying and perversion of the records to mislead the lead miners into the belief that Mr. Toole was not true to their interests. So far as Mr. Toole's election is concerned, it is unnecessary to contradict the misstatements of hard-pressed and unscrupulous opponents. It is too late for the republicans to save their candidate for governor by any amount of systematic lying. There are reasons deeper than any lead mine why Thomas C. Power will not be the next governor of Montana.

But Mr. Toole's record in this whole matter is so clear, so commendable, so characteristic of the honest, straightforward man that he is, that we propose to let it give the lie to the charge that he was ever untrue to the interests of the people of Montana in this or any other respect. Mr. Toole labored in season and out of season, at public and private hearings, to get the treasury department to construe the law so as to make Mexican lead pay duty. Secretary Fairchild, not willing to take the responsibility of reversing the long established rule of John Sherman, wanted the senate judiciary committee to put an interpretation upon the law for his guidance. Mr. Toole went before that committee and made a strong appeal for a decision upon the question, but the republican members of that body, at the dictation of Mr. Edmunds, reported adversely on the matter. The lead question remains unsettled to this day, because a republican senate committee refused to listen to Mr. Toole's request.

But that was not all of Mr. Toole's work. In a caucus of the democratic members of the house of representatives, he offered an amendment to the existing law to cure its defect, and make lead in combination with gold and silver ores, pay an assay value of lead in the ore. This amendment was rejected. The same amendment was presented to the ways and means committee of the house of representatives, but was not acted upon by that body.

Mr. Toole was absent in New York on a summons on urgent business when that part of the tariff schedule touching the duty on lead was reached in the house. Although, as a delegate, he could not vote, he had sat through much of the long tariff discussion of the summer of 1888, and had prepared a speech on the lead question which he expected to deliver when that matter came up. There was not a member of the house who did not know of his tireless energy in working for the interests of his constituents in this matter. This is not mere assertion. It is a matter of record. On Saturday, July 21, 1888, Mr. Dubois, the republican delegate from Idaho, said on the floor of the house (See Cong. Record, July 22):

In a debate in which I took part a few days ago, in arguing in favor of the amendment introduced by myself, that "a combination of lead ore with silver or gold ore shall not exempt such lead ore from payment of said duty," I inadvertently alluded to the honorable delegate from Montana in such a way as to give the inference that either he was not in favor of the amendment or that for some reason he did not care to express himself on this floor.

In previous and lengthy conversations with the gentleman from Montana I knew that his sympathies were not only with the amendment but that he intended to express himself fully. Had he not been unavoidably absent from the chamber on that day he no doubt would have corrected me at the time.

The interests of his own and my territory are identical, and I make this correction in fairness to the gentleman and in justice to myself.

So much for Mr. Toole's record in Washington. His speech on the same question on August 6, 1889, before the constitutional convention, is probably fresh in the minds of many of our readers, but to show exactly the status of the whole matter at that time, as well as Mr. Toole's record, we reproduce in another column the debate on the subject.

The part Mr. Toole has borne in the entire agitation of the lead question does him honor and credit. He was at no time the hired attorney of the lead men, but he performed his whole duty to his constituents ably and well.

TANNER'S REMOVAL.

Corporal Tanner, who was appointed commissioner of pensions to carry out the policy of the republican party as declared in the platform adopted by the national convention at Chicago in June, 1888, has been removed from office through the convenient method of a request for his resignation, a request that may be no more disregarded than the intimation of a Chinese ruler to an offending subordinate that the opportunity is favorable for the commission of hari kari.

Corporal Tanner has, unquestionably, some ground for considering himself the victim of insincerity and cowardice in the highest official circles. Whatever he has done as commissioner of pensions has been in the belief that he was carrying out the policy of the republican party and of the administration. He may have been indiscreet in speech and lacking in discrimination as an executive officer, but only in rare instances (as when he cast an unwarranted imputation upon the widows of soldiers at the Milwaukee reunion of the Grand Army of the Republic) did he transcend the bounds of what he could properly construe as the policy marked out by the national platform and by the president himself. It was his misfortune that with the vulgar "gift of gab" he possessed few of the graces of speech or the art of using language to conceal ideas, and at the same time was incapable of discriminating as a politician of the republican school should between promise and performance. The national platform declared that "The gratitude of the nation to the defenders of the Union cannot be measured by laws," and Commissioner Tanner construed the phrase, as he legitimately might, to mean that the pension laws were to be thenceforward of none effect; that, whereas the law required three corroborating witnesses to an application for a pension for disability one should be enough; that whereas the law provided a pension of $50 a month for the loss of a leg above the knee or an arm above the elbow the rate should be $72. Commissioner Tanner, with the sanction of Assistant Secretary Bussey, ruled that a dishonorable discharge should no longer be a bar to the pension list, a place upon which should be a certificate of faithful service in the defense of the nation. In all of this Commissioner Tanner would have been upheld by the president and his cabinet had it not been for his lingual incontinence, for, as a writer upon this subject has shown, the increase in pensions the last ten years is not due to the increasing infirmities of old soldiers, but to congress and the commissioners of pensions. While the republican party held undisputed possession of all branches of the government and feared no reverse the rates of pensions were low and the aggregate disbursements small. Since that period the pension roll has been rapidly increased.

But Commissioner Tanner's great fault was that he talked too much and thought too little. Because President Harrison had said, at a time when he wished to catch votes of inconsiderate men who were seeking pensions, that "This is no time to use the apothecary's scales to measure the rewards of the men who saved the country," he considered himself licensed to declare the repeal of laws regulating the allowing of pensions. In increasing the pension list in one year $30,000,000 to $35,000,000 Commissioner Tanner was but carrying out the declared policy of his party and the man who represents that policy in the presidential office. But he talked about it too much, and so the attention of the country was directed to what the republican policy is leading. The soldiers who served in the army of the union with fidelity and sustained bodily injury or contracted disease in the performance of duty do not want to be placed on a level with deserters or men who had been drummed out of camp, or men who had been hurt by the fall of a circus tent or in scrambling for the possession of a whisky jug. Loyal soldiers are wronged when camp-followers are given place on the honorable roll of pensioners.

It is idle for the republican administration to make a scapegoat of Mr. Tanner. His errors of administration have been those of an over-zealous partisan. He knew there was a surplus in the treasury, and he conceived it to be his duty to relieve his party in congress of the necessity of dealing with the question of the surplus, which involved a revision of the revenue system, and at the same time to make votes for his party by granting camp-followers and dishonorably discharged scalawags the same pensions that were awarded to soldiers who had served with credit to themselves and honor to the country. The abuse of the pension system had grown to such a magnitude that an investigation would have been ordered by congress early in the session; and it is only to avoid this that Tanner was invited to resign. It is, however, too late. The country has seen Tannerism, which is the legitimate offspring of the republican party's policy, and has made note of it and established its origin and parentage beyond question.

LEADING colored men of the United States are to hold a conference at Boston some time this month to consider the question of distribution of federal patronage. The colored men are far from being satisfied with the recognition thus far accorded to their race by the republican administration. Fred Douglass, whom Garfield had appointed marshal of the District of Columbia, was given the third class mission to Hayti, and Robert Smalls was made collector of customs at Beaufort, S. C., while two or three colored men were given minor postoffices in the south; but beyond this President Harrison has shown no appreciation of the fact that the bulk of the republican votes in the southern states are cast by colored men. The conference at Boston is expected to serve notice upon the administration that something more is expected by the colored men of this country than the privilege of voting for white republicans for office.

ALL the effrontery of blind partisanship possessed by the Spokane Falls Review was called into play for the editorial discussion of what the democratic state committee would or might be, and in which, in the face of the fact that within a fortnight the postal service there has dwindled from a daily to a weekly, the Review threatened with total paralysis in consequence of the neglect of the postoffice department to provide for the pay of clerks and carriers, it was charged that under the Cleveland administration the mails had been inefficiently handled. In Montana there never was a time when the postal service was less satisfactory than it is just now, and the complaint is general, east and west, that the wholesale removals by Wanamaker and Clarkson have destroyed the efficiency of the railway mail service.

WE regret to learn that the Hon. Thomas Cicero's oratorical effort in Butte on Wednesday night fell on unappreciative ears. A dispatch to the togglejointed, but official, organ announces that "Thunderous cheers shook the ceiling when he took his seat."

THOMAS CICERO is running at his own expense and Thomas Henry at the expense of the national committee, but the same tureen yawns impartially for both.

THIS is the last day on which you can be sure of registering without delay and discomfort. There will be a rush all day to-morrow before the registration places close. Get in the line early this morning.

THE democratic party is not given to Chinese practices, as a rule, but it is beating the Tom Toms this year in Montana.

THE esteemed unofficial Herald points to the republican platform as evidence of the party's real attitude towards silver. Actions speak louder than words, however, and the people of Montana, who are vitally interested in the silver question have not forgotten that it was a republican congress that demonetized ilver.

THE Deer Lodge New North-West is putting in strong "licks" for Toole and Maginnis, although unconscious of the fact and, therefore, undeserving of credit for the good work.

Two short days alone remain in which to register. The books close at 10 o'clock Saturday night. Are you registered?

CALL OFF THE DOGS.

Republican Vilification of Gentlemen Not Candidates for Office Must Stop Or—

Anaconda Standard: If this campaign is marred with personalities, the democratic press of Montana is not to blame for it. If men, not candidates for office, are exposed as targets for cowardly personal assault, democratic newspapers are not the offenders. If citizens who have the unquestioned right to interest themselves in the canvass are assailed by vagrant newspapers, run as dailies during the campaign for a money consideration, the offense cannot be charged on the democratic press.

The democratic press will not insult itself by meeting the opposition in the field of unwarrantable personalities. It will not trouble itself to tell how Mr. Power fared in his dealing with Indian traders, it will not produce the proofs of crooked transactions involving the federal government and republican candidates. It will impugn no decent man's motives, it will not vilify citizens in the walks of private life.

Montana democrats will surely win in October. They are winners now. They named the winning tickets ten days ago. They can take care of the state ticket and the legislative candidates to boot. They have shown that they cannot be defrauded by a rotten registry law; they will take mighty good care that they are not counted out at the polls. They present no candidate who ever robbed the people; they can easily afford to be decent. They are the aggressors in this campaign and they tell the opposition to get down into the ring and defend itself.

Let the republican press of the territory hasten to array itself on the line of living issues. Pay no attention to the proofs that Carter sought to introduce the religious element in last year's campaign. Do not study the files at Deer Lodge in hope of giving Mr. Power a clean record. Fling your insinuations at Anaconda's nineteen hundred voters if you will, and bring the suffrage of honest laboring men into contrast if you can. Dodge the real issues of the campaign if you want to, assail public-spirited men until you tire of it; but when you are through with a campaign of sneaking vituperation take a new tack and stay with the vital issues of the hour, if you are able to do it. Prove that the democrats of Montana have been recreants in the past, show how "Joe" Toole has betrayed the commonwealth, and wherein Maginnis has failed in fidelity. Point to the public record that entitles Carter to public preferment and suggest the claims which Power has to public favor.

None of these themes have stirred the republican press, which seeks to hide the weakness of its favorites by printing libels on democrats not candidates, and by raising its impotent voice of slander against men in public life whose personal popularity it is invited to put to the test.

She Fought for Her Tights.

M'lle Qualitz, the premier danseuse in a summer spectacular show now on at the Chicago opera house, had the worst of a battle with a tailor to-day, says a Chicago dispatch of the 3d inst. The fair ballet dancer had taken several pairs of tights to the tailor for cleaning, and on calling for them to-day was assessed $10 This she thought was too much, but the tailor "assured her it was a case of pay or no tights." The lady refused to pay the $10 and the tailor hung on to the clothes. Then the actress let into him. She kicked him simultaneous with both feet under the chin and in the stomach, but the tailor countered with his hot goose and the premier danseuse wilted. She has sworn out a warrant against the tailor and the case will be settled before Justice Lyon.

[Younger Doesn't Want to Die in Prison.]

Bob Younger, says a dispatch from Stillwater, Minn., is rapidly dying of consumption. It is the general opinion that he cannot live more than two weeks at the outside. He cannot talk above a whisper, and he cannot sit up. The famous outlaw is possessed of an iron will, and until now has maintained unbroken, and never a murmur has passed his lips. But this evening he begged Warden Reardon to be allowed to die outside the prison, even if it was only in the nearest hospital. He dreads the thought of dying in prison. His sister, Rilla, watches and waits on him night and day.

Benevolent Old Man: What's the matter, my little man? What are you crying about? Small Boy: I ain't got no (boo-hoo) no mother, ner no father, ner (boo-hoo) no brothers, ner no sisters, ner (boo-hoo) no uncle, ner no aunts, ner no (boo-hoo) ner nobody else. B. O. M.: Well, tut, tut. Don't cry about that; you're just the kind of a man we'll be wanting to run for president about forty years from now.

SCROFULA

Is that impurity of the blood which produces unsightly lumps or swellings in the neck; which causes running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. It is the most ancient of diseases and very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. If you suffer from scrofula, try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, my little boy, three years old, being a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. We all took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and all have been cured of the scrofula. My little boy is entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

WAKEFIELD'S LUCKY ESC

Grand Scenes Attending the tions of the Giant, Giantess, E hive and Other Craters.

MAMMOTH HOT SPRINGS, Sept. [Special to the Independent.]—Wakefield, accompanied by Bill took out a pair of fiery horses to giv an airing on the hotel plateau. Th mals became unmanagable and break-neck speed in the direction Cedar Terraces. The carriage struck one of the old boiling water ducts and the two men were thro with great force. The carriage was upside down and the maddened gyrated a few times around a cin cedars and finally halted with the under the bushes. Mr. Wakefield scalp wound that bled profusely a pretty badly bruised, but not seri jured. Mr. Clark escaped unhurt.
