AUTHORS AS READERS.

Dr. Conan Doyle Will Take the Platform In This Country.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, March 26.—A few years ago the manuscript of a romance written by an author then unknown was offered to several American publishers, both of books and periodicals. It was refused until, as a last chance, it was sent to the editor of a periodical, who accepted it gladly and was rejoiced to find that his judgment of it was correct, for it proved to be one of the popular stories of the year. Since that time the then unknown author has gained a splendid fame, a large income and probably more readers in the United States even than in his own country—Great Britain. He is Dr. A. Conan Doyle, who gave up the practice of medicine when he discovered that his talents and his disposition enabled him to do better or at least more profitable work with the pen than with the scalpel.

Dr. Doyle's earnings in the past five or six years have averaged more than $15,000 a year, and handsome as such an income is he has recently made contracts which will probably bring him as much in two years as he has gained from all his writings. He has consented to come to America and give a series of public readings in every considerable city in the United States, his selections being made from his own writings. Some of the adventures of Sherlock Holmes furnish admirable opportunities for dramatic elocution, and there are passages in his historical romances which, if read with skill, ought to create as much interest in an audience as is possible without the accessories of the stage, such as costuming and scenery.

Exactly what Dr. Doyle is to receive for these readings is of course known only to himself and the agent with whom he has made his contract, but he was guaranteed a large sum of money and besides that a share in the net receipts. If Dr. Doyle maintains upon the platform the popularity which he gained through his writings, he ought to take back to England a considerable sum of money.

Some disposition to criticise Dr. Doyle for thus becoming what the ultra critics call a public showman has been made manifest, and it is exactly the note of complaint which was heard when Dickens decided to appear upon the platform. The feeling which occasioned such criticism has been recognized by Rudyard Kipling, who was also urged to give a series of public readings and was promised a guarantee which would have made him a comparatively wealthy man. But Mr. Kipling declined such proposition for two reasons. One was based upon his fear that his creative work would be somewhat impaired or at least his creative ability be stunted if he consented to make public appearance and elocution in connection with his own writings.

Then another reason led him to refuse, that being a sentimental one. He is reported to have said that the instant a great literary worker becomes a showman he cheapens his art and cheapens himself. Therefore he threw away the chance of making in the next three or four years more than $100,000. There are high critics who praise him for this determination, but to most persons it seems like an eccentricity born of a supersensitive and unreasonable apprehension.

This whole matter was gone over at the time that Dickens proposed to his friends to read in public and for a price from his own works. The truest friend that Dickens had argued long and earnestly with him in opposition, but Dickens said that he could not see why it was any more ignoble to read his works in public than to distribute them to the public when the object in each case was primarily the earning of an income. He admitted that if public readings tended to impair his creative abilities then there might be reasonable objection to his doing it.

Dickens never regretted his decision in this matter. Of course, when the enormous earnings which his readings brought him, amounting in all to more than $200,000, are considered, it appears that the public justified it even if the critics did not, and it is certain that his creative capacity had already begun to fall before he appeared upon the platform. The great fortune which he gained by these public readings relieved the closing years of his life of an apprehension which had become almost a monomania with him—the fear that he would leave his children without sufficient means to make them independent.

Dickens' success as a public reader did not inspire Thackeray with the same purpose, as has been so often asserted, because Thackeray really appeared on the platform 10 years before Dickens did. Thackeray would never have commanded the interest which Dickens did as a reader, because he had none of that intense dramatic power and charm which characterized Dickens and made it apparent that he would have been one of the greatest comedians upon the English stage had he followed his first purpose and become an actor. Thackeray wrote two series of lectures. He did it purely as a money making venture, and yet so fine was the line of discrimination that the very critics who condemned Dickens for public reading applauded Thackeray for public lecturing.

These lectures rather than his books made Thackeray independent. After he had returned from his second American trip he bought a fine house, and he said to Anthony Trollope: "For the first time in my life I am independent. I own my house and have a permanent income of £1,300 a year, and that will take care of my girl whatever happens to me."

There has been no condemnation of American authors like Mark Twain or Thomas Nelson Page or James Whitcomb Riley or George W. Cable because they have chosen to make a profession of public reading from their works. Mr. Page has abandoned it now, being independent in fortune, and Mark Twain has earned as much money by it as any of the greater American actors. E. J. EDWARDS.

Women Who Do Not Need Work.

Several ladies, writing to me on the subject of women's work, complain most bitterly of those who, not being under the necessity of working, do yet take work, crowding out those who really want it. This is a very serious question. There can be no doubt that if A. and B., who are rich enough to be idle, take paid work, then C. and D., who do very much want the work, cannot get it. And since A. and B. have no need to haggle over the price or wage this naturally becomes lowered.

On the other hand, A. and B. may say: "Oh, but we like work! We cannot sit idle all our days. It is very nice not to be dependent, but it is also very nice to do the work." Are we to expect such a lofty standard of altruism in A. and B. that they should consent to sit in idleness against their inclination, in order that they may not injure C. and D., whom they have never seen? Or, again, A. and B. may say: "Yes, we need not work. But then it is very nice to have a little more money to spend." This difficult point in morals should be submitted to the consideration of an archbishop or to a church congress at least. I am not equal to it.—London Gentlewoman.

THE MARKETS.

STOCKS.

NEW YORK, April 4.—Bar silver, 63¾.

Copper—Quiet; lake, $9.50.

Lead—Quiet; domestic, $3.35.

The feature of interest in the stock exchange circles to-day was the report of the General Electric company for 1893, which was an exposition of an unhealthy condition during the year. The bears took advantage of the opportunity afforded by the announcement made in the report that the million dollar surplus had in 1892 been changed into a deficit of over $12,000,000 in 1893. The report caused a selling movement of large proportion, which resulted in a break of 3½ per cent, of which only ¾ was recovered at the close. The general market opened weak and a shade lower than closing prices of yesterday.

Government bonds—Firm.

Petroleum—Steady; April closed at $2¼c bid.

Our Baby Boy

Suffered Intensely From Impure Blood

Till Perfectly Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla

Harveyville, Kansas.

C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Our little baby boy is now almost two years old. When he was about six weeks old there appeared a breaking out on his head and breast. We tried various salves and soaps, but it

Continued to Grow Worse

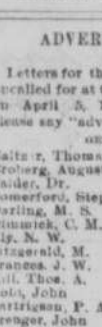
And we took him to a doctor. He said it was scrofula, but his treatment failed, and we called upon three other physicians, who termed it salt rheum or eczema. Even then he grew worse. A crust would gather on his head as thick as a quarter and pull up with corruption. Then it would come off, taking the hair with it. About three months ago we resolved to try Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Olive Ointment. To-day we are happy to say that Burtron is now

Entirely Well.

The sores have all disappeared and his hair is growing nicely. He has only taken one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and used one box of Ointment. We can now recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to others, and truthfully say it has worked wonders in our little boy's case. I have also been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for indigestion and liver trouble and am improving right along." DAVID A. KING, Harveyville, Kansas.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills are prompt and efficient, yet easy in action. Sold by all druggists. 25c.



IT TAKES YOUR MONEY—only 25 cents to buy a glass vial of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets—but then you get a lasting benefit and a permanent cure of your Bilious or Sick Headache, Constipation or Indigestion, loss of appetite, and all those troubles which follow a disordered liver.

The time to treat an inactive liver is before it becomes a disease. If these tiny Pellets were in every day use people would be germ-proof. The germs of disease make their entrance to the system through the liver—your health and well-being depends on the liver.

If you suffer from wind and pain in the stomach, giddiness, costiveness, disturbed sleep, you get immediate relief from the use of "Pleasant Pellets."

They're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or money returned.

Think of the thousands of hopeless cases which must have been cured by Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, before its proprietors could be willing to say, as they do: "For any case of Catarrh, no matter how bad, which we cannot cure, we'll pay $500 cash."

SUMMONS—IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF the First judicial district of the state of Montana, in and for the county of Lewis and Clarke.

The Montana National Bank, plaintiff, versus Albert M. Thornburgh, George M. Olmstead and Charles H. Taylor, co-partners doing business under the firm name and style of Olmstead & Taylor, and L. C. F. Lotz, defendants.

The state of Montana sends greeting to the above named defendants:

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the district court of the first judicial district of the state of Montana, in and for the county of Lewis and Clarke, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons, if served within this county, or, if served out of this county, but within the district, within twenty days; otherwise within forty days, or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to obtain a decree of this court for the foreclosure of a certain mortgage described in the said complaint and executed by the said Albert M. Thornburgh on the 20th day of January, 1893, to defendants Olmstead and Taylor as trustees for the holders of the note hereinafter described, on lots 5, 14, 15, 16 and 17 in block 5 of the Grand Avenue addition to the city of Helena, Lewis and Clarke county, Montana, to secure the payment of a certain promissory note of the same date for the sum of $7,000, and also six interest or coupon notes thereto attached payable respectively on the first day of August, 1893, and each six months thereafter, all for the sum of $[illegible] each, excepting the first, which is for the sum of $2[illegible]; and also to secure the payment of such insurance premiums and other liens, encumbrances or charges which the holder of said note should be compelled to pay off and discharge and of which the plaintiff as holder of said note has paid the sum of $1,[illegible] insurance premiums on the premises in said mortgage described, and also the further sum of $1,300.33 for a certain vendor's lien on said premises, and also for a reasonable attorney's fee as provided in said note; the defendants Olmstead and Taylor being joined herein because of their refusal to foreclose said mortgage at the request of plaintiff, the owner and holder thereof, and defendant Lotz being made a party defendant herein because of some claim or alleged claim that he has in and to said premises, which, however, is subsequent to that of said mortgage, that the premises conveyed by said mortgage may be sold and the proceeds applied to the payment of said note and the interest thereon and the insurance premiums and other charges paid off and discharged by the plaintiff and interest thereon from the date of their respective payments; for a reasonable attorney's fee, and in case such proceeds are not sufficient to pay the same then to obtain an execution against said Albert M. Thornburgh for the balance remaining due; also that the said defendants and all persons claiming by, through or under him be barred and foreclosed of all right, title, claim, equity of redemption and lien in and to said mortgaged premises, and for other and further relief, all of which will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the said plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief demanded in the said complaint.

Given under my hand and the seal of the district court of the First judicial district of the state of Montana, in and for the county of Lewis and Clarke, this 24 day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-four.

(Seal First Jud. Dist. Court.)

JOHN BEAN, Clerk.
H. G. McIntire, attorney for plaintiff.
