THE DANGER THAT THREATENS US.

When the chief magistrate of the country causes it to be proclaimed that he is anxious that republicans shall render assistance to carry elections in new and distant states, he should not hesitate to take the next step and state what the reward of the cheerful giver shall be. There is probably no one, not even Mr. Dudley himself, who, better than Mr. Harrison, knows about the shameless, corrupt use of money at the late presidential election; for nowhere else was the use of it more shameless than in his own state. No one should know better than he that, if this corrupt use of money is not stopped, elections will speedily cease to represent the will of the people and will only represent the most infamous pollution of the ballot. There is no one in the entire length and breadth of the land who is under such solemn obligations as he to discountenance it; but he does not do that when he causes it to be announced that it is no secret that he wants the whole body of republicans in the country to contribute to a campaign fund to carry the new states for his party. He is, by doing that, countenancing, encouraging, inviting that corruption which was so signal and disgraceful a part of the last presidential campaign. — Philadelphia Evening Telegraph (Rep.).

AN ORGANIZED ENEMY OF LABOR.

The effort of the Montana republicans to pose through the campaign as the friends of the workingman has proved too much of a task, and we are witnessing a general throwing off of the mask on all sides. Over in Anaconda 40 newly created citizens, who have taken out their first papers, just as 1,500 other men of foreign birth in other parts of the territory have taken them out, have had their right to vote challenged by republican politicians. There were 300 more names on the Anaconda lists, in precisely the same status, that were not challenged for the reason that they were believed to be those of men who might be induced to vote the republican ticket. The republican bosses, of course, believed they could frighten many of the 400 challenged men from voting. They had no use for these new citizens as soon as they found they could not control their votes, and they had no hesitancy in depriving them of their rights. In the code of the republican party, in these days of its degeneracy, a workingman who will not vote the republican ticket is not entitled to any of the privileges of citizenship.

Another outcropping of this spirit of intolerance was seen yesterday in an editorial comment in the Helena Journal the official republican organ, on Mr. Fitzgerald, the democratic nominee for state auditor. Mr. Fitzgerald is a workingman who is known and respected all over the territory. He enjoyed few opportunities in his youth for acquiring an education, being obliged to work at manual labor from his earliest boyhood, but he is a well-read, self-made man of unusual natural ability and force of character. In the eyes of Mr. Russell B. Harrison's newspaper, however, Mr. Fitzgerald has committed the crime of being a democrat, and so that organ proceeds to quote a sentence from a speech by Mr. Fitzgerald, and says:

These observations are taken verbatim from a thing which Mr. Fitzgerald would possibly call a speech delivered at Bozeman Tuesday night. In this relation it is proper to say that this man Fitzgerald is decidedly the most incompetent and unqualified person on the democratic ticket. He can not write nor speak the English language correctly. He has been a police justice over in Deer Lodge county and the records of his court, so far as they are made in his own handwriting, are full of the most ludicrous mistakes in grammar and orthography. We are glad to be informed that he is a gentleman, but he ought to be sent for a few years to a primary school before he undertakes to become auditor of the state of Montana.

We do not suppose Mr. Fitzgerald will be unkind enough to call attention to the young editor's assault on the English language in the paragraph we have quoted, or tell him he ought to consult his own grammar before criticising others. He can afford to ignore the slur which is cast upon him. He is assailed because he is an independent workingman who cannot be misled or coerced. How Mr. Fitzgerald's fellow laborers regard him is shown by this comment of the Montana Labor Argus on his nomination:

T. D. Fitzgerald, candidate for state auditor, has for years been identified with organized labor and has never sought notoriety by pushing himself to the front as an office seeker. Several years ago a number of his companions at roll nominated him for justice of the peace of Anaconda and of course elected him. When the city was incorporated they elected him police magistrate, which position he has held ever since, and during his official career he has never forgotten that he is a laboring man, and the laboring people generally can feel proud of him, and they may rest assured that no matter what position of state he may occupy, he will always be the same Tom Fitzgerald as of old.

We can tell the Labor Argus in advance, however, that the Helena Journal will not apologize to Mr. Fitzgerald for insulting him. The Journal speaks for the republican party in this matter, and the party bosses, if they cannot control a laboring man's vote, will attempt to disfranchise him, and if they cannot do that, they will sneer at him because he lacks a classical education.

But it is the same g. o. p., everywhere and always the same, whether it is sending secret circulars to registry agents in Custer inviting them to see "that democratic cowboys forget to register," or is seeking to frighten newly-made citizens out of their rights in Anaconda, or is insulting men in Helena on account of a lack of early advantage, or is making tariff laws in congress for the benefit of Pennsylvania millionaires. Whatever turn it takes, it is always the secret foe of the man who toils.

DEMOCRATS OF LEWIS AND CLARKE!

The pivotal point in the fight is right here! Make no mistake about that. The west side is all right. It will meet us with a democratic majority. The northern counties are safe. They will give us small but sure pluralities. The eastern counties will poll every democratic vote that has been registered. They do not need watching. What message are you going to send, democratic voters of Lewis and Clarke, to your brethren in other sections of the territory? They are inquiring about you! Shall we tell them that we will add two hundred, three hundred, five hundred to the democratic majorities they roll in upon us? We have the tide with us. There are no stragglers from our ranks. The lines of the enemy are broken and shattered. We can beat them out of sight right here in Lewis and Clarke, if we poll every democratic vote that has been registered. That must and shall be done. It is no easy task. The operations of the voting law are slow, the laggard voters at many precincts will be shut out. The party that has the best organization, the liveliest workers, and gets its votes to the polls first, will be the party that carries this county. We are banking on our young democracy for the great work of Tuesday, and we show our faith in them now by declaring to our friends in other counties that Lewis and Clarke is going to take a front place in the democratic procession!

OUR friends in Custer county have a big fight on their hands, but we are assured that they will win in spite of republican schemes for disfranchising voters and corrupting the ballot. The county can be carried handsomely for Toole, Maginnis and the entire ticket, if every democrat will give his time to the cause from now until election day. The citizens of this county who want the registration law modified so that it shall not rob voters in distant settlements of their rights, who want to have taxation reduced and the cost of our state government lessened, should see to it that the excellent democratic legislative ticket is elected in its entirety. Messrs. Courtenay, Redd and Johnson are all solid men in the county, large property owners and men of enterprise. Mr. Courtenay is identified closely with the live stock interests of Montana, and the cattle, sheep and horse owners of Custer county will have in him a wide-awake representative. All three of the gentlemen named have large interests in the county they are nominated to represent. The electors of Custer should send these men to serve them at the state capital by handsome majorities.

COMPARE the speeches of Carter and Power with those of Maginnis and Toole. Compare the records of the two republicans with those of the two democrats. Place the public services of Power and Toole side by side. Measure Carter's claims to public honor with those of Maginnis. When you have done all that there will be but two candidates before you as worthy of your suffrage, and their names will be Toole and Maginnis.

The county attorney of Yellowstone county, as set forth in a dispatch printed elsewhere in to-day's INDEPENDENT, is sending out letters to judges of election containing interpretations of the election law that are in conflict with the law itself. Voters who have changed their place of residence since registering should claim their right to vote elsewhere, as the new law prescribes.

Enemies of Montana

Butte Mining Journal: When the change of management of the Helena Journal was announced we charged that it had been purchased by the gold bugs of New York and that it was sailing under false colors. This it denied and we let the matter drop. Now we repeat the charge. The Helena Journal is owned by the gold bugs of New York and is a snake in the grass, a wolf in sheep's clothing, in Montana. It is a spy upon our movements, an enemy to our chief product, a tool of Wall street and a hypocrite. The campaign is nearly closed, and with brazen effrontery it announces in jubilant tones that Tom Reed, the arch enemy of the silver interest, has been sent here to instruct us in our political duties. This is worse than insult to the people of Montana, and it should be resented. Of course he will not not say anything in his speeches that will offend, nor will he preach the doctrine of his Wall street masters, but they have an object in sending him here, as they had an object in purchasing and sustaining the Helena Journal.

He Was "Jim the Penman."

The following story, told by George Augustus Sala, is interesting in connection with the revival of "Jim the Penman." "I wonder whether Sir Charles Young, or the audiences who applauded his most successful production, was aware that, not so long since, the original Jim the Penman was alive and merry on ticket-of-leave in Western Australia. For aught I know, Saward, ex-barrister and forger, may be alive now. This noted criminal was transported to the antipodes about thirty years ago, and I remember a friend who was at the time named an officer in the commissariat stationed at Perth, W. A., telling me a very curious story about the famous forger. The well-behaved convicts were allowed to earn some trifling money wages, and it was part of my friend's functions to pay them, they giving a receipt for the same. 'Can you write, my man?' he asked one morning one of the batch of prisoners who came to the pay-table. 'Write, sir,' echoed the convict, 'why, I'm Jim the Penman!'"

A RECORD TO BE PROUD OF.

A Sketch of the Life Work of Major Martin Maginnis.

Major Martin Maginnis was born in Wayne county, N. Y., in 1841. While he was a lad his father removed to Minnesota, and was one of the pioneers of that territory. Martin Maginnis was educated at Hamlin university. He enlisted in the First Minnesota on the first call for volunteers. He was made first sergeant of his company. He was promoted to second lieutenant "for gallant and meritorious conduct" at the first battle of Bull Run. He was engaged at Edward's ferry; the first battles around Winchester, and at Yorktown and Fair Oaks; commanded his company at Savage Station, Glendale and Malvern Hill. He distinguished himself at Frazer's farm while holding an outpost, and was among those honorably mentioned by Gen. Edwin V. Sumner and Gen. George B. McClellan for promotion to the regular army. It is a matter of history that secretary Stanton refused to consider these recommendations in any case. His company lost heavily at Antietam, and for "gallant and meritorious conduct," he was promoted to first lieutenant and assigned to H company, which he commanded at Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville. The regiment took part in the scenes of action which marked the northward movement of Lee's army, and on the field of Gettysburg was almost annihilated in its celebrated charge, and in the repulse of Pickett. In this battle, according to Fox's "Comparative Statistics of Loss in Action," the First Minnesota suffered the greatest per centage of loss in action in modern history. For conduct in this great battle Mr. Maginnis was made captain. He served also at Bristoe station, the Wilderness and other battles, until September, 1864, when he was made major of a new regiment and reported to General Thomas in the army of the Cumberland. He was appointed Provost Marshal General of Tennessee, under Andrew Johnson; disliking staff duty and disagreeing with Governor Johnson, he was restored to his regiment by order of General Thomas, and served with it in the campaign of Franklin and Nashville, and was mustered out in June, 1865.

He came to Helena in 1866; founded and edited the Daily Gazette, and was elected as delegate to congress, defeating Clagett, Hedges, Leavitt, Sample Orr, Sanders and Botkin in succession. During his term he procured the passage of so many acts relating to the territory that it would be tedious to enumerate them. Every appropriation bill for twelve years contained something for the benefit of Montana. He procured the appropriations for the erection of the assay office, and the extension and completion of the penitentiary; the sums necessary to build forts Custer and Keogh, Assinaboine, Maginnis and Missoula, and to extend forts Shaw and Ellis. He procured the appropriation to purchase that portion of the Crow reservation now occupied by Cooke City and Red Lodge; large appropriations for improving the Missouri when it was an important element of our commerce. He passed the right of way bill for the Utah and Northern railway, and for the right of way for the Northern Pacific through the Crow reservation. He was also the author, and through his efforts was passed the general bill granting all railroads the right-of-way through the public lands. Under this act more than 20,000 miles of railway have been built in the west. He was the author of the present law authorizing the people of the mining territories to cut timber on the public lands free of charge, which was carried through congress after a memorable debate. Many more bills were introduced and passed under his management, and thousands of miles of mail service and hundreds of postoffices were established through the territory. He took part in many memorable debates in relation to western interests, and was the recognized champion of the territories and chairman of the territorial delegates. He also made some noted orations outside of congress—notably, an address on memorial day at the Soldiers' Home in Washington, before President Hayes and his cabinet, which attracted the attention of the whole country and was widely printed. He delivered the oration at a great reunion on the battle field of Gettysburg. He made the address before the society of the Army of the Potomac at its Washington reunion, Henry Ward Beecher having been the orator of the previous year and Chauncey M. Depew, Ingersoll and other noted people following in other years. He has made many addresses for the people at home, and taken an active part in all campaigns, whether he was a candidate or not. He has always served the territory faithfully, and in or out of congress been true to its people and its interests. His services in assisting to open the right of way across the great Northwest reservation for the Manitoba railway, and afterwards in throwing open the reservation itself to settlement, are of recent memory. He has made hundreds of arguments before the departments in relation to the lands, timber, settlers' rights and the interests of the mining industry, all of which were for the benefit of the territory. His latest efforts were for the admission of the state of which he rightfully deserves to be the representative in congress.

Mineral Claimants in Montana.

HELENA MONT., Sept. 1, 1889.

Certain very recent rulings of the General Land office at Washington upon the requirements as to proof in Mineral Entries made by corporations or individuals, make it extremely probable that the majority of such entries, for which applications for patent are now pending, WILL BE SUSPENDED FOR SUPPLEMENAL EVIDENCE.

It is certainly a wise precaution to anticipate a probable hindrance to the issuance of a patent by a careful re-examination of the proofs furnished, in order that such evidence, if found wanting, may be at once supplied.

For such examination and the preparation of all papers needed in mineral claims my many years of recent service in the General Land Office give me special advantage.
